PERSONAL DEBT NEGOTIATION BY ROOSEVELT HIT

Lewis and Reed Remind Senate of Wilson's Treaty Error.

FORESEE MISSTEPS BY PRESIDENT-ELECT

Italian Ambassador Calls on Lindsay Before Briton's Departure Home.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President-elect Roosevelt's avowed policy of handling personally the intergovermental debt problem yesterday caused Republican Senator David A. Reed and Democratic Senator J. Hamilton Lewis to rattle the diplomatic skeleton of President Wilson and the Versailles Treaty on the floor of the Senate. The jealousy guarded prerogatives of Senatorial treaty-making power provoked a mild warning from the Democratic senator while Senator Reed, often the spokesman for the White House in the Senate, professed to see in the Roosevelt debt negotiations the same mistake that the wartime President had made in the treaty of Versailles.

While this outburst was being made in the Senate, British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay, bearing final word from the President-elect regarding the forthcoming Anglo-American debt conference, was on his way to London. Italian Ambassador Augusto Russo and the Czechoslovakian Minister, Ferdinand Veverka, called on Undersecretary of State William R. Castle, jr., last night and informed him of the pleasure their governments had in accepting the debt invitation of the American Government. Secretary Stimson, due to his slight illness, was unable to receive them.

Rosso Visits Lindsay.

However, shortly before Sir Ronald left for New York, where he boarded the steamship Europa last night at midnight, Italian Ambassador Rosso called on him at the British Embassy.

While the visit was believed to be a more or less perfunctory call, it is believed that some few moments were devoted to a brief discussion of the forthcoming conference. Later last night the Italian Ambassador called on Undersecretary Castle to convey to him the text of the Italian reply to the Roosevelt debt invitation. The invitation had contained the identic

Court of Appeals Gets Capone Plea

Capital Attorney in Battle to Free Gangster at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Al Capone, former Chicago gangster, today carried his fight for freedom from the Atlanta Penitentiary to the United State Circuit Court of Appeals.

Attorneys for the former Chicago public enemy No. 1 were granted an application to Federal District Judge E. Marvin Underwood for an appeal from his recent dismissal of Capone's habeas corpus petition and the appeal was entered in the Circuit Court of Appeals immediately.

Capone's lawyers, William J. Hughes, jr., and William A. Leahy, of Washington, D. C., came to Atlanta Saturday, prepared the papers and returned to Washington yesterday, leaving the appeal papers for Judge Underwood's consideration. He acted on them this morning.

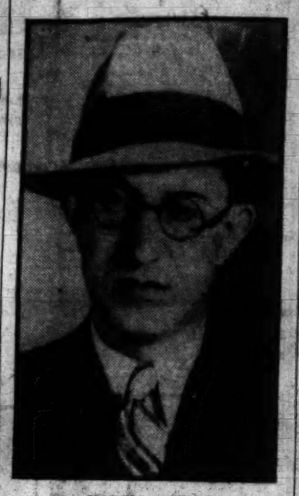
Geen Guilty

Associate Is Convicted of Helping "Jake the Barber's" Operations.



HARRY GEEN.

London, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Harry Geen, who stood trial here after being arrested in Philadelphia, was found guilty today of receiving £14,000 which he knew had been obtained fraudulently in association with John "Jake the Barber" Factor.

The jury found that he had been greatly under Factor's influence. The verdict was reached after the jurymen had reported to Judge Whitely that they could not agree and had been instructed to return to their deliberations. Sentence will be imposed February 11.

Geen, Factor and several others were charged with having received

CADETS' REGROUPING BATTLE INTENSIFIED

Dr. Eckhardt Will Press Fight for "More Equitable" School Plan.

If the Board of Education rejects the recommendation of Dr. John C. Eckhardt for a reorganization of the Washington high school cadet corps at its meeting today, the physician will continue his fight for "a fairer and more equitable system," he announced last night.

Dr. Eckhardt, who has been projected into the local high school limelight through his charges of unfair grouping of cadet companies, delivered a heated reply last night to the recent announcement of the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, chairman of the student activities committee of the school board, that the committee will not recommend any change in the cadet corps.

The critic of the cadet system said he could not understand why Dr. Bennett objects to any change in the white high school cadets, while he approves the fact that cadet companies in the colored schools are being grouped in uniform size.

"Years ago," Dr. Eckhardt observed, "the white schools operated in the

29 Injured When Truck Upsets Detroit Trolley

Detroit, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Twenty-nine persons were injured tonight when a truck tipped over a heavily loaded street car at an intersection in a residential district.

Most of the injuries were from broken glass. Many persons were cut as outsiders pulled the panic-stricken passengers through windows in which jagged pieces of glass remained. The most seriously hurt, apparently, was Zachary Whillow, the motorman, who has severe head injuries.

Policeman Injured In Balking Holdup

Escaped Convict Is Sought in Alexandria Home Attack.

A hand-to-hand combat between an Alexandria, Va., policeman and a gunman who attempted to rob him ended last night with the officer in Alexandria Hospital and a general alarm for the apprehension of an escaped convict.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Policeman Wesley Smoot drove up to the garage at the rear of his home. As he stepped from the machine he was approached by a man. Smoot turned to face an automatic revolver.

"Throw up your hands," the stranger ordered.

Before the policeman could bring his gun into play, he was felled by a blow. Smoot regained his feet to grapple with his assailant, who wrenched free, dropped his gun and fled. The policeman opened fire, but the man disappeared. Smoot, sent to the hospital with severe lacerations, told his commander, Capt. John S. Arnold, that the man wore clothes similar to regulation prison garb.

HOUSE LEADERS SPLIT ON EARLY VOTE ON TARIFF

Caucus of Democrats Is Postponed Until End of Hearings.

GARNER PERTURBED BY REVOLT IN PARTY

Vote on Measure Involving Depreciated Currencies Is Set for Feb 13.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Emergency tariff legislation to protect American industries against the swelling tide of imports from depreciated-currency countries advanced a step yesterday when Democratic leaders in the House divided sharply on a move to prevent consideration of such measures in the short session.

A deep rift within the Democratic ranks on the issue was revealed when a party caucus called for this morning suddenly was abandoned. Three hours after a conference between Speaker Garner and Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee, in which the caucus was agreed upon, Floor Leader Rainey announced that the project had been abandoned.

The caucus was projected with a view to binding the Democratic membership unanimously against consideration of any emergency tariff measures in the short session.

Stirs Hornet's Nest.

Because a considerable group on the majority side is directly interested in various commodities now suffering disastrous competition from imports from depreciated currency countries, however, the caucus call stirred up a hornet's nest within the party ranks. In announcing the abandonment of the plan, Representative Rainey said it had been decided to postpone a party decision on the emergency tariff proposals until the present hearings before the Ways and Means Committee are concluded. These hearings are on a bill offered by Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), of Washington, which would rectify all tariff rates to take account of depreciated currencies.

A similar bill by Representative Crowther (Republican), New York, also is before the committee and the necessary 145 members have signed a petition to discharge the committee so

Member of New York Stock Exchange Suicide

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Harry B. Koch, 45, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, shot himself in the right ear today and died twenty minutes later, the police reported. The shooting occurred in a washroom adjoining his office on lower Broadway. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

Records of the stock exchange showed Koch was a private trader, who became a member in November, 1931. He was formerly a member of the Curb Market.

Sea Blast

Four Chasing Rumrunner Dumped Into Water as Engine Explodes.

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Dumped into the sea by the explosion of an engine while racing to overhaul a rumrunner, the four members of the crew of the Coast Guard boat, the Arrow, were rescued early today by a fishing boat.

The accident occurred at dusk last night. The rumrunner was sighted off Carlsbad and fled out to sea, with the Arrow in full pursuit. Twenty-four miles off shore one of the Arrow's three engines exploded, tearing a big hole in its bottom and setting the engine room afire.

The fire was extinguished, but Frederick Dwight, chief boatswain's mate in command of the 60-foot, $40,000 speedboat, said he saw it would be impossible to keep the craft afloat. He and the others of the crew, A. P. Gran, machinist's mate, first class; B. C. Maddox, boatswain's mate, first class, and J. S. Shone, machinist's mate, second class, took to an open dory. The cause of the explosion was undetermined.

BANK HOARDING HIT AT PROBE OF R. F. C.

Millions Lent to Aid Railroads Idle, Pomerene and Couzens Say.

(Associated Press.)

Action to force into productive enterprise millions of dollars lent by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and now allegedly lying idle in the Nation's bank vaults, last night became a prime subject of legislative speculation.

Congressional leaders were chary of comment, but they were studying, nevertheless, the results of the opening session of an extensive investigation of R. F. C. loans to railroads which produced an accusation that the bankers have failed to fulfill their duty, in which the chairman of the corporation's board and the investigation committee's chairman joined.

It was evoked by a discussion of loans to railroads to pay off their indebtedness to the banks. Atlee Pomerene, chairman of the Corporation Board, told the committee:

"I have a feeling that some of our larger banks that are from 75 per cent to 110 per cent (for emphasis) liquid ought to play a larger part in financing the roads and meeting the loans as they mature. It is their duty to continue this financing. These banks, after getting all the money in the community, treat it as if it were in cold storage."

Senator Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, chairman of the committee, agreed and added some vigorous criticism of the Finance Corporation as well, asserting it had "fallen down badly when it made loans to pay off banks without a record of the condition of the banks." Couzens added:

"I have been unable to find any

LEAGUE REPORT DRAFT ATTACKS JAPANESE DRIVE

Practically Every Claim of Tokyo Government Is Rejected.

BITTER OPPOSITION IN NIPPON FORESEEN

Contention of Independence Movement in Manchuria Is Assailed.

Geneva, Jan. 31 (U.P.).—Recommendation of open condemnation by the League of Nations of Japan's military activities in Manchuria was believed certain tonight in the draft of the newly organized nine power committee's report on the Chinese-Japanese dispute.

At the insistance of the Swedish delegate on the committee, the drafters practically had adopted the following phraseology in their report, it was learned:

"It is difficult to consider the Japanese military action at Mukden the night of September 18, 1931, as legitimate self-defense."

Wording of Report.

The wording of the committee's report on the Manchurian dispute was further quoted as follows:

"Furthermore, it is difficult to consider the Japanese military activity in Manchuria since September 18 (1931), as legitimate self-defense.

"In any case, it is not permissible that Japan herself should decide whether she acted in self-defense. Such a decision can only be reached through a third party, such as the league."

The committee had practically agreed that despite the reluctance of the British to condone the Chinese boycott on Japanese goods since the Mukden incident started Japan's seizure of Manchuria in 1931, China's action must be regarded as "a legitimate measure of reprisal against Japanese military action."

Practically Completed.

The draft, practically finished tonight, was gone over in minute detail at a three and one-half hour meeting of the new nine power committee—a committee set up by the committee of 19 and composed of signatories of the Nine Power Treaty guaranteeing China's territorial integrity, signed at the Washington conference in 1921-22.

The committee's draft of the league report on Manchuria, in its present form, rejects practically every contention by Japan concerning her action in Manchuria.

It contains twelve major conclusions, including a declaration that Manchuria is definitely an integral part of China. The points were understood to include:

1—Manchuria is an integral part of China, although it always had had traditional autonomy.

2—China is in a state of transition

O'Mahoney Linked In Cabinet Reports

G. U. Graduate Offered Job as Postmaster General's Aid, Senator Feels.

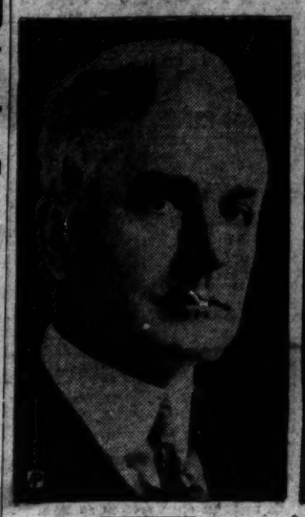
(Associated Press.)

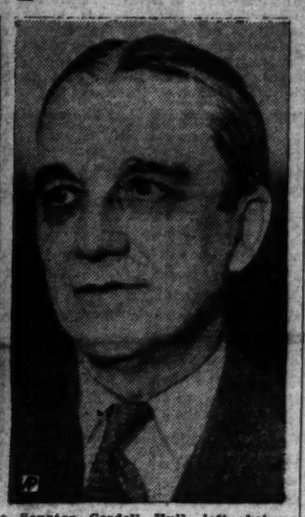
Senator Kendrick (Democrat), of Wyoming, said yesterday he "felt sure" J. C. O'Mahoney, Cheyenne lawyer, had been offered the post of First Assistant Postmaster General in the Roosevelt Cabinet, but that he did not know whether O'Mahoney would accept.

O'Mahoney, a graduate of Georgetown University Law School here, had been recommended by Senator Kendrick for Secretary of the Interior. The Wyoming senator said he was not well informed as to what was in the minds of those making up the Cabinet, but that he was "convinced" O'Mahoney had been offered the postoffice place.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democratic national committeeman, declined today to discuss reports from Washington that he had been tendered a post in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

Roosevelt Considers Young Despite Letter





Senator Cordell Hull, left, being mentioned as possibly the next Secretary of State, and Owen D. Young, who is said still to be considered "available" for the position by the President-elect.

However, Substitution Is Hinted as Hull Is Summoned.

(Associated Press.)

The Owen D. Young letter to President-elect Roosevelt is not regarded by Mr. Roosevelt as a withdrawal of Young's availability for the Cabinet post of Secretary of State, according to a reputed authentic version of the communication.

The story of the letter was unfolded here last night, apparently on high authority.

However, the tale still left the politicians guessing who would be Secretary of State in the Roosevelt Cabinet, and this was complicated last night by information that Senator Hull, of Tennessee, a possibility, had been called to Warm Springs by Mr. Roosevelt.

The letter, still a secret between Young and Roosevelt, was sent to the "Little White House" at Warm Springs by Young through William H. Woodin, president of the American Car & Foundry Co., who called on the President-elect last week.

Publication of the word that Mr. Young had asked that he be not considered for the Cabinet is understood

GOVERNMENT FACES LOAFING PROBLEMS

Chiseling Would Be Common if New Work Deal Comes, Pegler Opines.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

It is going to be pretty hard for the Government to prevent cheating by selfish citizens when the new deal is put into effect and the work is rationed in equal shares to one and all to prevent overproduction and restore the country to normalcy. It is frankly anticipated that many of the farmers will secretly cultivate more acres than their legal quota and a new detective division of the Government will be organized to gather evidence.

Just off-hand, it would seem almost impossible for a farmer to cultivate any appreciable acreage in secret, but the larcenous instinct of the citizens is most active in their contacts with the Government. The farmers undoubtedly will find a way. A citizen might not chisel his neighbors, but all classes of citizens chisel the Government, individually and in masses. Therefore, when the Government begins to pay the farmers for holding still, it will be taken for granted that they will chisel even though the chiseling involves the most laborious kind of drudgery. The new secret service will watch to see that this chiseling is kept to a minimum.

Then, of course, it will be necessary to organize another secret service to see that the members of this one do not chisel the chiseling farmers, but that is just part of the regular overhead of running a Government.

12 SHOT IN GERMAN PARADE OF FASCISTS

Jews Are Terrified at Rise of Nazis, but Deny Exodus Is Under Way.

Noers, Lower Rhine, Germany, Jan. 31 (U.P.).—A parade of Fascists and "Steel Helmets," a World War veterans' organization, was fired on from ambush here tonight.

At least 12 were wounded. Sixty shots were fired from windows of the street along which they marched.

The Fascist headquarters was attacked and windows broken. Feeling ran high.

Berlin, Jan. 31 (U.P.).—The new cabinet, composed chiefly of Conservatives, moved swiftly today to shear Adolf Hitler, their fiery Fascist leader, of some of his newly acquired powers as chancellor.

Hitler's fellow cabinet members adopted a resolution this evening urging President Paul von Hindenburg to name Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen as federal commissioner for Prussia, a post automatically held by the head of the government under presidential decree issued last July.

The cabinet's resolution urged the president to revise his decree of July 21, 1932, creating the Reich's chancellor, then Von Papen, concurrently federal commissioner for Prussia. The move would endow Vice Chancellor von Papen with the same powers which he formerly held as chancellor, and which were held in the brief

Realty Man Slain After Foreclosure

Kansan Dragged From Car and His Auto Pierced With Bullets.

Mound City, Kans., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Luther D. Marr, 67, Kansas City real estate dealer who came here yesterday to foreclose a mortgage on a farm, was found fatally wounded on a highway last night. He was taken to Fort Scott, where he died.

Marr had been shot several times with both .22 and .38 caliber firearms. His body had been dragged from his motor car, which was pierced with bullets.

The real estate man and former banker was returning to Kansas City when he was shot. His wife rushed to Fort Scott from Kansas City and was with him when he died. She said he had not been robbed.

The foreclosure was on a 500-acre farm, which Mrs. Marr said her husband had traded to J. M. Holzapfel, Colony, Kans., druggist, for an apartment house. Marr bought back the farm at the foreclosure sale yesterday.

SENATE AGREES TO LIMIT TALKS ON SUPPLY BILL

Surprise Step Paves Way for Prompt Vote on Federal Pay Cut.

AIR MAIL SLASH PLAN FAILS TO GET ACTION

Other Amendments Must Be Decided Upon Before Economy Section.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A unanimous consent agreement, sharply restricting debate on the Treasury-Postoffice bill, last night paved the way for a prompt Senate vote on the 1 2-3 per cent additional pay cut and other far-reaching economy provisions of the measure.

The agreement came as a surprise after Senator Frederick Hale (Republican), Maine, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, had threatened night sessions to clear the supply bill blockade. A session was scheduled for last night. It was called off when the Senate selected the "gag" alternative.

As a result, Senator Hale thinks the economy section, including the pay cut issue, can be reached today, and the entire bill disposed of today or tomorrow, clearing the way for short-session action on the long line of appropriation bills dammed up behind Treasury-Postoffice supplies.

May Ask Same Accord.

The appropriations chairman said he may ask the same agreement on each of the other supply bills, to make certain the slate will be cleared of appropriation matters before the special session.

The Hale agreement, reached just before recess, limits debate on the Treasury-Postoffice measure to 15 minutes for each senator and 15 minutes on each of the amendments to it.

Vice President Curtis construed this as allowing only 15 minutes' debate for the entire economy rider, attached to the bill as an amendment, and 15 minutes for every amendment to the rider.

Resolution Comes First.

Before the economy section is reached, a number of individual amendments, intended to cut down the total of the bill in line with a resolution agreed to at last week's Senate Democratic conference, must be passed on. These proposed reductions total in the neighborhood of $80,000,000.

Pending before the Senate all day yesterday, but never reaching a vote, was the McKellar amendment to cut domestic air-mail appropriations from $19,000,000 to $9,500,000.

Stanchly opposed by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut; Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), Louisiana, and others, and just as vigorously advocated by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia; Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, and others, this amendment may come to a vote early this afternoon.

Seen as Mortal Blow.

Senator Bingham contends it would be a mortal blow to commercial aviation, and put out of business those aviation concerns now operating un-

Hoover Leaves on March 4 To Fish in Pacific Ocean

Mills, Hurley and Richey to Accompany Him via Panama Canal; Mrs. Hoover to Go to Palo Alto; World Tour Planned.

Immediately after the outgoing President's part in the inauguration pageantry is finished Mrs. Hoover will be on her way back to Palo Alto and peace.

Nor will Mr. Hoover tarry in Washington long after the ceremony at the Capitol. He will not accompany Mrs. Hoover to California by train, but a few hours later will sever his connections with the Capital and leave on the first leg on an extended and restful fishing trip.

His present plans are to leave Washington shortly after the inauguration ceremonies, making connections with a liner which will take him South, going through the Panama Canal to the Pacific Coast, where he and his party, which will include Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley and Lawrence Richey, will start their angling for big game fish in the warm and teeming waters off southern Mexico.

The fishing trip will take several weeks, giving Mr. Hoover a chance for complete rest and relaxation with the knowledge that after he has packed his tackle away it will not be necessary to return to harrying problems of state.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Hoover will have arrived at Palo Alto and will have finished the work of house cleaning at the California home. On March 4, she will wait only until Mr. Hoover's part in the swearing-in ceremony is over, about noon.

Then she is planning to catch a fast train—but not a special—out of Washington for Chicago shortly after noon.

Already the task of packing most of the Hoover's household goods is completed. The necessary inventory of White House furniture also has been made. Everything will be moved out by March 4, ready for the immediate tenancy of President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt.

After the fishing trip, Mr. Hoover's plans are not definitely formed. It is certain that he will remain in the quiet of his California home for some time for a good rest. After this period of relaxation, if he goes through with present half-formed plans, he and Mrs. Hoover will start out on a trip to the South Seas and around the world. This trip will be leisurely, taking several months.

MERCHANT MARINE'S LIFE HELD MENACED

Congress Proposals Aimed at Ocean Mail Contracts Are Denounced.

Destruction of the entire American merchant marine engaged in foreign trade is threatened by proposals now pending in Congress, according to a statement yesterday by he committee of the National Conference on Merchant Marine, meeting in the offices of the United States Shipping Board. The committee, recently appointed by Chairman T. V. O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, followed the Sixth Merchant Marine Conference here three weeks ago, is representative of the shipping, shipbuilding and allied industries. Its statement is directed particularly at the subject of ocean mail contracts, appropriations for which are pending in the Postoffice-Treasury bill now before the Senate.

The statement says in part:

"Certain proposals now pending in the Congress of the United States, if not properly considered, may very easily destroy the entire American merchant marine engaged in foreign trade, with a resultant loss of millions of dollars a year to American industry, agriculture and labor.

"The present American merchant fleet has developed under the laws of Congress, one of which is an act authorizing the Postmaster General to make ocean mail contracts with essential steamship lines as a Governmetn aid to the establishment and maintenance of such lines. Forty-four mail contracts for ten-year periods have been made since 1928, when the act was passed. They constitute the very foundation upon which the American overseas merchant marine exists.

600 American Vessels.

"Under these contracts private shipowners have brought the American merchant fleet in foreign trade into splendid position, although no ship company is making any real profit at this time. Six hundred American-flag ships now operate on 70 regular lines in foreign trade, as against only 17 in 1914. Forty-one new vessels have been constructed since 1928 to modernize the American fleet and give it the power to compete successfully with foreign lines. Our merchant marine operating in foreign trade is capturing for American industry several hundred million dollars every year out of the total ocean freight bill of $500,000,000 paid by American exporters and importers.

"Under existing laws and because of these American vessels, the proportion of the annual freight bill money remaining in the United States has increased since the war from less than 10 per cent to nearly 40 per cent, which represents the relative proportion American vessels are now carrying of our own foreign commerce.

How Labor Benefits.

"And this is only a part of what the people of the United States get out of it. One hundred and fifty million dollars a year is paid to American labor as a consequence of the operation of our merchant marine in the foreign trade. Millions of dollars have been expended for ship construction in America since 1928, and the near future will see an expenditure of $200,000,000 for the same purpose. Shipping lines have invested millions of dollars of private capital to build up these ocean services —all on the guarantee that the Government aid provided by Congress in 1928 through mail contracts would be continued.

"If that aid were seriously curtailed at this time companies now operating in foreign trade would be destroyed and the United States thrown back to where it was in 1914, when it carried but 9 per cent of its own commerce. The hundreds of millions now spent by the industry in the United States would then go to the ships and people of foreign flags."

Americans' Canadian Auto Plants Believed Target of New Content Move.

London, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A Board of Trade ruling stipulating a minimum of 50 per cent empire content for goods imported duty free from empire countries was interpreted by today's newspapers as directed primarily at the United States.

Beginning April 1, certain classes of goods manufactured in empire countries and consigned to the United Kingdom must represent a minimum of 50 per cent empire labor and material before they will be admitted duty free under the empire preference tariffs. The present empire content is 25 per cent.

Some American manufacturers, the newspapers said, maintain branch plants in Canada, but only a nominal amount of work on their products is done at those plants. The Board of Trade has not yet published the new regulation which is to be enforced by the customs department.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The British Board of Trade ruling, which stipulates that Canadian exports to the United Kingdom, in order to enjoy tariff preferences, must contain a minimum of 50 per cent of empire labor and materials as against the previous minimum of 25 per cent, would particularly affect American automobile manufacturers, it was believed in Wall street today. Both the General Motors and Ford companies in Canada manufacture cars which would fall in the 50 per cent "empire content" classification, but most of their competitors do not.

More than 1,000 American-owned plants are now operated in Canada. Their investment is placed at above $1,500,000,000. Most of the country's leading manufacturers interested in foreign markets have established Canadian producing units and a majority of these would be affected by the increased content ruling.

ROOSEVELT COURSE ON DEBTS CRITICIZED

phrasing as the British bid; namely, that the war debt discussions would be "concurrent with and conditional upon" economic discussions.

The general purport of the note was cabled by Premier Mussolini to his representative here, Ambassador Rosso, and the ambassador drafted a general reply along the lines indicated from Rome. It is believed that the Italian delegation will not be prepared to come to Washington until the Anglo-American debt negotiations have either been completed or are about to be completed. The Italian note, however, purposely left all these details to be arranged at the convenience of President-elect Roosevelt. Ambassador Rosso will await further indications of his wishes in this respect before announcing either the personnel of the Rome delegation or the date of its arrival here.

It is believed, however, that the Italian debt negotiations will repose on the same quid pro quo basis as has been indicated for the other debt discussions. At the present time forthcoming debt agreements will shortly be undertaken with the British, the Italian and the Czechoslovakian governments and probably in that chronological order. The complete details of the Italian program regarding new debt agreements will probably be kept in abeyance until the final arrangement has been made on the United States-Great Britain debt problems.

Italian Ambassador Rosso will probably be named as one of the Italian delegation, due to his long familiarity with American political habits, as well as long experience at the League of Nations and the Palazzo Chigi in the midst of political and economic negotiations between Italy and other nations.

The shadow of senatorial prerogative, however, was hung on the forthcoming Roosevelt interviews with Italy, Great Britain and the other countries, and it is believed that some concessions to this important element may have to be made by the incoming administration in order to insure final approval of any debt agreement diplomatically arrived at. President-elect Roosevelt may choose to expand his committee of one so as to include one or more senators, who will in the last analysis have to pass on the project as it is worked out in the debt conferences.

This was indicated by Senator David A. Reed, who forecast himself yesterday as one of the most eloquent critics the new administration will have to face.

Even more significant, however, was the observation of one of the original Roosevelt supporters and Illinois' favorite son, Senator J. Ham Lewis. The titian-haired Lewis said:

"I remember that when President Wilson was planning to go to Paris for the treaty of Versailles, I warned him of the peril in so doing."

Liberation of Dead Man, Task Given Peru Envoy

(Associated Press.)

Ten American intellectual leaders yesterday gave the Ambassador from Peru his most difficult diplomatic task—obtaining the release from prison of a man dead six months.

The group handed Manuel de Freyre y Santander a formal petition asking that Victor Haya de la Torre be freed from prison, where they said he was being held "incommunicado."

The embassy assumed that Victor's brother, Paul Haya de la Torre, is probably the man the petition was designed to aid, as he is in prison.

The signers were Jane Addams, Prof. John Dewey, Waldo Frank, Hubert Herring, George Mitchell, Paul Kellogg, H. L. Mencken, Frederico de Onis, Jeanette Rankin and Charles Thompson.

NAVY OFFICER'S SUIT FOR $300,000 IS LOST

Court Dismisses Action by Commander Winn Against Superiors in Service.

A $300,000 damage suit in which eight high ranking officers of the Medical Corps of the Navy Department were named as defendants was dismissed in District Supreme Court yesterday by Justice Joseph W. Cox.

The dismissal came about when attorneys representing the officers, who were sued in their official capacities, demurred to the suit on the grounds that it did not state a suitable cause for action.

The suit was brought by Lieut. Comdr. Condie K. Winn, of the Medical Corps, of New York. Those named as defendants were Rear Admiral Norman J. Blackwood, retired, of Chicago; Rear Admiral Charles H. T. Lowdnes, of the Fairfax Apartments; Rear Admiral Edward R. Stitt, 1631 Nineteenth street northwest; Capt. William H. Bell, of the Navy Medical School; Capt. George F. Freeman, Portsmouth, N. H.; Capt. Charles M. Oman, of Annapolis, Md.; Capt. Holton C. Curl, of New York City, and Capt. Henry C. Curl, of Mare Island, Calif.

The defendants were charged with having conspired together to cause Commander Winn to suffer a loss of his reputation, to be passed over in promotions and to suffer a loss in pay because of the failure to be promoted when he was allegedly entitled to advancement.

Husband Sues District For Wife's Fall Hurts

The District of Columbia was sued for $10,000 damages in District Supreme Court yesterday by H. Ralph Burton, of 2631 Garfield street northwest, because of injuries suffered by his wife, Mrs. Ellen D. Burton, when she fell into a hole in the sidewalk at Fifteenth and U streets northwest, December 21, 1931.

Through Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer, Mr. Burton claimed he has incurred heavy medical expenses in treating his wife.

SENATORS CONSENT TO SUPPLY BILL GAG

der air mail contracts. Senator Norris contends the appropriation is a "subsidy" and should be thrown out if the Senate means to economize.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, has three other amendments, just as controversial, that must be passed on before the economy provisions are reached. One would cut public building appropriations $25,000,000, another would reduce ocean mail appropriations $17,750,000, and the third would require the comptroller general to review all tax refunds. It was estimated about $27,000,000 could be saved by this last, which is a modification of the McKellar proposal for congressional review of refunds left out of the first deficiency bill.

Reorganization Powers.

Embodied in the economy section of the bill is the Senate Economy Committee proposal to grant the incoming President broad reorganization powers. If agreed to, the next President not only can merge and transfer bureaus, but can even abolish agencies other than executive departments. Only concurrent action of both houses could defeat the President's executive orders.

Government employes hope they have pledged sufficient votes to defeat the threatened additional salary slash, but still are uncertain as to the outcome.

Other economy provisions being fought by the workers and the Senate Civil Service Committee include the proposal to strip the Civil Service Commission of its personnel records, leaving them to be maintained instead by the several departments.

Besides the Treasury-Postoffice bill, two other appropriation measures, Interior and Agriculture, are ready and waiting action of the Senate. The $100,275,931 Agriculture supply bill was reported to the Senate yesterday, carrying $166,000 more than the House bill, but $206,395,734 less than current appropriations.

D. A. R. HALL SOUGHT IN ATTACK ON SOVIET

Fish Attends D.A.R. Tea and Would Ask Roosevelt Not to Recognize Russia.

A tea, given incidental to the Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense by Princess Cantacuzene Speransky for members of the Daughters of the American Revolution attending the conference, was turned into a mass meeting yesterday by Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, who appeared and asked for the use of Constitution Hall next April to convince President-elect Roosevelt against recognition of Russia.

Mr. Fish said it is his intention to offset pressure from Roosevelt's own district that he recognize the Soviets.

Sees No Trade Gained.

Declaring that "recognition would mean not one dollar's worth of trade to the United States," Representative Fish said he wanted the largest hall in Washington to help convince Roosevelt against the group around him which is "telling him he must recognize that country to get out of this depression."

The tea was given to keep peace in the ranks of the dissenting Daughters of the American Revolution, who attended the defense conference after Mrs. William Russell Magna, the D. A. R. president-general, had withdrawn her organization for economy's sake.

Declaring that National economy and security lies in adequate defense, Alvin M. Owsley, past national commander of the American Legion, of Dallas, Tex., urged strengthening of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps as a prevention against future wars, last night at the annual dinner of the conference at the Mayflower Hotel.

Cites Slash Possibility.

Appropriations for national defense are in danger of being drastically cut and it is the "patriotic duty of America to see that no foolharty legislation should destroy the defensive powers of her Army and Navy," Mr. Owsley said.

He pointed to Japan's invasion of Manchuria as an example of unpreparedness and declared that it is also an example of the failure of the League of Nations.

"Outside our own Nation the whole world is apparently making preparation for war," he said.

During the afternoon session six resolutions calling for increased defensive powers to insure against attack from other nations and permanent peace were adopted by the organization.

The resolution condemned the "smallness of our standing Army" and charged that "the strength of the United States Navy has been permitted to fall to such an extent that on December 31, 1932, we had but 101 underage vessels as compared to 138 for Great Britain, 184 for Japan, 124 for France and 93 for Italy."

Decrease in Vessels.

They charged further that unless new ships are provided the United States will have in 1933 in cruisers, carriers, destroyers, and submarines, but 60 underage ships, compared to 130 for Great Britain and a like number for Japan, France and Italy.

The conference also went on record as supporting the Treaty of London, and opposed a reduction in pay of active and retired officers of the Regular Army.

During the afternoon session speeches were made by Maj. Gen. George D. Leach, Representative Virgil Chapman, of Kentucky; Mrs. O. D. Ilophant, permanent honorary chairman; Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts; Princess Cantacuzene Speransky and Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, assistant commander, United States Air Corps.

Your Income Tax

No. 2.

FORMS FOR MAKING RETURNS.

Forms for filing returns of income for 1932 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time, on or before March 15 if the return is made on the calender-year basis, as is the case with most individuals. Lowering of the personal exemption will require many hundreds of thousands of individuals to file returns this year who did not do so in 1932.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors. Persons whose net income for 1932 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their returns on Form 1040A, a single sheet. Persons whose net income was in excess of $5,000, or, regardless of amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents or sale of property, are required to use a larger form, 1040. Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayer and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is emphasized that a taxpayer engaged in a business or profession from which he derived a net income of less than $5,000 is required to use the larger form.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business on or before midnight of March 15, 1933. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

information as to what benefit commerce and industry got by paying these bank loans."

"I agree the banks have not done their duty," Pomerene replied.

"And you have not compelled them to, though you had the power," said Couzens.

Pomerene said that possibly in some cases the loans should not have been made, but that it was a matter of opinion, and challenged Couzens to point out what authority the board had to force the banks to "do their duty."

Couzens cited the law creating the board under which its loans must go to the aid of commerce, industry or agriculture.

In response to questions from Couzens, propounded in a voice so hoarse as to be barely audible, Pomerene said that up to January 28 the corporation had authorized loans to 5,200 open banks and 590 which since have closed.

The corporation, up to January 9, had authorized loans of $939,649,271 to open banks and $89,362,278 to banks that have since closed, the corporation chairman testified, adding that he could not say how much of this was actually advanced.

Losses "Inconsequential."

He told the committee $66,957,899 of the loans to banks which have closed was still outstanding, but said he believed these advances were "practically secured so the loss will be inconsequential."

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, asked Pomerene to report later the loans to banks or other borrowers in which any member of the board of the corporation, past or present, was an officer or held substantial stock.

Myles Kennedy, chief railroad expert for the corporation, testified on the collateral furnished by the railroads and revealed that in many instances it was security in other railroads being financed by the R. F. C.

The B. & O., he said, furnished collateral valued at $70,000,000 for a $39,000,000 loan, which had shrunk to $64,000,000 by December 10.

With Joseph B. Eastman, Interstate Commerce Commissioner, on the stand, Couzens presented statistics showing that 125 or 130 of the 162 Class I roads are losing money.

GARNER GETS PLACE IN CABINET SESSIONS

Roosevelt Discloses He Was Author of Vice President Inclusion Idea.

Warm Springs, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—President-elect Roosevelt will ask his running mate, the outspoken John N. Garner, of Texas, to share a seat at the Cabinet table as a part of his vice presidential office.

Informing newspapermen of this today, Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that it was he who first suggested this practice that was put into effect by President Harding in 1921. As vice presidential nominee in 1920, Mr. Roosevelt said he made the suggestion to James M. Cox, the Democratic presidential candidate. Cox announced if elected he would ask Roosevelt to the Cabinet table.

Vice President Coolidge sat with the Harding Cabinet, but Vice President Dawes did not follow the innovation. For the last four years Vice President Curtis has been at the Hoover council table.

In Mr. Garner, now Speaker of the House, Mr. Roosevelt will have a sage veteran of Capitol Hill at the Cabinet table.

This was as far as any official talk went today about the Cabinet. Surrounded by his political advisers, the President-elect joshed newspapermen about their "guesses" on the Cabinet and other offices, and said no appointments to Government jobs would be made or announced before he took office on March 4. This deadline, however, was not expected to include the Cabinet.

James A. Farley, national party chairman; Frank L. Walker, party treasurer, and Edward J. Flynn, of New York, sat with Mr. Roosevelt through the afternoon. Farley had several files on his lap and a busy time was put in, but the "lid" for news was clamped down hard.

Tomorrow the President-elect has an opportunity to go to work on the tariff reciprocity program he is preparing for the forthcoming economic conference with Europe. Senator Hull, of Tennessee, has been invited here. Prof. Raymond Moley, economic adviser, is due at the same time.

'PHANTOM BUDGET' LAID TO PRESIDENT

Boylan Challenges Claim of Hoover That Committee Boosted Estimates.

(Associated Press.)

A charge that President Hoover employed a "phantom budget" in stating the appropirations committee had boosted his recommendations $163,000,000 was made in the House yesterday by Representative Boylan (Democrat), of New York.

He joined with Blanton, of Texas, another member of the committee, in assailing the President's statement.

Boylan said that following customary practices the President supplied the appropriations committee in November with copies of the budget estimates so the first of the supply bills would be ready for consideration as soon as Congress convened.

"Then on December 6," Boylan continued, "the President sends in a supplemental or modified budget. The committee had already been working a month when lo and behold we have a new and modified budget. It was what I call a phantom budget.

"In the twelve years of existence of the Budget Bureau, no President has ever before sent in a phantom budget. Furthermore, this phantom budget has a few strings attached to it. It was predicated upon the enactment of certain legislation and the appropriations committee is not a legislative committee."

Boylan said that in not explaining this situation, the President had not been "exactly fair." McSwain, South Carolina Democrat, remarked that the President's statement was based on "a phantom budget predicated on imaginary laws."

Blanton contended that a compilation by Marcellus Sheild, clerk of the Appropriations Committee for sixteen years, showed the committee had made a total reduction under budget estimates of $69,581,000.

"Deduct the net amount added to the bill in the House and you still have a net saving under budget estimates of $66,877,000," Blanton said. "I want to challenge whoever sent that statement from the White House to the press to point out specifically how this House exceeded the budget message."

LOAFING LOOMS, PEGLER SAYS, AS BIG GOVERNMENT PROBLEM

There must always be some one to watch the watchman on a Government job.

One phase of the new deal and the rationing of the work will be an educational campaign to teach the idle citizens vocational loafing. Work, beyond the legal ration, will be felonious and unpatriotic, but the people are likely to fall into mischief and start making articles of commerce secretly unless they are taught scientific loafing. As I understand the plan, all the really great American loafers will presently be asked to give the benefit of their knowledge to the movement. The national director has been selected already. He is a famous tennis bum, who was chosen on his great record as a successful loafer over a period of years. Most of the instructors in loafing will be selected from the colonies of Newport, Southampton and Palm Beach, but there will be several Tammany commissioners on the faculty who can prove clean records, too. The staff will be rounded out with night watchmen, judges and prize-fight managers.

Penal Code Problem.

One problem that is bothering the statesmen in planning for the new deal is a satisfactory penal code by which to punish offenders who complicate the shortage of work by going in for secret work or stealing one another's work tickets. Each citizen will be given a certificate entitling him to so many minutes' work per year and no more. In this respect, the plan will be copied from the farmers' acreage plan. However, clever counterfeiters, accustomed to imitating liquor labels and revenue stamps, will be able to turn out great quantities of fake work tickets unless they are carefully watched. In that case the factories, railroads, and so forth, would run way overtime and the end of the year would show a greater surplus of goods and material than ever.

The possibility of speakeasy workshops is not being overlooked either, for it will take great vigilance to prevent underworld characters from installing lathes, machinery and workbenches and running illegal factories on secret premises. And, of course, there will always be scoff-laws to patronize them.

Prisons Would Be Havens.

Perhaps the greatest question, however, is what to do with persons convicted of working contrary to law and the public interest. Atlanta or Leavenworth, with their great workshops, quarries and the like, would hold no terrors for citizens convicted of working excessively. That would be like sentencing drunkards to life in Havana. They would pitch in and stage revolting orgies of work, giving full sway to their lowest instincts and scandals would be sure to result.

It has been suggested, therefore, that the Government take over the entire island of Palm Beach as a penal colony, with the advantage of some of the finest loafing facilities in the world. It would be impossible for them to work in Palm Beach as there is simply no work to be done there and the loafing is the most intensive to be seen anywhere.

Palm Beach, as the Government's loafing colony might become the American Devils Island, with unfortunate prisoners rolling around day and night in wheelchairs, or lying on the beach in an endless, hopeless grind of loaf, loaf, loaf.

interim regime by retiring Chancellor Gen. Kurt von Schleicher.

Von Papen, as Reich's commissioner for Prussia, can control 150,000 men in Prussia's police force. Prussia at present is ruled by the federal government as a result of internal difficulties which caused Von Hindenburg to set aside the state cabinet temporarily, at least.

Little Initial Success.

Hitler ran into serious difficulties his first day in office when Communists sought to instigate a general strife. They had little initial success, but their persistent and violent opposition to Hitler and the Fascists generally, was expected to be an increasing cause for concern to the infant regime.

The police fought with Communists seeking to hold demonstrations in several communities, including Berlin, but the incidents were regarded as minor.

Jews Are Terrified.

Berlin, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The Voelkischer Beobachter of Munich, organ of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party, predicted today that Hitler's rise to the chancellorship would bring about an exodus of Jews from Germany.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency said that the Nazi paper's report was greatly exaggerated. There is no mass migration movement among the Jews, the agency reported, although they are terrified as a result of the Hitler appointment.

Asked whether he would attempt to extradite some of the departing Jews, Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Nazi minister of interior, said: "If these people leave, that is something which we can only desire. I won't take any special measures."

Policeman Cleared In Woman's Death

Evidence Fails to Connect Him as Hit-and-Run Motorist.

Policeman William T. Schlosser, of the Ninth Precinct, was cleared of a charge of being a hit-and-run driver yesterday when Judge Isaac R. Hitt, in Police Court, dismissed the accusation when evidence in Schlosser's trial failed to connect him with the fatal injuring of Mrs. Matilda King.

Mrs. King was found dying on Massachusetts avenue northwest, near Twenty-ninth street, on the night of November 18. The following morning Schlosser called his superior, Lieut. Dennis Culzinane and informed him that he "might have been connected with Mrs. King's death. A coroner's jury held him for the grand jury, but the grand jury refused to indict him.

Through Attorney James A. O'Shea, Schlosser pointed out that none of the witnesses had testified that Schlosser's car struck the woman.

GALSWORTHY, NOTED NOVELIST, EXPIRES

Briton, Nobel Prize Winner and "Forsyte Saga" Author, Was 65.

London, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—John Galsworthy, one of the greatest of the contemporary English men of letters, died at his home in Hampstead today. For the last week he had been in grave condition from anemia which followed a severe cold contracted a month ago. He was 65 years old.

Mr. Galsworthy's physical condition made it impossible for him to go to Stockholm last November to receive in person the 1932 Nobel prize for literature.

Friends initiated a movement to give his body a final resting place in Westminster Abbey, Britain's Hall of Fame.

Relatives and two old servants were at the bedside when he died. In accordance with his wish, the windows of his room were left unshuttered.

Best known for his "Forsyte Saga," the eminent novelist and dramatist once said that "literature is its own reward." He made this statement in declining an offer of knighthood in 1928.

Galsworthy was born at Kingston Hill, Surrey, August 14, 1867, and was educated at Harrow and Oxford for the bar. At the age of 23 he was admitted to the bar, but left the profession shortly thereafter and turned to writing.

the money from the Broad Street Press, which published a paper, Finance, and in which the stock issues were allegedly boosted. Factor was not on trial and the court was informed that he was in the United States. The defense contended that Factor was the "master mind" of the alleged fraudulent collusion and that he was the one who deserved punishment.

Chicago, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Sure, John (Jake the Barber) Factor once won $640,000 in two hours at the Casino of La Tourquet, France, he said today.

In that respect, Factor said, Harry Geen, his former secretary, was correct in his testimony on trial in London on stock fraud charges.

But as to Geen's statement that he was "uneducated," Factor was indignant.

Did Factor give $50,000 a year to London charities?

"Sure, sometimes more," he said, "and furthermore, I'm making enough to give $50,000 a year here."

Factor is a market trader with offices on La Salle street, while waiting for the Supreme Court to decide whether he should be returned to England for trial on charges of bilking investors out of millions.

DALADIER'S CABINET AIDS HERRIOT CAUSE

Former Premier Now Head of Radical Socialists; New Personnel.

Paris, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The formation of a government under Premier Edouard Daladier, which was completed today, resulted in the return of former Premier Edouard Herriot to the limelight of politics, from which he had been withdrawn since his defeat on the debt payment to the United States in December.

Although M. Herriot is absent from the Daladier cabinet, the ministerial crisis brought his reelection to the presidency of the radical Socialist parliamentary group, replacing Francois Albert, who is in the cabinet as minister of labor. It is probable that M. Herriot will return to the presidency of the foreign affairs committee of the chamber.

Gets Near Premiership.

While losing the favor of the Socialists, who accuse him of wrecking their participation in the cabinet, M. Herriot is considered by his friends to be a step nearer the premiership, this time perhaps with a government more toward the right.

While the Socialists are cool toward the new ministry, it is likely they will give it their support on Friday, when M. Daladier will present his colleagues to the chamber, and then will await developments.

Provisional credits to meet the expenses of the government in February were voted today by the chamber and the senate.

The new cabinet is almost the same as the ministry headed by Joseph Paul-Boncour, which was overthrown last week on fiscal issues.

New Cabinet Members.

The cabinet comprises: Premier and minister of war, Edouard Deladier; vice premier and justice, Eugene Penancier; foreign affairs, Joseph Paul-Boncour; interior, Camille Chautemps; finance, Georges Bonnet; budget, Lucien Lamoureux; marine, Georges Leygues; merchant marine, Eugene Frot; education, Anatole de Monzie; labor, Francois Albert; colonies, Albert Sarraut; aviation, Pierre Cot; pensions, Edmond Miellet; health, Charles Dameilou; post and telegraphs, Laurent Eynac; commerce, Louis Serre; public works, Joseph Paganon; agriculture, Henri Queille. Undersecretaries: Premiership, Guy la Chambre; war, M. Hulin; national economy, Raymond Patenotre; education, Hippolyte Duco; public works and interior, Pierre Appell.

COLLIFLOWER HEADS MERCHANTS' GROUP

Mark Lansburgh, Retiring President, Cites Saving of $400,000.

James E. Colliflower was elected president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association at the annual meeting of the board of governors yesterday to succeed Mark Lansburgh, who has served for the last three years and who declined reelection. Mr. Lansburgh was presented with a watch by the board.

Other officers named were Ford E. Young, first vice president; Arthur J. Sundlun, second vice president; Brig. Gen. Anton Stephan, third vice president; Louis Levay, treasurer; Ringgold Hart, general counsel, and Edward D. Shaw, secretary.

In his report, Mr. Lansburgh declared that the association had increased its membership 20 per cent during the past year.

Mr. Shaw, in his annual report, outlined the activities of the association and declared that it had saved its members more than $400,000 during the past year.

The new president, Mr. Colliflower, has been vice president of the association for three years, and formerly was chairman of the coal division of the association.

'Corliss Palmer' Booked For Chronic Alcoholism

San Francisco, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A blonde young woman, removed from the Palace Hotel here this afternoon, was booked at the Detention Hospital here tonight as "Corloss Palmer" and registered for treatment for chronic alcoholism.

The young woman registered at the hotel several days ago, police said, under the name of Edith Mason after presenting a letter of introduction to the hotel manager. Police said they were called to remove her to the hospital here tonight as "Corliss Palmer" she was drinking excessively and a physician advised she be hospitalized.

CADETS' REGROUPING BATTLE GETS HOTTER

same way. If the change were made for the sake of appearance, that is too bad because fairness must predominate at any cost and it must be fairness to all."

Dr. Eckhardt said that the official roster of one high school, dated January 11, showed that three companies have approximately a 10 per cent advantage over the remaining ones. "And yet," he added, "Dr. Bennett is quoted as saying that the reports from various principals showed that the Cadet Corps is already being conducted along lines recommended by me as far as is practicable. If a 10 per cent advantage can in any way be construed as fair, then the committee and the principals of high schools must be correct."

Ridicule was fired by the physician at Dr. Bennett's observation that if short and tall men are placed in the same company they would have difficulty marching together. He pointed out that the length of the step and the cadence is fixed by regulation.

"Capt. Arthur C. Newman, who is in charge of the cadets in colored schools, suggested at the meeting on the cadet question last week that a medium-sized boy be placed as a right guide, thus automatically cutting down the gait to fit all," Dr. Eckhardt revealed.

Dr. Eckhardt asserted that Charles Hart, principal of Eastern High School, in a letter last December, recommended to Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer, who is in charge of the cadets, that the cadets be grouped according to size. "And yet," the physician said, "at the meeting last week Mr. Hart and the other principals objected to the uniform plan.

"Dr. Kramer admitted at the meeting," Dr. Eckhardt continued, "that there are inequities which officials are constantly trying to smooth out, and stated that he felt 'an open mind should be kept.' An open mind, yes, behind closed doors."

Dr. Eckhardt's plan calls for an entirely new grouping of cadet companies. Tall men would be placed at one end, with a gradual descent down the line to the short men. In this way, he points out, there would be an even distribution of students from all classes in the school.

"It would give each cadet a feeling of security," he declared, "and it would quiet the annual rumor that a particular high school was priming one or more companies to win the drill. The principals and Dr. Kramer have never heard this rumor. Their ears have been far from the ground."

Dr. Eckhardt declared that the suggestion that a prize be offered for February companies (companies made up of February recruits) "is like throwing a meatless bone to a dog and will eliminate the February company from its now slim chance of winning the major prize."

Every Photograph Studied Carefully in Post Contest

Interesting Snapshots and Elaborate Studio Portraits Pour in as Search Continues for 51 Girls to Share $10,500 Cash Awards.

Photographs in ever-increasing numbers are pouring into the offices of The Washington Post in competion for the $10,500 in cash awards and the usual honors that are offered by The Washington Post in its search for 51 charming girls to inaugurate the Century of Progress International Exposition at Chicago next June, under exclusive arrangements with world's fair officials.

Pictures vary from interesting enlargements of snapshots to the most elaborate of studio portraits, but regardless of the type of photograph, each and every one will be carefully judged by a committee of experts for its revelation of feminine charms that will entitle the subject to a place in the Century of Progress Court of Honor or to the exalted position of queen.

At the close of the contest The Washington Post will endeavor to return all photographs that have been accompanied by return postage, but, because of the great number that must be handled by the judges, The Post can not hold itself responsible for loss or damage to photographs. Every contestant may rest assured, however, that every precaution will be taken to protect her picture and to return it in proper condition.

Any unmarried girl or her relatives or friends may enter her picture in the contest by sending it to the "Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post," accompanied by the "Transmittal Coupon," printed elsewhere in this paper today or by the same information written upon a separate sheet of paper. There are no entrance fees and positively no cost or obligation is envolved at any time.

Fifty-one girls will be selected from these photographs and will be brought to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago for a period of two weeks as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune. Their transportation expenses will be paid to and from their homes in any part of the world and they will be elaborately entertained, under proper chaperonage, during their stay at the Exposition. They will also be beautifully gowned by leading modistes at the expense of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune.

For the opening ceremonies of the exposition at Chicago on June 1, three girls will be selected from the group of 51 to bear the respective titles of queen and first and second ladies-in-waiting. These girls will receive $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000 in cash, in the order of their selection.

Each Sunday, up to and including Sunday, April 2, The Washington Post will pay $5 to each of 10 girls whose pictures will appear in The Sunday Post Rotogravure picture section, but selection of a picture for such publication does not affect the final choice of the queen and her court of honor in any way.

The only restrictions that govern this contest are that candidates must be unmarried and that professionals, such as stage girls and artists' models, together with employes of The Washington Post and members of their families, are not eligible to compete. Photographs submitted must also be at least 6 by 8 inches in size and must have been made within the past 12 months.

CAPT. WELLS NAMED SCOUT COUNCIL HEAD

Registration of Boys Last Year Reached Record Total of 5,708.

Capt. Chester Wells was chosen president of the District Boy Scout Council at its annual meeting last night at the Willard Hotel. He succeeds George E. Hamilton, who had served five years.

Other officers chosen were George E. Hamilton, sr., Dr. Paul Bartsch, Julius Garfinckel and Samuel Kauffmann, vice presidents; George Hewitt Myers, treasurer; Ernest H. Daniel, assistant treasurer. Mr. Myers was also elected commissioner.

Additional members of the executive board are Lorne W. Barclay, Harold C. Bryant, Henry P. Blair, Harry B. Caton, Karl W. Corby, Isaac Gans, J. H. Hanna, George E. Hamilton, jr., Arthur J. May, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Dr. Walter H. Merrill, A. N. Miller, Dr. Camp Stanley, Charles H. Tompkins and R. A. Van Orsdel.

The gross Scout registration for last year, as reported by Scout Executive Linn C. Drake, was the highest in the history of the council, a total of 5,708 Scouts, as compared to 5,289 in 1931.

"The depression has at least one noble by-product," Scout Executive J. Harold Williams, of Rhode Island, said. "We have never seen a time when it was so easy to secure the services of the best type of men in every community as Scout leaders."

He urged the men to keep Scouting from becoming a "goody-goody" movement, asking them to emphasize the distinctive Scout features of boy leadership and all-year hiking and camping.

Brig. Gen. George Richards, U. S. M. C., praised Scout influence and its work in developing good citizenship in youth.

78 DIPLOMAS GIVEN AT ARMSTRONG HIGH

Dr. Thomas Brown Talks to Graduates at Midyear Exercises at School.

Midyear commencement exercises of the Armstrong High School, G. David Houston, principal, were held last night in the auditorium of the school, the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, member of the Board of Education, presiding and awarding diplomas to 78 graduates. The invocation was by Dr. Robert M. Williams, pastor of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dr. Thomas I. Brown, professor of social studies at Miner Teachers College, made the address to graduates. The class distribution, as announced by Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools, included 14 to Howard University, 20 to Miner Teachers College, 3 to Hampton Institute, 2 to Virginia State College, 2 to West Virginia State College, and 1 each to Parks Air College, Lincoln University, Morgan College, Oberlin, Freedmen's Hospital, Lincoln Hospital, Harlem Hospital, Mercy Hospital and the Philadelphia School of Embalming. To vocations direct were recorded 28.

The All-High School Orchestra gave several numbers.

The list of graduates included:

Junius Bernard Baskerville, Lawrence Clinton Butler, Cad Alonzo Coleman, Arthur Marvyn David, Melville Kinneth Elliott, Festus Douglass Everhart, Vincent Allen Frazier, James Elmer Galloway, William Walter Gross, Clarence Norman Harris, Joseph Edmond Hawkins, Elias Paige Henderson, Joseph Harrison Hicdon, John Gassaway Jones, Ulysses James Mackall, jr., Walter Lee Mackall, Kerthiel Marshall, Toussant L'Overture Mayes, James Benjamin Morris, Reuben Alonso Scarborough, James Ruthefrord Shaw, Junius Simon, Robert Earl Smith, Emmet Elmore Steiner, Charles Carr Thomas, Leroy Ernest Turpin, Boyd Washington, Gilbert Edward Watson, Berry Williams, Lenward Earl Willoughby, Douglass DuBose Wilson, Wilbourne Lawrence Wilson, George Roscoe Woodland.

DEMOCRATS IN HOUSE DIVIDED ON EARLY ACTION ON TARIFF

that the measure may be brought before the chamber for a vote.

A vote on the discharged resolution will be had on February 13, at which time it is expected a considerable group of Democrats will join the Republican minority to enforce House consideration of tariff revisions before March 4.

Matter of Prudence.

In announcing the sudden abandonment of the tariff caucus, Representative Rainey said he believed it would be best to allow all members to have the facts gathered in the Ways and Means Committee hearings before attempting a party decision on the issue.

"It's just a matter of prudence," he added cryptically.

He acknowledged, also, that he had conferred with Representative Hill after the caucus call was announced.

In discussing the Democratic opposition to the caucus plan, Representative Rainey recalled that the tariff issue always had crossed party lines. The postponement of the caucus did not mean that the party would not take an overwhelming stand against upward tariff revision some time later, he added.

Rapid Shifting of Views.

Pressed for an explanation of the sensational abandonment of the Garner-Rainey-Collier caucus, Mr. Rainey told newspapermen at another point:

"In these days and times there are rapid shifting of views on all subjects. Any man who takes a stand one day and can't change it the next simply can't keep up with developments."

The general character of the party revolt which wrecked the caucus plan is indicated by the fact that Democratic members from Massachusetts, Oregon, Texas, Washington, Illinois and Pennsylvania have either expressed their sympathy with the aims of the Hill and Crowther bills or indorsed the petition to force the question to the floor.

Garner Is Perturbed.

Speaker Garner was visibly perturbed by the determined stirrings of revolt within his party. He declined to acknowledge, however, that yesterday's developments would force the emergency tariff proposals to the floor. The delay was characterized by Representative Rainey as merely a strategic retreat.

All sections of the country and all classes of business have felt the increasing pressure of competing goods from depreciated-currency countries during the last year. Scores of petitions for emergency action have been dumped upon the Tariff Commission and many more have been filed before the Commissioner of Customs under the dumping clauses of the Hawley-Smoot Bill.

Warns of Crisis.

Characterizing the present tide of imports as portending a "national crisis," Senator Hatfield, of West Virginia, demanded immediate consideration of the emergency tariff rectification measures.

Earlier in the day Senator Schall, of Minnesota, had declared at the White House, after a conference with President Hoover, that tariff adjustments could not be long avoided.

Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, also demanded early consideration of the revision measures, declaring that further wage cuts in American industry must result if domestic producers are to compete with foreign labor paid in depreciated money.

NEGRO JUNIOR HIGHS GRANT CERTIFICATES

190 Rewarded for Completion of Course; Board Members Preside.

Three colored junior high schools, Shaw, Garnet-Patterson and Randall, held commencement exercises yesterday, a total of 190 being awarded certificates—89 at Garnet-Patterson, 56 at Shaw and 45 at Randall. Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools, presided at the Shaw exercises, gave the charge to the graduates and awarded certificates on behalf of the Board of Education.

The salutatory was said by Lawrence Holloman. Andrew Moss delivered the class oration and Highwarden Just the valedictory. Musical numbers included "Allah's Holiday" (Frimi-Riegger), "Oh, For the Wings" (Mendelssohn) and "Song of Farewell" (Kountz) by the class, and instrumental solos by Georgiebelle Coates and Felix Fowler Weir.

Student participation featured the Garnet-Patterson exercises, the welcome address being made by Marian Banks. Robert Speaks delivered an address of gratitude, while the principal address to the class was made by Jessie Coleman, Garnet-Patterson graduate, now a student at Cardozo Business High School. The Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, member of the Board of Education, presided and awarded certificates. The class farewell was said by Evelyn Dungee.

Various songs by the graduating class were conducted by Audrey Frazier, Robert Bishop, Amelia Jones and Milton Lightfoot. A vocal solo, "Morning" (Speaks), was rendered by Dorothy Johnson, and the class gift presented by Juanita Washington.

At the Randall graduation Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, member of the Board of Education, presided, and awarded certificates. Rayford W. Logan made the address to graduates, following expression by Virginia Humes, Stanley Hawkins and Elaine Harris, of reasons for selection of various high school courses. The class distribution was cited by G. C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent. Musical numbers were rendered by Randall's Little Orchestra, and the Boys and Girls Glee Clubs.

here to have caused a prompt inquiry.

Friends of Mr. Roosevelt say a check-up showed that information about the letter was revealed to only one other person, a man in public life, besides the President-elect and Woodin.

Just what is meant by Mr. Roosevelt's intimates here stressing the fact that the President-elect does not regard it a withdrawal of Young's availability for the Cabinet is something that has the leaders here guessing.

Some say it means Mr. Young goes in as Secretary of State. Others say it simply means that the President-elect is not to be embarrassed by any statement that some man is not available for his Cabinet.

WOODRUM ASKS CUT IN VETERANS' FUNDS

Luce Says 10 Per Cent Slash Would Not Equal Fall in Prices.

(Associated Press.)

A 10 per cent slash in veterans' expenditures was advocated yesterday in the House by Representative Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, drafted the billion dollar measure making appropriations to carry such independent Federal offices as the Veterans' Administration through the next fiscal year.

Reminding that $945,000,000 of the bill's huge total was for the veterans, he said "in this time of stress I think it would be good strategy for the generals of the veterans' army to be able to say that the veterans, as well as others, had given something to help balance the budget."

Woodrum said that cash benefits to veterans would be $1,081,000,00 in 1958 if the increase continued as was estimated under present laws.

Representative Martin (Democrat), Oregon, said this did not include the total for the Veterans' Administration, and that Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator, had estimated that his agency would be spending approximately four and a half billion dollars in 1958.

"If a 10 per cent cut were applied to veterans expenditures," Representative Luce (Republican), Massachusetts, said, "veterans would still be getting more than it was intended they should receive because of the decrease in prices."

Woodrum told the House that "we are at a crucial time in this country so far as veterans are concerned."

"What the veterans need today, in and out of Congress, is not additional benefits but courageous leadership," he said.

In explaining the $945,888,634 appropriation his committee had recommended for the 1934 fiscal year veteran costs, Woodrum said that up to October 31, 1932, the Government had spent $15,701,000,000 on veterans relief for all wars.

"Of this amount $5,701,000,000 has been spent on World War veterans," he said.

Woodrum said the United States has been "vastly more liberal than any of its allies," placing the average annual payment by Germany to veterans at $22 on the basis of the total mobilization and $48 on the basis of dead and wounded.

"For Canada it is $98 on the basis of mobilization and $263 on the basis of dead and wounded," he added.

"The United States pays $180 on a mobilization basis and $2,668 on a basis of the dead and wounded."

Woodrum said during his remarks that "if you wipe out all the civil government, including Congress, you would only reduce the cost of this Government 12½ per cent."

Four pieces 7-16 by 1⅛ by 29 9-16 inches, (E). Two pieces 7-16 by 1⅛ by 31½ inches, (F). Two pieces 7 1-16 by 10 by 35⅛ inches, (G). Three pieces 7-16 by 10 by 14 9-16 inches for partitions, (K). Eight butts (hinges).

Construct the central box framework by nailing pieces (A), (B) and (G) together as shown. Edges of (A) should overlap edges of (B) 7-16 inch. Nail partitions (K) in place, two between pieces marked (G), and the other between (A) and (G). Construct table tops (C) by cleating boards together with cleats (E) as shown. Hinge legs (D) to tops (C). Nail strips (F) to (C) between legs (D). Hinge tops (C) to (A). The legs may then be folded up flat against the underside of tops (C), which in turn fold down flat against (B) and (G).

Dimensions and proper locations of holes for 27 different species of birds will be found in the booklet "You Can Make It for Camp and Cottage," published by the National Committee on Wood Utilization.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

WEATHER is that element Mark Twain mentioned when he said "Everybody talks about it, yet no one ever does anything about it."

A. F. Magrum.

Weather is our conventional topic among strangers, among friends, among the farmers, among mariners, fruit and truck growers and among aviators. If we have too much weather, it is as bad as having not enough weather and so often we have either too much or too little weather. Hardly ever do we have just the right amount of weather. For all, as Wendall Hall, author of "It Ain't Goin' to Rain No More," would say "we're goin' to have weather whether or not."

Let us consider the Weather Bureau, as our friend A. F. Magrum, personnel and instruction, Agriculture, points out, weather is "quite important."

"I started into service in Buffalo at the very large figure of $20 a month. I remember that any time storm warnings were hoisted ships scurried to cover and we used to be besieged with calls until the warnings were lowered.

"The average person realizes little just how important weather information really is. Citrus and fruit growers generally watch weather reports with a 'weather eye.'

"Weather is one of our most important commodities, I'd say."

Such specification is mandatory by law."

Benjamin F. Turner, 1004 Fairmont street northwest, who has served more than 40 years in the War Department, was retired from service yesterday. Col. Alfred T. Smith, assistant chief of staff, Military Intelligence Division, War Department, general staff, presented him with a purse on behalf of the officers and personnel of the Military Intelligence Division, after which all of the division personnel congratulated him and extended good wishes in his well-earned retirement.

Born in Berkeley Springs, W. Va., December 25, 1862, Turner, in his younger days worked as cowboy and farmer. When he attained the age of 30, he came here and obtained employment in the State, War and Navy Building. He was transfererd in 1897 and became elevator conductor, and in 1903 he became assistant messenger in the office of the adjutant general.

When the war broke out, Turner was assistant messenger in the office of the war council. July 1, 1918, he was transferred to the office of the chief of staff, Military Intelligence Division, where he served faithfully as assistant messenger until yesterday.

HERE'S a brand new racket—or is it? On Thirteenth street yesterday about 12:30 p. m. we were hailed by two men in a light delivery car. They were attired in livery, caps and all. No signs on the side of the truck.

"Would you pay $40 for a silver fox neck fur?" one asked.

"We got to dispose of it," included the other man at the wheel.

No, we wouldn't be interested.

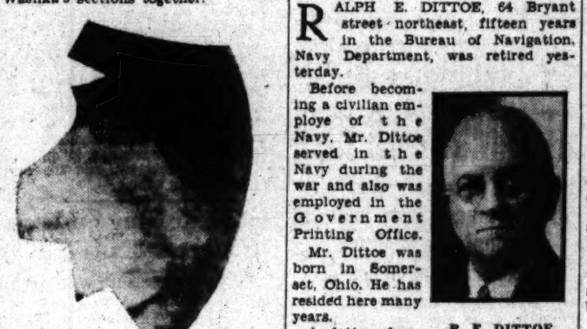
They were strictly business and in a hurry. The truck drove north. Remotely showing on the back was a New York State license tag.

• • • •

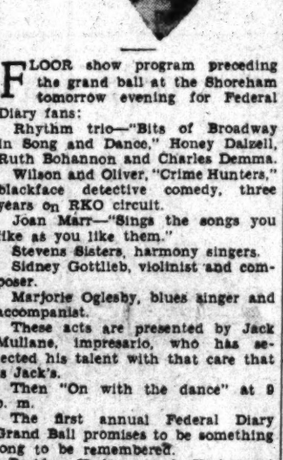
LURAY, Va., Jan. 31 (Special).—A heavily curtained auto dashed through this city soon after midnight this morning. It bore a D. C. license tag. Word from Washington showed the car belonged to Swarmi Fedd. No word has been received on the progress of Washka, the Alaskan homing bloodhound, en route from Sitka to Washington to attend the grand ball tendered by the Federal Diary Thursday night.

It is assumed that Mr. Fedd met the famous dog, the gift of an admirer in Sitka. Waskha is believed to have given Mr. Swarmi the famous hitchhiker's wigwag, whereupon the latter gave the gift dog a lift, without even looking the gift dog in the mouth.

The outskirts of Rosslyn, Va., should be reached early Thursday, if the Amalgamated Press reports can be substantiated. Last, but not least, is the seventh portion of the famous dog, so that Federal Diary readers can now do their stuff of pasting Washka's sections together.



Senator David A. Reed has introduced a bill to remove the Pulaski equestrian statue from Pulaski Park to the greensward in front of Commerce, bounded by Pennsylvania avenue, Fifteenth, Fourteenth and E streets. Gen. Pulaski, hearing of it, seems to have taken his horse by the forelock and started off to greener pastures. But then the grass always did look greener in the other pasture. We wouldn't be surprised if this isn't the way the good general will appear when removal time comes. It'll save workmen a lot of work for themselves.



FLOOR show program preceding the grand ball at the Shoreham tomorrow evening for Federal Diary fans:

Rhythm trio—"Bits of Broadway in Song and Dance," Honey Dalzell, Ruth Bohannon and Charles Demma.

Wilson and Oliver, "Crime Hunters," blackface detective comedy, three years on RKO circuit.

Joan Marr—"Sings the songs you like as you like them."

Stevens Sisters, harmony singers.

Sidney Gottlieb, violinist and composer.

Marjorie Oglesby, blues singer and accompanist.

These acts are presented by Jack Mullane, impresario, who has selected his talent with that care that is Jack's.

Then "On with the dance" at 9 p. m.

The first annual Federal Diary Grand Ball promises to be something long to be remembered.

Besides, Underwood & Underwood (you know who they are) will honor several young women with complimentary photographic poses. Just who these young women will be we do not know. Just be there and learn for yourself.

If Swarmi Fedd gets back from fields afar in time, we'll see him there, or we're a Hindu. And here we're reminded of that little rhyme:

"Consider the poor little Hindu,
He does the best he kin do,
And so he makes his skin do."

But Swarmi Fedd promises to do better than that. There'll be no slip-up, unless it is Mr. Fedd doing his stuff in his long robes. If we could only read Swarmi's mind, as he can read ours, we'd be able to tell of the tricks he has up his sleeves (both of 'em).

There are reports, too, that Mr. Fedd has sent off for a catalog revealing new tricks fresh from the craftsmen's guild. But in the meantime—

ON WITH THE DANCE!

LEADERS in Dynamite Bowling League are well-named. They're the Wrecking Crew, led by Capt. W. N. (Whattaman) Crymes. And they've increased their lead by taking Dri-Kleeners took two games from the three games from the Hill Billies.

In a closely-contested match, the Little Potatoes. The Tornadoes proved hard to beat. They took two games from the Hiandrys, with Burke H. Flinn showing the way to victory. Capt. D. H. Reichgut, Hiandrys, did some heavy bowling for the losers.

It giffs more tough luck for the Blowhards, Industrial Alcohol, still in a slump. They had "to take it" from the Sand Blowers, Internal Revenue, in two games. As a result, the Blowhards may change their names. They now hold a snappy seventh place, with the barometer fast falling.

The Lab-Katz clawed the Duds for three games, with Capt. G. F. Beyer shining. C. W. Tyler was the best Dud. Honor roll (sets over 300):

Crymes, 345; Chipouras, 343; Long, 337; Beyer, 330; Al Jones, 327; Simpson, 323; Clayton, 320; Flinn, 316; Reichgut, 315; Meisbach, 313; Shelton 312; Grigsby, 311; Linder, 308; Steers, 308; Bradshaw, 305.

Blessed is he who eats in a Government cafeteria with a railing to keep the "jumpers" from jumping those in line ahead of them. They do say that is why Navy Secretary Adams eats in the Navy Department cafeteria. The game of checkers goes steadily on. Commerce has no rail. If you spy a weak spot in the line ahead, it's every man and woman for himself or herself and the hindermost get what's left.

Have you any jumpers in your cafeteria line?

We know Helen is an "addict" to the riding path and fresh air and we rather suspect she has been tempted to "take the stick" while up, but not as yet belonging to the Caterpillar Club, we are a little surprised that, although escaping that thrill, Helen met such a "crackup" while indulging in such rather prosaic joys of a bobsled, but they do lose control sometimes, they say.

RALPH E. DITTOE, 64 Bryant street northeast, fifteen years in the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, was retired yesterday.

R. E. DITTOE.

Before becoming a civilian employe of the Navy, Mr. Dittoe served in the Navy during the war and also was employed in the Government Printing Office.

Mr. Dittoe was born in Somerset, Ohio. He has resided here many years.

A letter from Rear Admiral F. B. Upham, chief, Bureau of Navigation, read as follows:

"The bureau takes this opportunity of expressing its appreciation of your loyalty and faithful services during your fifteen years in the bureau, which includes service as member of the Naval Reserve during the World War, and congratulates you on your retirement."

FOUR walls are usually sufficient space within which to carry forward laboratory research. Not so for F. C. Meier, plant pathologist, Agriculture. He has taken a series of airplane flights to discover to what height spores might ascend to elude scientists. Spores are minute primitive reproductive bodies and are a potentially serious menace to crops of various types.

He reports finding them at heights that ranged from 2,000 to 18,000 feet and the arrested spores prove to be of the variety that attack tomatoes, potatoes and fruit. In these experiments, which resulted in gathering much significant information concerning the effect of wind currents and altitude on spore spread, Dr. Meier had the cooperation of the Army, Navy and Coast Guard airplane services.

Part of the pregrand ball entertainment tomorrow evening at the Shoreham for Federal Diary readers will include the blackface act of Paul Oliver and Louis Wilson, "The Crime Hunters," presented by Jack Mullane. Jack assures us that even as good as Paul and Louis are in running down crime, they may have to call upon the services of Swarmi Fedd if they get a problem too perplexing. The skit artists are shown in one of their lighter moments, minus the blackface effects.

SERGT. JOSEPH SAMUEL JOHNSTON, one of the three first bicycle policemen of Washington and one of the first precinct detectives appointed when this system was adopted, was retired yesterday, at the age of 64 years, from Metropolitan Police Department. He left the force with a spotless record after 37 years' service, well liked by superiors and subordinates.

Appointed January 3, 1896, after several years passed as drummer (they called them in those days) for a brother's factory in Denver, he shortly afterward was appointed one of Washington's first bicycle policemen trio. He is the last of the trio to leave the force. Capt. Walter Emerson, who retired as captain, Thirteenth Precinct, and Bennie Williams, deceased, were others of the trio who were given a roving commission. At the time of its formation the trio were as important an addition to modern policing as the radio car of the present day.

About 1901 the stationing of a plain-clothes man in each police precinct was decided upon, and Sergt. Johnston became first plain-clothes man, Ninth Precinct, which, incidentally, was the scene of most of his policing endeavors. He also served at the Sixth Precinct for 6 years and at the Second Precinct for 11 years. He was promoted to be sergeant on July 16, 1913, after having served as acting sergeant for several years.

Sergt. Johnston has been officially commended seven times and on many occasions has received favorable comment from citizens and organizations.

The only time he appeared before the Police Trial Board he was cited for failing to arrest a policeman who later was charged with having been intoxicated. He had been informed that the policeman had been struck with a brick by a Negro and had gone to call an ambulance when the policeman left the house where he found him. At the trial official Washington appeared in full force to declaim his uprightness and most of the high officials of the Police Department as well as many of his fellow policemen were on hand to testify to "Sam's" probity. He was acquitted by the Trial Board after his trial had been turned into an ovation.

He is a native of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., and is a son of a family old in Maryland and Virginia history.

From W. E. Buffington, comptroller, Postoffice Department, comes this information:

The legislative furlough deductions of at least 1¼ days' pay for each semimonthly pay period shall not cease or be discontinued until 24 such days have been deducted or until the employe is separated from the service. If, at the time an employe is separated from the service the total amount of legislative furlough deducted exceeds 1¼ days' pay for each working day's absence on legislative furlough and also exceeds 1¼ days' pay for each semimonthly pay period since July 1, 1932, the amount of such excess shall be refunded to the employe at the time of his separation from the service, or to his estate. The 1¼ days' legislative furlough deduction for the last pay period, or the pro rata part thereof when the separation is effective on a date other than at the close of the pay period, shall be made. The number of legislative furlough days and the amount refunded to the employe shall be entered on his regular salary voucher on a line immediately under the last payment and included in the voucher totals the same as a regular semimonthly payment. No refund may be made when the actual time taken (furlough days absent, No. 4) is equal to or in excess of the furlough days deducted.

And in Commerce is this information from Wharton Moore, administrative assistant, foreign and domestic commerce:

In order to step up the completion of the legislative furlough deductions, 2½ days' pay instead of 1¼ days' pay will be deducted for the periods ending February 18 and February 28. This will apply only to those from whom the minimum of 22½ days' pay (18 days' furlough) has been deducted through January 31.

4 MORE GOVERNORS TO BE AT INAUGURAL

Grayson Says Contract for Stands Noted Union Labor as Dispute Arises.

Four more State governors yesterday notified Ray Baker, chairman of the committee on distinguished guests of the inaugural committee, that they will attend the inaugural ceremonies. This makes a total of 16 governors who have advised the committee of their intention of being here.

Those whose replies were received yesterday are Herbert H. Lehman, New York; J. C. B. Ehringhaus, North Carolina; A. G. Schmedeman, Wisconsin, and John G. Pollard, Virginia.

Arrangements for advancing the success of the inaugural ball were discussed at a meeting of the State, Senate and Congressional Women's committee of the ball committee yesterday. The group, which is headed by Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, decided to get in touch with delegations coming to the ceremonies and make certain that every section of the country will be represented at the ball.

Union Labor Specified.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson declared last night that he would not enter the controversy between contractors constructing the parade stands and carpenters who demand higher wages for the work. His statement read:

"The work of constructing the inaugural stands was let under contract providing for the employment of union labor and, wherever practicable, resident of the District. There was no other stipulation as to wage that should be paid.

"Bids were received by Waddy B. Wood, and the contract awarded to Skinker & Garrett. It is the committee's understanding that under the terms of the contract the firm is using union labor. There the committee's part in the matter ends."

Scale on Private Jobs.

Work on the stands went on yesterday despite the difference between union representatives and the contractors. The contractors said they had several hundred carpenters holding union cards who were willing to work for $8 a day instead of the $11, which George Myers, business agent of the union, declared was the union scale.

According to the contractors the $11 scale is paid to men working on Government projects, while $8 per day is the wage paid on private works in the District. Although a strike of all union carpenters has been called, the work is going on.

MRS. STEWART FUNERAL.

Funeral services for Mrs. Elinor C. Stewart, wife of Representative Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield, N. J., will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral.

Mrs. Stewart died Sunday in a Baltimore hospital. The services will be conducted by Bishop James E. Freeman. Private burial will follow the services.

SERVICES FOR A. F. HOLT.

Internal Revenue Auditor to Be Buried in Glenwood Cemetery.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today for Arthur Freeman Holt, senior auditor of the Internal Revenue Department, who succumbed to a heart attack last Friday while visiting at the Congressional Library.

The services will be held at the residence, 62 W street northwest. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery. Dr. R. Y. Nicholson, of the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church, will officiate.

Mr. Holt had been senior auditor in the Revenue Department for 17 years. He was 65 years old. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ella F. Holt, and a son, Irving A. Holt, both of Washington.

JOHN E. DAVIS BURIED.

Funeral for Well Known Athelete Is Held at His Home.

Funeral services for John E. Davis, 26 years old, well-known amateur and semipro athlete, who died Saturday in Providence Hospital, were held yesterday at his home, 905 C street northeast. He was buried in Lincolnia, Va.

He had been employed by Judd & Detwiller for 11 years. Surviving him are his parents; his widow, Mrs. Virginia Davis; a son, John; a brother, George L., and four sisters, Elsie, Susie, Lily and Jessie.

Medal Calls Roosevelt Thirty-first President

Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the thirty-first President of the United States, arguments to the contrary notwithstanding.

Or at least he will be designated thus on the official inaugural medal, and not the thirty-second, as some historians would have him.

The difference in opinion in the counting of Presidents rising out of Grover Cleveland's administrations, he having been elected President four years after his defeat in the initial running for a second term.

Cleveland is listed as the twenty-second and the twenty-fourth Presidents in many histories, but only one medal was cast for him by the mint.

So Roosevelt will be the thirty-first President, according to the medal, and the thirty-second—if Cleveland is counted twice.

FORCED 5-DAY PLAN IS PUT UP TO HOUSE

Ambitious Jobless Remedy Is Unlikely to Reach Vote This Session.

(Associated Press.)

An ambitious legislative attempt to spread employment by compelling all industry and business to limit working time to five six-hour days a week, was put up to the House yesterday, but its chances of reaching a vote this session were dim.

The highly controversial plan, denounced as unconstitutional and revolutionary by many, has been given no preferred place on the House calendar, and the leaders are not disposed to make room for any legislation difficult to pass that has not already been promised a vote.

But Chairman Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts, chairman of the Labor Committee, which approved the bill yesterday, announced he would try to advance it anyhow.

The bill would achieve its purpose by making liable to a $1,000 fine or three months' imprisonment or both, any person knowingly transporting in interstate or foreign commerce commodities or articles produced by workmen employed for longer than six hours a day, five days a week.

So vast is the Nation's distributing system that the measure's sponsors say it would affect virtually all workers, particularly those employed in the manufacturing industries.

The constitutionality of such a proposal has been repeatedly challenged before the congressional committees. The most pointed indicator of what the Supreme Court would rule has been the decision that Federal legislative prohibition of child labor exceeded the limit of power conferred on the Government. Sponsors of the legislation have argued that more liberal sentiment on the Supreme Court since the time of that decision might uphold the regulation if made law.

While the House committee acted a Senate committee heard John P. Frey, secretary-treasurer of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor follow up his charges of banking dictation over American business with the statement that Morgan bank interests and the Chase National Bank hold through a pyramid of interlocking directorates virtually complete domination of the country's industry and labor.

He backed up the charge with a detailed analysis of the directorships held by partners or officials of these two units at the top and then down step by step through large banks and industries to small ones. He compared the organization to that of Army divisions, brigades, regiments, companies, down to corporal's squads.

Cadwallader Dyer Buried in Capital

Six Members of Rifle Club Act as Pallbearers at Final Services.

With six members of the National Capital Rifle Club, of which he was honorary president, acting as pallbearers, Cadwallader C. Dyer, who died Sunday at his home, 1440 Kennedy street northwest, was buried yesterday in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Dyer, who was 61 years old, took an active interest in the rifle organization and was a member of the National Rifle Association. He entered in competitions and rifle tournaments throughout the country and was recognized as an expert shot.

Mr. Dyer was a member of the District National Guard and last year won his distinguished rifleman qualification. He is survived by a sister, Miss Bertha O. Dyer. Pallbearers included Raymond Davis, president of the National Capital Rifle Club; T. G. Arnold, secretary-treasurer; Ralph H. McGarity, M. H. Willcher, George Borreson and Sergt. Alex Thill.

John H. Wolff Dies; Civil War Veteran

Clarendon Man Was Also Active in Several Fraternal Organizations.

John H. Wolff, 87, Civil War veteran and active member of several fraternal organizations, died yesterday at his home in Clarendon, Va.

He was a member of the Federal Lodge, No. 1, F. A. A. M.; Burnside Post, No. 8, G. A. R.; Capitol Lodge, No. 24, Knights of Pythias, and president of the New York Volunteer Cavalry Association. He is survived by three children, William E., Fred A., and Minnie C. Wolff, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at Ives' funeral chapel in Clarendon at 3 o'clock tomorrow. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Druggists Offer Trial Size of New Antiseptic by Vicks; A 25c Value for Only 10c

Furnish Mouthwash and Gargle Users With Proof of Quality and Amazing Economy of Latest Product by Makers of VapoRub.

NEW BAN ON HALITOSIS

Does All an Oral Antiseptic Can and Should Do—At Half the Usual Price Of Other Quality Antiseptics.

Local druggists are introducing a new antiseptic, made by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. It is called Vicks Voratone Antiseptic. It does everything that an oral antiseptic can and should do—and at half the usual price of other quality antiseptic mouth-washes and gargles.

Of course, the only real proof of the economy and quality of Vicks Antiseptic is actual use in your home. To furnish this proof druggists everywhere are being supplied—below cost—with a special trial size bottle. It contains 2¼ ounces—a 25c value. The price of this trial size is only 10c—while they last.

No extravagant claims are made for Vicks Antiseptic. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce—aided by the chemists, bacteriologists, and pharmacologists of their 16 allied organizations in America, England, and Germany.

Mild Enough, Strong Enough

These scientists examined the whole field of oral antiseptics. Some they found were too weak. A few were too strong for regular use in the mouth. Most were very good. But all were much too expensive.

So they produced a balanced antiseptic—mild enough to be used day in and day out without risk to delicate membranes; yet strong enough to do everything an oral antiseptic can and should do.

For All the Usual Uses

You can use Vicks Antiseptic in your customary way, for bad breath (halitosis); as a mouth-wash; as a gargle; as an antiseptic lotion for minor cuts and abrasions; and for all the other customary uses of an antiseptic of this type.

And Vicks Antiseptic has this additional unique advantage . . . born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly. The regular size is a large 10-ounce bottle—a usual 75c value—but is priced at only 35c.—Adv.

DEATH OF PHYSICIAN BLAMED ON POISON

Dr. L. R. Martin Is Apparent Suicide at His Office; Leaves Two Notes.

Apparently a suicide from the effects of a violent poison, according to Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, Dr. L. Ricaud Martin was found dead in his recently outfitted offices at Harvard Hall, 1650 Harvard street northwest, yesterday afternoon.

Pending issuance of a death certificate, Dr. MacDonald is awaiting a report from the District chemist on the contents of the viscera of Dr. Martin. An autopsy was performed last night.

Dr. Martin, who is understood to have been in the midst of an effort to reestablish himself in medical practice here after a series of vicissitudes, left two notes which were found by police.

Both were apparently addressed to his wife, Mrs. Mary Martin, of Wichita, Kans., from whom he has been estranged. One of them read:

"Darling—I am going out, but I love you and little Jean. I am glad to die. Our furniture is divided up." This was signed Rickey.

The names of George Rice, 1224 Connecticut avenue northwest (with whom Dr. Martin made his home); Gladys Gill, 1763 Columbia road northwest, and Smith's Furniture Co. were appended to the note.

Another note found by police was addressed to "My Dear Mary." It spoke of financial difficulties and the help of friends to reestablish the doctor. The letter concluded that despite the advice of these friends "I have taken divorce action."

Dr. Martin's body was found by a patient, Paul Harding, of 3501 Connecticut avenue northwest, who had come to keep an appointment.

Dr. MacDonald said that investigation had developed that Dr. Martin had been under treatment during the past two years for various nervous disorders. His mother is Mrs. Marian Martin, former secretary to the late Senator Oscar Underwood.

Arkansas House Kills University Head Ouster

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The Arkansas House today decisively defeated a resolution aimed at ousting President John C. Futrall of the University of Arkansas and criticizing foreign-born members of the faculty.

General Sales Tax Plan For Maryland Discussed

Senate Finance Committee's Budget Hearings Also Study Proposed Law to Limit Cost of County Elections; Welfare Report Attacked.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 31.—A general sales tax and a law to limit the cost to the counties of elections have been discussed during meetings of the Senate Finance Committe on the budget, it became known today.

The sales tax was suggested in lieu of luxury taxes, on the ground that luxury taxes would not produce enough revenue and that the sales tax would not react against any interest. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie has already approved the luxury tax and disapproved the sales tax, but his new plan of relief for Baltimore city will require more funds than the luxury tax proposed would yield. It is thought likely that the southern Maryland senators, whose tobacco-growing constituents have objected to the luxury tax on tobacco, may back the alternate sales tax plan.

The law to limit the cost of elections would not affect the State budget, but would render a saving to the county governments. The cost would be reduced by limiting the amount of rent paid for polling places, by requiring school houses to be used for this where practical, and by limiting the amount paid to judges and clerks of elections.

Another economy measure was actully introduced in the House, providing that the banking commissioner shall not employ special counsel, but shall use special assistant attorneys general, who shall not be paid more than $300 per month. A second House bill introduced today provides that contracts between manufacturers and retailers, affecting the retail price of goods, shall be legal and recognized by law.

The Senate session was marked by an attack on the printed report of the board of the public welfare, and by the introduction of a bill affecting the use of the lateral road fund in the counties. Senator David G. McIntosh, jr., challenged the necessity of several pages of statistics which appeared in the report, and pointed to the board's appropriation of $975 for printing. He moved that the report be submitted to the committee on retrenchment of governmental expenses, but was ruled out of order because the report was not a paper before the Senate.

The road fund bill was introduced by Senator Joseph Allan Coad, of St. Marys. It differs from the administration's program only in minor points. Senator Coad's bill provides that the counties themselves shall determine what proportion of their lateral road allotment shall be spent for maintenance and what part for bond retirement. The maintenance money shall not be more than was spent in 1931, however. It leaves unchanged the arrangements whereby the State Roads Commission actually spends the money.

The name of Florence Hall, of Bethesda, was sent to the Senate by Gov. Ritchie for approval as notary public.

The Republicans in both houses have formed a joint minority steering committee to consider the road bills proposed by Gov. Ritchie and the alternative measures sponsored by the County Commissioners' Association.

40 Seamen Arrested For Mutiny in Java

Batavia, Java, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Forty seamen aboard the Dutch cruiser Java and two Dutch destroyers were arrested for mutiny today and put ashore at the Sourayaba Naval Base.

A number of men in the crews of the three vessels refused to turn out for parade in protest against a recent pay cut. Many returned to duty after the commander of the Java had spoken to them, but the forty men persisted in their refusal to obey orders. This afternoon the ships proceeded to sea for exercises.

John R. Mitchell Dies; Was Reserve Official

Minneapolis, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—John R. Mitchell, 65, Federal reserve agent in Minneapolis and chairman of the board of directors of the Ninth Federal Reserve Bank, died of a heart attack at his home tonight. Surviving are his wife, a daughter and two sons.

Mitchell was appointed by the late President Warren G. Harding in 1921 to the Federal Reserve Board at Washington and served two years, when he resigned. He was named chairman of the Ninth Federal Reserve Bank board of directors on September 1, 1924, the post he held at the time of his death.

ARLINGTON INSURES FIREMEN IN COUNTY

Board Also Approves Plan to Borrow $5,000 for School System.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The county board yesterday provided insurance for members of the eight fire companies in the county.

The policy accepted from the American Indemnity Co. carries provisions for a payment of $25 a week for a period of 52 weeks, $500 for hospital expenses, and, in case of death, the sum of $3,500 to the estate.

The board approved the request of the school board to borrow $5,000.

The semimonthly pay roll amounting to $10,500 was approved.

The semimonthly business meeting will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday.

Stockholders of the Brumback Realty Co., meeting in Clarendon last night, elected the following directors: Fred A. Gosnell, Mrs. Pearle W. Sharpe, Paul Randolph, Arthur C. McMillen, William S. Hoge 3d, Ashton C. Jones, jr., and Norman Ames.

The board will meet soon to elect officers.

Patrick Burke, of Aurora Heights, Arlington County, who was seriously injured when struck by an automobile at Nineteenth and M streets northwest, Washington, on December 14, is reported regaining his health at Walter Reed Hospital.

Rio Grande Treaty Soon to Be Signed

Long Dispute With Mexico Over Boundary Now Drawing to Close.

Mexico City, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The long-drawn-out boundary dispute between the United States and Mexico is now rapidly drawing to a close, for it is expected here that both nations will soon sign a treaty defining the exact boundary which for many years has been uncertain because of the changing river bed of the meandering Rio Grande.

An official announcement by the State Department in Washington and another by the foreign office here are expected tomorrow.

The signing of the treaty will mark the last major accomplishment of United States Ambassador Clark before he leaves for Washington on February 4 to resign.

MONTGOMERY FARM BUREAU MEN PICKED

Darby Sworn In as Successor to County Commissioner Hilton, Who Died.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4200.

Directors for the Montgomery County (Md.) Farm Bureau were elected yesterday at the annual meeting in the Courthouse at Rockville, Md. One director was elected from each of the thirteen election districts and six delegates-at-large were named.

Those elected and the district they represent are: Ulysses Griffith, Laytonsville; R. L. Hickerson, Clarksburg; Joseph D. Byrd, Poolesville; E. T. Clagett, Rockville; G. R. Canby, Colesville; Thomas C. Darby, Darnestown; R. C. Riddick, Bethesda; Calvin Bready, Olney; Lee M. Howes, Gaithersburg; Chester Clagett, Potomac; W. W. Hodges, Barnesville; E. S. Walker, Damascus; D. W. Simpson, Wheaton; L. A. Darby, J. W. Jones, Wilson C. Poole, L. C. Burns, George C. Fry and T. C. Kelley, delegates-at-large.

Granville Thompson, William Hines and Stanley Stabler were elected delegates and Walter Magruder, Wilson Poole and Ulysses Griffith alternates to the annual meeting of the Maryland State Farm Bureau Federation.

Representative Jess Busby, of Mississippi, of the House committee on banks and currency, was principal speaker. Other speakers were Charles T. Cockey, president of the Maryland Federation; Miles Fairbank, secretary-treasurer of the State group; Dr. R. A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland, and Josiah W. Jones, president of the local group. Considerable business of interest to farmers was transacted.

Richard Edwin Darby, whose appointment by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to fill out the unexpired term of the late County Commissioner Clagett C. Hilton, for the third commissioner district, has been approved by the State senate, yesterday was administered the oath of office by Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the county circuit court. Mr. Darby then was seated with the board of county commissioners at its regular meeting and participated in the activities of the board. He will serve until the fall of 1934, when a successor will be elected for four years.

The commissioners received a petition from Dr. Frank H. Shultz, of Chevy Chase, for a permit to operate a private club and community house at the former Bradford Home School property, Brookeville road and Taylor street, Chevy Chase.

CONSTANCE BENNETT.

Hollywood, Calif., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Seeking rest and quiet, Constance Bennett, film star, will sail from San Pedro for Europe February 4 aboard a freighter, the S. S. Deistdyk.

The actress will arrive in Liverpool February 28, going from there to London and thence to Paris, where she will spend several weeks. She will be accompanied by her husband, Marquis de la Falaise, and a secretary.

Although she will cross the ocean on a freighter, friends said she probably would return aboard a regular transatlantic liner.

2 Kidnaped in $10,000 Silk and Truck Theft

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Robbers stole a truck containing $10,000 worth of silk in West Thirty-sixth street today, kidnaped the driver and his helper, and turned them loose only after the silk had been taken from the truck, which was then abandoned.

The truck and silk were owned by the National Silk Dyeing Co., East Paterson, N. J.

The kidnaped men were Anthony Oliver, the driver, of Paterson, N. J., and Albert De Lotto, of Garfield, N. J.

ARMY MAN SHOOTS BRIDE AND HIMSELF

Maryland Post Corporal Attacks Maid in Home of Commandant.

Fort Hoyle, Md., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A Fort Hoyle corporal today shot and seriously wounded his bride of six months and then turned the pistol on himself, inflicting injuries that may prove fatal.

The shooting took place in the kitchen of Brig. Gen. Ernest D. Scott's home, where the wife was employed as a maid. Gen. Scott is post commander.

Army officials said the wife, Bina Sims, 19, a native of Tacoma, Wash., recently had refused to see her husband, Clarence H. Sims, and had ordered him not to come to her living quarters in the general's home.

Today, Sims, 33, a native of Athens, Ga., asked her to "talk things over," but she again refused.

With her refusal, he whipped out his pistol and shot her, the bullet taking effect near the heart. He then shot himself near the heart.

Gun Battle's Victim Accused of Assault

More Arrests Are Expected Today in Running Fight Near La Plata.

Warrants charging James Wilmer, of Alexandria, Va., with assault and breaking in with intent to rob were issued yesterday as Charles County officials announced they had learned the identity of four of the seven persons who engaged in a gun battle with a farmer two miles north of La Plata, Md., early yesterday.

The warrants against Wilmer were sworn out by Sheriff Robert V. Cooksey, who is investigating the shooting. Wilmer is being held in La Plata jail. He was slightly wounded in the battle, but is suffering more from exposure and lacerations he received when he ran into a barbed wire fence, according to Magistrate Robert E. Lee Reich, who issued the warrants.

Sheriff Cooksey said he had learned the identity of the others with Wilmer during an investigation yesterday near Wilmer's home. None of the others has been arrested yet, but he hopes to seize them today, he said. The only woman with the six men was identified by Wilmer as his sister, Mrs. Ruth Wilmer Padgett. He maintains he does not know the others.

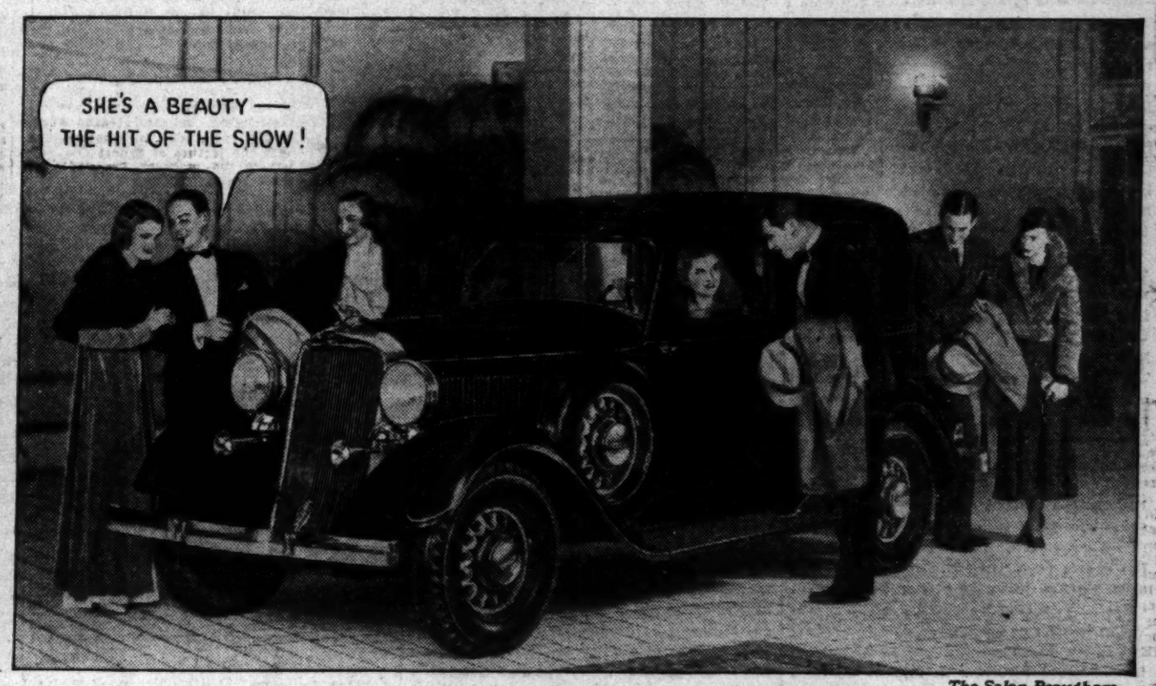
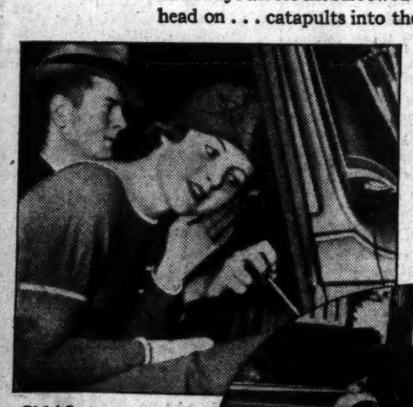
★ THE BIG NEW DODGE SIX ★ ONLY $595 ★ JUST A FEW DOLLARS MORE THAN LOWEST PRICE CARS ★



The Salon Brougham

POWDERS HER NOSE IN A SAND-PIT—WINS BEAUTY HONORS AT SHOW

WE CALL it punishment pit—this desolate tract of gritty sand—slashed with hub-deep ruts—the toughest place to test a car. But watch the new Dodge Six whirl through it! At high speed, she streaks by like lightning. Thumps the sand in a swirl of dust. Lurches and sways across the furrowed surface. Meets the bumps head on . . . catapults into the air . . . crashes to earth. And comes through smiling every time!



It takes real, thoroughbred quality to live through torture like that. Lesser cars have quit cold ...gone to the scrap heap . . . after as little as 11 minutes of this nightmare. But the big new Dodge Six is still going strong, after 600 hours of it!

You'd never think this rough, two-fisted car is the same one that walked away with the beauty honors at the Auto Show. But it is! For all its grit and stamina, it has sleek, trim lines—smart, dazzling looks. And were people amazed when they learned how little it costs!

Seems like a miracle!

After you've looked at this big new Dodge Six—driven it—you'll say "It must be an expensive car". It's big, roomy yet it costs but a few dollars more than the lowest priced automobiles! Only the combined genius of Walter P. Chrysler and the great Dodge organization makes such a seeming miracle possible.

Climb into the luxurious salon interior of the big new Dodge Six. Let your eyes feast on its stunning fixtures. Sink into its soft, deep, restful upholstery. It's the last word in comfort!

Now drive it! What a thrill! You've never known anything like it. Zip...it gets away like a flash. Lightning fast in second—like a shot in high. But smooth—all the way, all the time. Floating Power engine mountings banish vibration.

Try that automatic clutch.* Was ever driving easier? You can be lazy. . . drive without ever using your left foot. And how blissfully quiet you ride! The gears are quiet in all speeds—even reverse—free from clash and grind and noise. The very springs are hushed! Special "Oilite" springs, with metal covers, can't squeak.

Every safety feature!

And what security you can enjoy in the safety of this big new Dodge Six! It has a Mono-piece steel body. That means strength. There are no joints to squeak or loosen. Duplate safety plate glass windshield—non-glare, shatter-proof. Its double-drop, bridge-type frame is ten times stronger than ordinary frame construction. And it provides a new low center of gravity that enables you to take hair-pin curves with safety.

And the brakes—of course they're hydraulic, with centrifuse drums. They are weather proof, quick acting, and positive. You wouldn't want anything else these days. You'll rave about them. They stop in the snap of a finger; they're always equalized, always balanced—always sure! And there's much less danger of skidding.

From bumper to bumper, this big new Dodge Six is a quality car . . . at a radical low price that sets an amazing new standard of value!

See it—drive it—today!

Go to your dealer today! Find out how easy it is to make this big new Dodge Six your own. You don't have to buy. Be as hard-boiled and as skeptical as you like. We'll leave it to your own good judgment if it isn't this year's—or any year's—best automobile buy!

*Automatic clutch optional. All closed models wired for Transitone radio.

Engine vibration makes the car "jitter". Hard on nerves; hard on the car. ★ Smooth—no vibration with Floating Power engine mountings.

Shh! Just try to hear the gears! You can't. They're quiet in every speed, even reverse. No clash, no grind, no noise.

THE BANKRUPTCY BILL.

It is unfortunate that the House gave so little attention to the bankruptcy reform bill. It is a measure of vital importance. A number of railroad companies and many corporations may be reorganized under its provisions. Thousands of debtors may be saved from formal bankruptcy. The House took note of the dire need for emergency legislation of this character and passed the bill under suspension of the rules. Its haste may compel the Senate, whose program is already clogged with appropriation bills, to revise the measure to guard against abuses.

For several years the administration has been advocating a tightening up of the bankruptcy laws. Merchants, professional men and individuals have been defrauded on a large scale by unscrupulous debtors who resort to bankruptcy proceedings. No action has been taken to prevent these abuses. Now it is necessary, because of the piling up of debts and the inability of many debtors to pay in these hard times, to loosen the bankruptcy law. The House bill provides that debtors may go before the courts and seek relief without going through the formal procedure of bankruptcy. Its purpose is to facilitate the adjustment of debts under the protection of the Federal judiciary.

No one who is acquainted with the debt burden under which the American people are staggering will take issue with the motive behind this bill. President Hoover urged its enactment in the most emphatic language. It has the approval of President-elect Roosevelt and most members of Congress. But that does not remove the necessity for safeguards to prevent fraud and injustice on a grand scale. The most careful scrutiny is necessary to avoid abuses under the guise of debtor relief.

Two controversial sections of the bill would enable the courts to disregard the wishes of creditors and stockholders. If an individual certifies to the court that he is unable to pay his debts, hearings may be held and an inventory of his assets taken. The debtor may propose a plan for extension of his time for payment or adjustment of the debt. If a majority of the creditors agree, it will become binding upon all of them. But the bill also provides that the court may put the debtors' plan into effect without the consent of the creditors, if the court believes it to be for the best interests of all concerned. Likewise, it would give the courts power to reorganize companies, even when a majority of the stockholders object. The constitutionality of this provision is open to question.

The American people have implicit trust in the Federal courts. It may be assumed that those tribunals will administer this measure judiciously, if it is enacted. But Congress ought to use every precaution against loopholes that might give rise to abuses or result in an adverse decision in the Supreme Court.

LABOR AND THE SOVIET.

The American Federation of Labor does well to reiterate its determined opposition to recognition of Soviet Russia. Powerful interests are at work trying to convince President-elect Roosevelt that trade with the Soviet offers a way out of the depression. The Soviet government is using all manner of propaganda in the hope that it may be recognized by the incoming administration at Washington and secure more credit and wider markets in this country.

Efforts have been made to change the confirmed attitude of organized labor on this subject through propaganda purporting to show that new jobs would be created by extension of trade with the Soviet. But labor leaders have not been deceived. William Green, president of the Federation of Labor, makes the following answer:

> The masses of the people realize that trade is based upon a reciprocal relationship. If more manufactured goods are sold to Russia we must, in turn, buy from them. That would mean that labor in the United States would suffer through the importation of goods produced and manufactured by Russian labor under intolerable conditions of employment and at an indefensible, low rate of wages.

Recognition of the Soviet would be a blow to American farmers as well as to workingmen. Russia has almost nothing this country can buy that is not supplied in ample abundance by American enterprise. There is little danger of Soviet competition with the highly developed American industries. But such commodities as coal and agricultural products may be dumped upon the American market by the Soviet monopolies at prices that would ruin the most efficient domestic producers. A few manufacturers of machinery might reap profits from sales in Russia, but when those probable gains are weighed against the certain losses to workingmen and farmers, the scales tip heavily against recognition.

Labor is right, however, in contending that the issue involved in recognition of the Soviet is not commercial. It is one of principle. The Soviet adheres to a policy of world revolution and the establishment of Communism by force. It will not disavow that policy. The United States can not extend the hand of friendship to a would-be assassin merely because the assassin is not now powerful enough to commit the crime which he has planned.

MERCHANT MARINE ASSAILED.

Amendments proposed by Senator McKellar to the Postoffice-Treasury appropriation bill threaten to destroy the American merchant marine. He proposes that the Postmaster General be required to negotiate with holders of mail contracts with a view to reducing these contracts by 50 per cent, failing which the Attorney General would be required to bring suit to test the validity of the contracts. It is also provided that the Postmaster General in no event shall pay during the next fiscal year more than 50 per cent of the sums paid on these contracts during 1932.

The merchant marine has been developed by the twin policy of lending money at low interest rates to shipbuilders, and contributing to the cost of operation by granting mail contracts. Forty-one new vessels have been constructed with the aid of Federal loans. About 600 ships flying the American flag operate on 70 regular lines, carrying about 40 per cent of the total of American ocean freight. In 1914 only seventeen lines were in operation, and only 9 per cent of American freight was carried in American vessels.

The cost of the 44 outstanding ocean mail contracts is about $20,000,000 a year. This assistance enables ship operators to compete with foreign ships, which have lower operating costs. By means of the mail contracts many commercial lines are kept in operation, affording outlets for American products and keeping freight money in the United States instead of sending it abroad. The merchant marine as a whole has been developed by these policies, so that a modern fleet of respectable size and including some very fast vessels is ready to assist the Navy in case of emergency.

If it is the sense of Congress that the merchant marine should receive no further aid, the new policy should be declared, to take effect after the expiration of existing contracts. It is not seemly that the Government should attack the validity of contracts it has made, and upon which the other contracting party has laid out millions in good faith. A suit to upset the mail contracts might cause the Postmaster General to hold up all payments, which would work great injustice to contractors who are depending upon the Government to perform its part of the bargain that has been made.

JOHN GALSWORTHY.

Many years are required to evolve the ultimate measure of any writer, but at his death it appears that John Galsworthy will occupy a prominent place among the novelists of the present age. He has restored the novel to a high plane from which it was falling. Some of the deep currents of human emotion that run through the pages of old masterpieces may be found in Galsworthy's sagas, yet he deals with modern life and current problems.

It has been Galsworthy's task to project the elemental struggles of human nature into the confused environment of the present day. His novels bristle with current-day perplexities. The strain of modern life upon human nature is his theme. Without giving any attention to the voluminous rubbish that pretends to expose modern life, and without departing from experiences with which most of his readers are familiar, Galsworthy presents an admirable picture of modern society. His characters are neither supermen nor criminals, but men and women who speak and act as real personalities in a perplexing world.

Galsworthy has proved once more that life itself is interesting without artificial adornment and without appeal to baseness or indecency. He has given to literature a new strength of reality in an age when thousands of less able writers are searching the world for mere sensation. If some of his books lack depth, it may be said that he is dealing with a transitional period when ideals and standards are in a state of flux. It is quite probable that when the future student wishes a picture of English life in the period which has just passed he will be sent to Galsworthy for the most faithful portrayal.

GOOD SERVICE PENALIZED.

With the House of Representatives more or less somnolent and indifferent, Mr. Taber of New York succeeded in attaching to the Army appropriation bill an amendment which practically imposes a penalty upon all former enlisted men who have become commissioned officers. The amendment cuts off the extra pay allowance of 5 per cent for every three years of service by enlisted men prior to receiving their shoulderstraps. Thousands of experienced enlisted men in France won their commissions by organizing and training unfinished recruits. The work performed by these emergency officers was invaluable, and saved thousands of lives.

Since 1838 the United States has recognized the value of experience in the Army by granting a longevity allowance, which eked out the regular pay. The House amendment now proposes to strike out this allowance, which would reduce the pay of many officers to less than the amount they received years ago in lower grades.

Congress is granting hundreds of millions to veterans who are none the worse for their war experience. Disease contracted years after the war is made an excuse for handing over liberal allowances to veterans. This practice reduces the sum total that might be allowed to veterans actually suffering from their war service, and also increases the Treasury deficit. In the face of this inexcusable extravagance, the House votes to deprive officers of pay they have earned by arduous service, much of it as enlisted men. Every one of these men deserves reward for having had the energy, faithfulness and ambition to become an officer. The annals of the Army have been made glorious by their deeds in years gone by, and during the World War.

As a matter of decent recognition of extraordinary service the Senate should reject the House amendment.

THE PRESIDENTIAL TERM.

Every time the Constitution is amended a thousand new changes are proposed on the theory that one amendment calls for another. All the Constitution tinkerers in the country are aroused to action. Congress is importuned to mutilate the fundamental law and then patch it together with newfangled rubbish.

Senator Pittman was encouraged by the ratification of the so-called lame-duck amendment to revive a scheme to extend the term of the President to six years. The theory behind this movement is that a President spends his first two years in formulating his policies, and his second two years in preparing for re-election. Neither point will stand analysis. President Hoover's policies were, for the most part, already formulated when he was elected. President-elect Roosevelt will not wait two years to put his program into effect. The details of it are now being worked out, and he expects to call an extra session about a month after his election to enact it into law. Most Presidents are elected on policies that have been worked out and approved by the people.

If a President is able to cope with the problems that are presented to him, he does not need to waste much thought upon a renomination. In his campaign for re-election he stands upon his record, making an accounting for his stewardship. The people have an opportunity to decide whether he should remain at the helm for another four years or step out and let the opposition party administer the affairs of the Government.

The length of the presidential term has been frequently discussed ever since the debates in the Constitutional Convention in 1787. But no one has offered a better plan than the four-year term with eligibility to re-election. Lincoln summed up the arguments against long fixed terms for public officials when he said:

> By the frame of the Government under which we live, this same people have wisely given their public servants but little power for mischief; and have, with equal wisdom, provided for the return of that little to their own hands at very short intervals. While the people retain their virtue and vigilance, no administration, by an extreme of wickedness or folly, can very seriously injure the Government in the short space of four years.

Six years would be too long for a mediocre President. If the people elect a man who can retain their trust and confidence through four years in the most difficult position in the world, and he wishes to serve a second term, there could be no reason in frustrating the will of both the people and the President.

Now come the melancholy days when Cabinet candidates gradually readjust themselves to the hope of becoming temporary assistants in the Seed Loan division.

House Democrats have postponed the tariff caucus for a couple of days, to afford members an opportunity to change their minds.

They order these things better in France. Premier Daladier has already organized a cabinet, ready to be thrown out next Friday.

AMERICAN ISLANDS

From the Boston Transcript.

When Representative Underhill, of Massachusetts, suggested that the Virgin Islands be given their independence he was probably thinking of St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John, the three largest of the islands bought from Denmark by the United States in 1917. But these are not the only Virgin islands that are owned by the United States. Two others of the many in the group were acquired from Spain along with Puerto Rico. All told there are about 100 of them. Tradition has it that Columbus, who discovered them, was discouraged when it came to finding the names of saints in sufficient numbers to go around. Of the entire group, the United States owns about 50. Great Britain owns 32. But many in the possession of each power are mere bits of uninhabited land. The British islands have a population of about 5,000. The inhabitants of the islands the United States bought from Denmark number 22,000.

It was of the Danish purchase that President Hoover said after his visit to the islands, "When we paid $25,000,000 for them, we acquired an effective poorhouse comprising 90 per cent of the population." But it did not occur to the President to tear the poorhouse down and leave the islanders without shelter. He added, "Nevertheless, having assumed the responsibility, we must do our best to assist the inhabitants." Senator Bingham thinks they would be helped were the United States to give them such a permanent form of government as is contemplated in his bill, which was under discussion in committee when Mr. Underhill made his suggestion. It was promptly met by Lieut. Gov. Lawrence W. Cramer, who said that he did not think the islanders wanted to be separated from the United States.

But Mr. Underhill's remark serves useful purpose as did the President's allusion to the poorhouse. Having assumed responsibility for this little group of people on the three islands of the tropical sea, it is well that the American people should be reminded from time to time that the islands are on the map and that their inhabitants are entitled to consideration.

If You Must Fight a Bear, Why Kid Yourself and Carry a Rabbit Gun?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS isn't written for the jobless. Failure to understand things can't make their plight any worse.

It is written for more fortunate people who are courting misfortune, for themselves and the jobless too, by waiting for a ship that won't come in.

Do you appreciate facts if they are disagreeable? Would you be more safely solvent today if you had known all the facts in 1929?

Very well, then. Consider the state of affairs in the year 1912.

There were very few cars. Nobody had radios or electric refrigerators. Stockings were silk only half-way to the knee. Wages were low. There were strikes, and some men were jobless. Liquor was being outlawed by industry. There was no "crime wave." The word billion was seldom used.

But times were "normal." Nobody was afraid. And the national income—that is, the money everybody "made" as wages, salaries, rents, dividends and profits, was $33,000,000,000 a year. Out of this income the people paid to all branches of government the sum of $2,000,000,000 in taxes.

Last year the national income was $56,000,000,000.

Why, then, is the Nation poor and afraid with an income of $56,000,000,000 if it was prosperous and secure with an income of $33,000,000,000?

Here is part of the answer.

Corporation indebtedness is now $80,000,000,000.

Farm mortgages total $10,000,000,000.

Other real estate mortgages total $34,000,000,000.

Bank loans amount to $37,000,000,000.

The total of all government bonds is $35,000,000,000.

The States owe $1,680,000,000.

Our 145 largest towns owe $1,303,000,000.

And smaller towns, school districts, counties, families and individuals probably owe another billion or two.

The interest charge on this vast indebtedness at 4 per cent would be over $8,000,000,000 a year.

And taxes, in the meantime, have grown to over $12,000,000,000 a year.

Deduct interest and taxes from our national income and we have left only $36,000,000,000—about where we were in 1912.

We had boon times because we lived on borrowed money. Now it would take us over five years to get our debts paid if we used money for nothing else.

These are the facts we must face. We aren't ruined. We are merely spoiled and scared. But we must return to 1912 standards until we create enough new wealth to pay for our drunk.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Bankruptcy Reform.

New York Journal of Commerce.

Amendment of the bankruptcy act along the lines urged by President Hoover in his message to Congress ought to be voted by Congress without delay, since the recommended changes are not of a character to arouse partisan opposition or provoke time-consuming debates. President Hoover has asked for speedy action in order to stay the process of forced liquidation through bankruptcy and foreclosure sales of property belonging to corporate and individual debtors. His proposals, however, are not mere emergency devices. They are suitable and desirable reforms, which have long been needed and fit within the framework of the laws that govern normal debtor-creditor relationships.

No argument of those who have been pointing out the mounting cost of expenditures for veterans could be half as effective as news dispatches from Washington showing an increase of $18,000,000 for the current year. This amount was reported to the House by its appropriations committee.

The sad part about the whole affair is that nothing can be done about it as long as present laws remain in force. However, if the Congress continues to give such concrete facts to the populace through the medium of the press something may be done about it.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thoughts on a Couple of Modern Books—Not True to Real Life.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having had to grub for a living during most of my life I have not had as much time as I would have liked for the reading of light literature, so called, of which I have been very fond; especially, I must confess, in the form of swashbuckling fiction.

But while recuperating from a recent bad cold I went out of my way to get a line on up-to-date story-telling by reading a couple of well-advertised modernistic stories; namely, "Grand Hotel" and "The Good Earth."

Having already been entertained by these stories as presented in the movies, I had a suspicion that they did not represent a school of fiction suitable for family reading. And I am sorry to say that on reading them the suspicion was more than justified.

"Grand Hotel" is a recital of human badness in the shape of unrelieved debauchery. It is only true to life in its unnatural aspects. There is not a solitary gleam of the human goodness necessary to make any work of fiction true to life as a whole and worth while as a pastime, and the worst of it is that the implication of the story is that all hotels are sinks of iniquity.

"The Good Earth" is even gloomier than "Grand Hotel," though not quite so vulgar. I suppose its author and those readers who admire that sort of thing may think it philosophic, and it is a fact that it does read something like a trustworthy biological study of a Chinese farmer who is hero enough to be good to his concubines and wrest a fortune from the soil he loves.

I do not think this modern class of gloomy literature is likely to be as harmful as we may imagine, assuming that the young people of today are not too weak-minded to rate it at its true worth. My great objection to it is that it is beyond question depressive, and that is an especially bad thing at the present time. In my opinion any spirit of depression tending to moral disintegration in the books the public reads may have a much more serious effect in relation to the economic depression than the average citizen will be ready to concede. What we want is the courage and tenacity of old-fashioned morality. PATERFAMILIAS.

Favors Old-Fashioned Saloon, Sawdust Floor, Brass Rail and All—Better Than Speakeasy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am in favor of the return of the old-fashioned saloon with the swinging doors and everything out in the open. If we do not have the saloons we will surely have the speakeasies, and don't let any one fool you in regard to that. The return of the saloon will result in additional taxes for the State and will be a boon to the real estate business. The saloon was the poor man's club and meeting place.

There was less evil in the old saloons than there is today in the speakeasies, which far outnumber the saloons of the past. You would never find young girls of 16 and 17 drinking straight whisky in the saloons, as you do today in the speakeasies.

If there were men in the old days who spent all of their wages in a saloon on Saturday nights, they were in the minority, and they are still doing the same thing today in the speakeasy, only they are paying more for their drinks and are receiving a poorer quality of liquor. So why should the majority of poor men be deprived of their clubrooms for this reason? GEORGE W. GRAHAM.

THE NEW Jelleff's

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man, found by a lioness and raised with her two cubs, Ruka and Dogo, becomes the leader of a pack of lions. His raids on the natives' cattle cause them to lodge a complaint with the deputy commissioner, Martin Sefton, who relays the complaint to his superior, Loudon Grant. A Canadian newspaper publisher, Horton, is intrigued with the idea of a lion-man and offers 500 pounds for his capture alive. A vetgran Dutch hunter, Cloete, succeeds in capturing Kaspa and leaves him with Sefton to be tamed.

CHAPTER XI.

THE young man undertook the taming of Kaspa with kindliness and understanding. He went to the window and talked to the captive as he would have talked to a restive horse.

Kaspa had now been for some hours in a darkened room, away from the prying eyes of natives. He had taken a liking to Sefton. He was different in appearance from the people who had captured him, and he had a pleasant voice. Kaspa, like all wild things, was disturbed by jarring noises. In hate and fury he had suffered the degradation of being carried over the veld like a dead buck, stared at by evil-smelling natives. He hated Cloete, who had caught him and killed his friend Mala, and the natives he both hated and despised.

He would accept nothing at their hands. But Sefton was different. He made soft conciliatory noises as a lion makes to a stranger when he invites him to share his kill. He walked softly, talked softly, and was very ready with smiles.

Kaspa knew what a smile was, although before this he had never seen one. His alert man-brain began to understand that this small, soft-skinned person was a friend or at least desirous of being friendly. As for Sefton, his astonishment had now turned to an intense admiration for the lion-man.

A lover of art and poetry, he saw in Kaspa the embodiment of beauty and romance. The strength, stature and supple grace of him were enthralling; the thought of what he had been and how he had lived was romance. Sefton's mode of address became less like that of a man soothing a worried horse, and more like that of a schoolboy talking to an athletic hero.

Kaspa responded by smiling. It was wonderful. Sefton loved him from that moment. It was as though a magnificent maned lion had smiled with all the charm of a beautiful woman.

Sefton marched straight into the house, seized a jug of milk from the table, and entered the prison, locking the door behind him. It was not until he looked up from his task that he began to be afraid. Kaspa had risen soundlessly to his feet and was watching him. Sefton put the jug down quickly against the wall and prepared to defend himself. For a long moment he stared at the lion-man with fear in his eyes, before he realized that there was no need for his warlike preparations. Kaspa was watching him steadily, but there was no anger in his gaze. Sefton picked up the jug and approached the other, holding it outstretched.

The lion-man reached out an arm like a lion's paw and with a sudden sweep caught him by the wrist. So viselike was that grip that the milk jug remained upright in the hand that was powerless to move it. He was convinced that his end was at hand—that in another moment he would be torn limb from limb. The giant caught his other arm, and he was drawn against that massive chest. Kaspa held him motionless and looked down into his eyes. He saw fear and a desperate courage there.

Kaspa smiled and loosened his grip. Sefton expelled his breath in a long sigh as he felt that terrible grasp relax. He steadied himself on trembling legs and proffered the jug in both hands.

"Drink, old man, for God's sake," he said, through dry lips; "you must be famished."

The trite words amused him, and he laughed shakily. Kaspa discovered an unexpected pleasure in that sound. He knew what laughter was, and knew it indicated pleasure. If this man was pleased with him, it was a comforting thought.

He took the milk jug, peered into it, and drank. He had never tasted milk before, and he found it pleasant. He had been four days without water, nothing very terrible for him, but uncomfortable, certainly. He emptied the jug, opened his fingers and dropped it to the floor, where it smashed into three pieces.

"Great Scott! Don't break the crockery!" cried Sefton. He laughed hugely at the wild man's indifference to the fate of the jug once he had done with it. Kaspa laughed with him—a low peal of merriment that rang like a bell in the closed room. Sefton hurried to the door.

"Now wait there, old chap," he said. "I'm going to bring you some food. I can't have a guest in my house with an empty tummy." He disappeared through the door, and Kaspa watched him curiously. This man was certainly different from any one he had seen before. The continual chattering sounds he made were strangely familiar. For instance, one expression, "old chap," stirred vague memories in the lion-man's mind, memories which he could not capture, but which seemed oddly connected with dreams. He revolved these dreams in his mind.

When Sefton reappeared at the door with a loaded tray in his hands, he said to him, "Mummy!" Sefton nearly dropped the tray. "Good God!" he whispered, and then: "Oh, I say, my poor old chap! What an awful business?"

He set the tray down on the floor, shaking his head, sorrowfully. It had suddenly occurred to him that Kaspa was a man like himself; but an adult man, with the mind of a child. He watched Kaspa take the meat and bread off the tray and eat it, much as a monkey would have done.

"Dear, dear," he muttered, "we must do something about this. Poor fellow knows nothing—hopelessly unsophisticated."

It was characteristic that Kaspa's condition was brought home to him more by his lack of table manners than by the fact of his total ignorance of any known tongue.

He made several trips to the kitchen before the lion-man's appetite was satisfied. Then he sat down by him and tried to make him talk. His efforts were frustrated by Kaspa curling himself upon on the ground and falling asleep. Sefton fetched a rug to throw over him, then he locked the door of the room and set off over the veldt to Cloete's camp.

He found the Dutchman about to start his dinner. Sefton explained that he had made friends with Kaspa and had induced him to eat and drink. Cloete was delighted.

"Now that he is tame it will be easy!" he cried. "I will telegraph for a lorry to come up from Chola, and then we just put him on and take him to the coast and ship him to Canada."

"But how?" Sefton objected. "You can't ship a perfectly sane white man to Canada in a crate, and if you let him travel like a passenger he will act like an anthropoid ape at a party. What does this man Horton want to do with him?"

Cloete did not know. Horton had offered 500 pounds for the capture of the lion-man and his shipment to Montreal. Cloete was obeying instructions; he accepted no responsibility.

"Well, you can't ship him in a cage, that's final," declared the commissioner. "I'll see what I can do to civilize him before the lory gets here. If I don't succeed in inducing him to go of his own free will, he stops here. You have no more right to lay forcible hands upon his person than you have to catch a Bomogo and ship him off to Canada in a box."

"All right, Mr. Sefton," said Cloete, submissively.

Sefton went back to his own dinner, thinking hard. He had taken a violent fancy to Kaspa. It seemed to him quite certain that no one would be able to handle the lion-man as well as he could. The thought of training and educating a mind so plastic as that of the wild man was most intriguing—and imagine what a friend to have; what noble instincts to implant and the fruit to be reaped from them when they had matured in the soil of thought and knowledge! Imagine sitting talking to a man who had lived the first 20 years of his life as a wild lion!"

Sefton could not bear to miss these things, but he hardly saw how he was to prevent Kaspa being taken away from him. He had no money other than his pay and the small sum he had saved up for his leave, due in another month. This man Horton could find Kaspa's friends, or perhaps parents, for there was no doubt in the commissioner's mind that the wild man had once been a European child stolen away from its kin at an early age. Horton was reputed wealthy, and he could do more for a protege than a penniless government official in an up-country station. He supposed it was to Kaspa's interest that he should go to Canada, but Sefton was hanged if he was going to let him be carted about like a wild animal. He would devote his best efforts to training the lion-man in the week before the lorry arrived, and if necessary he would accompany his charge to the coast—he could take that amount of time off, anyway.

The next morning after he had given Kaspa his breakfast and spent an hour trying to talk to him, he had another thought. He went into his office and sent off two telegrams. The first was to Loudon Grant, and read:

"Accept my resignation take effect immediately. Send successor at once."

The second was to James Horton, at the offices of the Canadian Observer:

"Your specimen obtained. No animal, but white man. Ship Montreal absurd, as free citizen. Am bringing personally by first available ship."

He signed this Commissioner Nyoka, and had no doubt that Horton would understand what had happened. Having given the messages to his clerk with instructions to rush them, he went back to Kaspa and proceeded to inform him of his action.

"I've chucked it all up, old man, the work of years; but I'm not sorry. I'd rather go with you out into the world than stay here safe and comfortable, any day. Supposing I can find your people, perhaps they will get me a job somewhere, and supposing I can't, by gad, we'll go on the vaudeville stage together and make pots of money breaking horseshoes and throwing cannon balls about."

Kaspa looked at him and smiled. He did not understand a word of it, but he knew that Sefton loved him, even as Ruka and Dogo did.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WHITE INDIANS AND ALBINOISM.

WITHIN the last ten years the newspapers carried stories about white Indians found in the eastern part of the republic of Panama. Some claimed that this discovery threw new light on the origin of the early Americans, and it was considered important enough to warrant bringing some of these white Indians to the United States, that they might be studied.

These white Indians have been well known for more than 200 years. In 1699 Wafer wrote a book, "Darien," in which he told his observations of Panama and parts of South America. He not only accurately described the white Indians, but he told how they came about.

As a matter of fact, the white Indians are merely albinos. They mate and their progeny are albinos. The eugenics laws of albinoism are given in textbooks on eugenics. Furthermore, among families born to parents who are not albinos there is an occasional child who is free from pigment. This is in accordance with the De Vries laws of sports, or discontinuous variation. If two albinos born of non-albino parents marry, there is a likelihood that their children will be albinos. All of this is in the books.

Furthermore, the eugenics laws of inheritance of albinoism hold true among lower animals as well. Lincoln Park, Chicago, has been maintaining a flock of albino deer for many years.

But let us have some of the statements of Wafer:

"There are white and there are some of both sexes; yet there are but few of them in comparison to the copper colored, possibly but one to two or three hundred.

"Their skin is a milk-white, lighter than the color of any Europeans, and much like that of a white horse. Their eyebrows are milk-white also and so is the hair of their heads and very fine withal. Their eyelids bend and open in an oblong figure pointing downward at the corners and forming an arch or figure of a crescent with the points downward. From hence and from their seeing so clear, as they do on a moon-shining night, we used to call them moon-eyed. For they see not very well in the sun, poring in the clearest day, their eyes being but weak and running with water if the sun shines toward them; so that in the daytime they care not to go abroad unless it be a cloudy, dark day. But notwithstanding their being thus sluggish and dull and restive in the daytime, yet when the moonshiny nights come, they are all life and activity, running abroad and into the woods, skipping about like wild ducks and running as fast by moonlight, even in the gloom and shade of the woods, as the other Indians by day.

"They are not a distinct race by themselves, but now and then one is bred of a copper-colored father and mother, and I have seen a child of less than a year old of this sort."

Wafer discusses and rejects the theory that this albinoism resulted from a cross between an Indian and a white. He also gives the Indian folklore as to the supernatural origin of their peculiarity, but does not say that he agreed to it.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Palm Beach cunnings—the linen hat and scarf embroidered in colored wools, the hat brim a decided point. Below, a hat and bag of closely woven straw, straw, straw-colored, too; and a couple of other winter-summer novelties! (Selected in Paris.)

THE most expensive pair of slippers for Miladi's arched and slender little feet might, of course, be solidly covered with diamonds or seed pearls, or something of the sort. But the most expensive and subtly elegant ones on record were those recently on display in London, priced at $2,500, and valued far more for their loveliness, made of the breasts of humming birds!

A long time since Plutarch wrote, in his Egyptian Symbolism—a hundred years or so A. D. that the husbands of that time found it a simple matter to keep their wives home by the expedient of hiding their shoes—it being considered indecent for a woman to show her unclothed foot to the public eye! Today husbands hide their pocketbooks, especially in London—and wives consider it indecent to show feet clothed in anything but the proper shoe!

This summer it will be considered not only decent, but healthy and chic, to show as much of the foot as possible to comfort. Soles and heels and a thong or two will be about all Miladi will wear—at resorts, anyhow. On her feet, silly! And not to be considered a sandal, my deah—far from it. 'Twould take many more thongs for any of these new summer slippers to be worthy of being called sandals!

The humming birds' plumage that made the elegance of the above-mentioned slippers are an indication of the heights to which footwear has been elevated. When Miladi's footwear is elegant, it is. When it is practical, it is practical, and no fooling about its practicability, even though said usfulness is so well disguised by style and elegance that it is hard to see—but not hard to feel.

Outer skins of the hides of animals have been discarded for the inner layer, in favor of suppleness and beauty—and if a shoe material sports a mystifying name—you can guess that it should be merely "sub-doeskin" or something of the sort—if it weren't for the fact that would be too descriptive! It has even been found that while an alligator may not have nine lives like the cat, he finds such a toothsome morsel when opportunity affords—he has nine skins—or layers of skin, rather, all of which may be peeled and utilized for some part or other of Madame's footwear.

* * * *

The question for the last several seasons has been, where to wear one's hat. This summer it will be where one's brim points—whether up or down or out or ahead—so long as it points somewhere! There is one sketched for you today—pointing somewhere, and with a matching scarf of linen, gayly embroidered in colored wool, fluttering 'most anywhere.

Or match your summer hat with the bag—both in a coarse woven straw—the straw coarse, the weaving fine, if you follow me.

And as to ro-o-o-o-o-ound bags, who doesn't like 'em! Or crushed leather belts, with a crush on its buckle, as it were—where the belt is drawn through.

* * * *

Have you a little Nautch dancer in your home? Or a fat Buddha, or a fee-rocious dragon? Well, you can have ten of 'em all—and a lot more exotic designs, too, by simply sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for this week's leaflet of Oriental designs.

'SMORE ABOUT PINS.

In 1843—the importation of pins into England was forbidden, imagine! But somehow or other a certain Tilsbury started making them at Stroud in 1636. In the centuries between, you can be sure that Miladi was not without her pins—obtained surreptitiously from France. Then the London Pinmakers Corporation was organized in 1636. More manana.

THE BONUS FOR PART-SCORE.

ONE of the revolutionary methods in Duplicate is the awarding of a bonus of 100 points for the making of a part-score. In the opinion of qualified authorities, this change will tend to almost revolutionize the game, particularly in board-a-match play.

A hand played in the team-of-four event of the recent tournament of the American Bridge League is an example of methods of experts with the part-score bonus. The hand gave Mr. Waldemar von Zedtwitz, former president of the American Bridge League, an opportunity to display his skill.

The bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
1♡	Dbl.	2◇	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	2♡	Dbl. (1)
Pass	Pass (2)	Pass

1 and 2—The basis on which the match was played explains why North doubled the two diamond and two heart bids, and why South left the final Double in.

After North doubled two diamonds, South naturally realized that West had no diamond suit and that he could make a game in Diamonds, but this would net only 400 points, while a set of 2 tricks would amount to 500 points. As it happened, South could have made a Small Slam in diamonds if he guessed that suit right—that is to say, if he had played the highest diamond through Dummy and finessed. A Slam certainly was not biddable, and was not bid at any table.

As it happened, East could have been set 2 tricks, but both the North and South players missed their chances repeatedly.

The play: (Figures after plays in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

1—Bad. Should have continued spades.

2—Should have led a diamond.

3—Should have trumped and led a heart to set East 1 trick, anyhow.

Had South led the club King to the second trick, when he still had a trump, he would have been able to set East 500 points. The club King lead to the fourth trick was decidedly bad. South should have counted out the North and East hands, and should have known that North had at least four hearts and four diamonds. A continuation of the spade suit would have forced East to lose 3 club tricks, 3 spade tricks and 1 diamond trick, and he still would have had trouble with North's four trumps.

On the tenth trick, North still had a chance to set East, and should have trumped the spade lead and led another trump. The set would have amounted to only 1 trick at that stage, which was not sufficient to make up for the games scored at the other table.

TOMORROWS HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

I INTENDED yesterday's resume to be the last of the reducing series, but no set of reducing instructions is really complete without an article on lines. For without actually taking off a single pound, the right lines can make one look 20 pounds lighter and inches trimmer.

While you are reducing, your stanchest ally will be found hiding right in your own clothes closet, providing the lines of your dresses, coats, hats, even underthings and accessories are right.

Hat, Hair and Necklines.

If you study yourself lengthwise in a full-size mirror, from tip to toe you'll find that there are many lines to take into consideration. First, for instance, your hat. What does it do to your face? Make it narrower or wider? Hats can be draped to an up and down movement making the face look much longer and taking away from too much fullness. Coiffures ditto. For instance, the center part definitely makes the face look fuller. Hair brushed behind ears makes the face seem wider. And so on.

Then we come to the neckline. See how high, round necklines tend to make the face look wider. Then try the V neckline and notice the improvement. The same thing applies to necklines of dresses, and necklaces of beads or ornaments. The choker type necklace can make a slightly full face and neck look positively and unattractively fat. While the long necklace with medium-sized beads carries the eye lengthwise and works wonders.

The Shoulders.

The shoulders. Here's another line to worry about. Particularly this year with the puffed sleeves and epaulets which stout women should have the courage to avoid. These lines carry the eye straight across and only exaggerate any width across the shoulders.

From shoulders down, we come to waist. There should be no left to right lines interrupting this space. Short jackets, boleros, bands or trimmings should be avoided. Furs should be of the very flat variety. Long ties, scarfs, jabots, the long, wide V neckline with contrasting vestee inserted are fine for women with large bust.

Belts are best avoided as they break the line and carry the eye across. The narrower, the smarter and better should be the code of stout women.

From waist to hem have lines going lengthwise. As a matter of fact, one long sweeping line from neckline to hemline is very slenderizing. V lines pointing downward are very good. If the "down with the waistline" movement should succeed and land somewhere around the hips, please do not accept it. I mean you stout women with width across the hips. And no draping or trimming there. Bad! Wear your skirts quite long. And even in shoes, the strap slipper will make your feet look wider, while the opera pump will slenderize.

Colors are important, too. My very complete bulletin on "fashion hints" has innumerable helps for you. My color chart is also yours for the asking. Large, return envelope needed, with one stamp for each bulletin.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

A HOME ensemble that has much charm and modishness.

The pattern provdes for the dress and the apron.

The dress is exceedingly simple to make. And as for the apron, it cuts practically in one piece.

In the sketch, you'll notice the apron matches the trim on the dress.

A blue and white cotton print made the dress. The apron was plain toning blue.

Style No. 2982 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust.

Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with ¾ yard of 35-inch contrasting for dress; with 1¾ yards of 35-inch material with 5¾ yards of binding for apron. Price of pattern 15 cents.

We are proud of our new Fashion Magazine for Spring. It's much larger and different than any issue previously published. It's 48 pages.

This book contains all of the new spring styles for women, misses and children.

In addition, it contains the most interesting illustrated articles—Beauty Hints, Hairdressing, How to Reduce Sensibly, Poise as Aid to Fashions, Dressmaking Hints, Knitted Sweaters, Quilts and Embroidery, &c.

The supply is limited and so we suggest that you send 10 cents for your copy today. Just write "Fashion Magazine" on any piece of paper, inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin and mail your order to Fashion Department, The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

You May Be Forty But WHY Be FAT?

For most people, there is really no reason to stay fat. Thousands hate fat yet fail to get rid of it because they do the wrong things. It is simple to control excess weight. Once you prove this for yourself you will regret that you did not get rid of fat months or even years ago.

The right way to reduce is Marmola. Marmola acts on the same principles that specialists follow in treating obesity cases. It supplies the normal element that the body itself uses. The result is that without discomfort excess fat disappears.

No starvation diet is required. No strenuous and possibly ill-advised exercise is necessary. Moderation helps, of course. But all you do is take four tablets each day. Then stop when you reach the weight desired.

You can't afford to stay overweight when natural reduction has become so easy and so practical. Try Marmola today. Start on the road to youthful beauty and slenderness. Just ask for Marmola at any drug store.

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 11:50 a. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Decisions made on this February 1 will have much to do with the course of your future existence. By your own actions and words you will inaugurate a whole series of events both in your business and personal affairs. These coming events will be good or bad in accordance with the motives and thoughts which you entertain on this date. Remember, that right thinking and right doing win the right-of-way.

The child born on this February 1 will be impetuous in his speech and in his actions. He will rush headlong into this and that situation and will stir up a good deal of trouble and difficulty for himself. Children born on this day will be dutiful and respectful toward their parents; they will invariably bring to them their problems for solution.

If February 1 is the date of your birth, you must take care not to worry over your problems and the conditions of your life; worry never solved any difficulty. People turn to you for guidance and help, and for encouragement. You are the sort of person who seems to have established himself on a firm foundation and who will carry on in spite of all opposing forces. Regardless of how insecure you may feel, that is the impression you convey to others and they rely on you to show them the way. You are a kindly person, considerate of others, desirous of doing for others. You give of your time and money to any and to all who are worthy.

Born on February 1, you will probably go far in whatever field of endeavor you find yourself in. You will never have to worry about having enough money and even in your later years of life you will be a producer. You are a good conversationalist and a good speaker. In the latter capacity you do better when addressing a small group, for you react quickly and spontaneously to the personal element in and personal contact with people. You have the happy faculty of being able to explain things so that the other man can grasp them. You could teach successfully.

Successful people born on February 1:

Homer C. Blake, naval officer.
James H. Cox, insurance.
Joseph Keppler, artist.
James A. Herne, actor and playwright.
Granville S. Hall, psychologist.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE "farewell speech" by President Hoover before the National Republican Club of New York on Lincoln's Birthday will be broadcast over the entire Columbia network, including Station WJSV.

Oscar W. Ehrhorn, president of the club, will preside. President Hoover will be the only speaker.

"Intimates of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt say that her frequent lectures and other appearances are all made in her intense desire to be of service," writes James McMullin in "The National Whirligig," a McClure Newspaper Syndicate feature. "The money she receives from her Friday evening radio talks over the radio for a commercial firm is divided among her charities. One-half goes to the Unemployment Relief Fund and the remainder is given to the various organizations for helping the poor in which the First Lady-elect is especially interested. One of these is the Henry Street Nurses. None of this money is retained by the distinguished radio artiste."

ALTHOUGH there is recurring comment that the movies are adversely affected by the wealth of radio entertainment to be had nightly for the turn of a switch, frequently the reverse is true. One case of the radio helping the motion picture box office in an appreciable degree is "The Kid From Spain," starring Eddie Cantor, now current at Loew's Palace Theater.

Before his weekly radio appearances, Eddie Cantor, who was known only to musical comedy audiences, made two motion pictures, "Whoopee" and "Palmy Days." Each of these pictures played two weeks on F street and receipts for the four weeks were considered fair. The "Kid From Spain," however, due to the large following Cantor has built by his antics before the microphone, will better the four weeks of his first two pictures by several thousands of dollars. The Palace may equal its previous high for box office receipts on this Cantor film.

Rimsky-Korsakov's symphonic suite, "Scheherezade," founded on the "Arabian Nights," will be played in its entirety by the Symphony Orchestra, with Issay Dobrowen as guest conductor (WRC, 9 p. m.). "Nocturne and Scherzo," from the incidental music written by Mendelssohn for Shakespeare's drama, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," also will be played.

A SINCERE dramatic performance requires ease and complete familiarity with a script, which is impossible if one must read lines and stand pat before a microphone, according to Herbert Rawlinson, star of several Broadway productions, who heads the cast in a series of sketches broadcast from time to time over WOR.

"The first thing we do in rehearsing a play," he said, "is to memorize the lines and get rid of the scripts. Then we have freedom of action and can give attention to creating the characters we are to become. I realize that the opening night on a one-time radio sketch is the entire run; the next performance is another sketch, and it's not possible to rehearse for as extended a period as for a performance on the legitimate stage.

"But in a series of sketches there is a solution. It is continuous in theme and thought from week to week. Take, for example, a series of thirteen sketches, which is the average commercial contract. Thirteen fifteen-minute periods are a little more than three hours. That is slightly longer than the usual play, but the series could be divided in half for rehearsal purposes and memorized as a play is memorized—in acts. With such a foundation it would be simple enough to abolish the scripts when the sketch is on the air. One can't actually be some one if one is reading the lines that are that person's thoughts instead of speaking them as he would do.

"The possible additional half-hour necessary in rehearsals to run through the full act would be well worth the time and trouble for the finished performance of each broadcast of the series. There would be concentrated rehearsal on the fifteen minutes that constitute the night's program, and a rapid rehearsal of the remainder of the act."

APPEARING in native costume, including the headdress worn by his famous warrior grandfather, Chief Klutus Tecumseh, a native Indian of the Wenatchee tribe, will be a guest artist during the Corn Cob Pipe Club broadcast over WRC at 10 p. m. Chief Tecumseh, a composer and lyric tenor, will offer his own song, "The Land of My Prairie Dreams," and other songs of his people. Another feature of the program will be a fox chase, complete with the barking of the hounds, the gallop of the horses and the shrill notes of the hunters' horns.

R. C. Patterson, taken on recently to reorganize the executive department of one of the large chains, frequently misses his lunch. The other day he went down to the drug store in the lobby of his office in New York, sat down to the counter and ordered a sandwich and a glass of milk.

"Pass me the mustard, will you, Bo?" said a voice at his elbow. "I'm in an awful hurry to get back to work. Patterson has his firing squad out today."

"Sure, Mike," said Patterson, as he passed the mustard.

Konrad Bercovici, writer of gypsy stories, will tell of his own boyhood among the nomad tribes of Europe when he appears in conjunction with the dramatization of his story, "Murdo," in the Five Star Theater, WMAL, 7:30 p. m. "Murdo," one of the most popular of Bercovici's stories, tells a love story as it is recalled by an old gypsy chieftain.

ALTHOUGH "Lohengrin" is one of the most popular operas, Wagner evidently thought the least of it of any of his works. When "Lohengrin" was broadcast, Milton Cross said that Wagner, noting the popularity of "Lohengrin," remarked: "I am afraid I'll soon be the only German who hasn't heard it."

Robin Patterson, of India, long a friend of Dr. John Finley Williamson, director of the Westminster Choir, will sing the Indian folk song "There Are Flowers" as a feature of the choir's program over WRC at 2:30 p. m., today. The choir will be heard in numbers from Zuni Indian lore, French and Scotch tradition, and seldom-heard selections.

NINO MARTINI, young Italian tenor, will attempt what is claimed to be the highest operatic tenor aria ever composed, the "Credea si Misera . . . Ella e Tremante," from Bellini's "I Puritani" (The Puritans), when he appears before a microphone on a Nation-wide network of stations, including WJSV at 11 o'clock tonight.

This aria, written in Paris in 1835, was composed especially for Giovanni Rubini, the outstanding tenor of his time. Rubini's remarkable voice range covered the span between barytone and coloratura soprano, extending up to F above high C. The opera, "I Puritani," was dedicated to Rubini and during his lifetime he was said to be the only vocalist capable of singing it. At his death in 1854, the opera was dropped from the repertoire of Italian companies and performed only occasionally in a transposed version.

The District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs, Gertrude Lyons, president, will present the first of the 1933 series of programs at 6:45 to 7 p. m. over WRC. Thelma Callahan, chairman of radio, has arranged the series for this season and commences the broadcasts with the Student Nurses' Glee Club, Miss Pauline Hofius, president; Esther Linkins, director, and Sue Blandy, accompanist. This chorus will feature three composers. The signature (theme song) has been written by LaSalle Spier, Washington composer, and will be played by him on this first program.

Bob White

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question: You old philosopher, don't you hate anything? By your talks and your articles we imagine you love everything and everybody. . . .

Answer: Sure I have my likes and dislikes. My hates too if it comes to that. Moreover I'm going to put down some of my hates. . . . Flies, automatic ice boxes that go on and off at intervals, banging radiator coils, rats gnawing at rafters, mice squeaking for food, cats on the tiles and dogs howling. Telephone numbers that are eternally busy, people who call wrong numbers, fools who call after ten bells and wake the babies up. Fires that won't light, chimneys that smoke, wood that won't chop, logs that won't split. Girls who giggle and affect an accent. Girls young and old who look like bakers with smudges of flour here and there, those who look like a walking cosmetic advertisement. Street car riders who won't move up, those who hug three-quarters of a seat and look like biting you when you sit down. Motorists who drive up furiously to a stop sign a hair's-breadth away from you. (There ought to be a law against this). Taxi drivers who are always short on change (and no drug store near). Laundries that print names on fine linen hankys.

I could go on for ages about women who carry poodles and men who do NOT wear spats. . . . Oh, yes, I have my hates, too.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Stocks Decline Fractionally In Battle to Hold Firmness

Dividend Uncertainty Cuts Trading Volume Down to 656,990 Shares.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The stock market generally seemed determined to hold its ground, in the face of dividend uncertainties, today.

There were a few soft spots, with utilities again showing group heaviness, but rails were inclined to be firm, and as measured by price averages the list closed barely steady, with a loss of a small fraction of a point.

Dividend uncertainty at least served to curb speculative activity, however, for the turnover was only 656,990 shares. Even that small volume, nevertheless, was well above yesterday's.

U. S. Steel's preferred dividend action was not announced until after the market closed, but was in keeping with expectations. Wall street had clearly understood that the regular quarterly payment of $1.75 would not be made. The payment of 50 cents was better than expected by a substantial portion of the financial community, where an omission was being forecast, but was smaller than expected in more optimistic quarters, where a payment of around $1 was being talked of.

Continued firmness of the rails reflected the renewed speculative interest in that group. Encouraging developments mentioned included news that the national transportation committee had virtually completed its report, which is expected to suggest solutions for the general carrier problem; passage by the House of the bankruptcy bill designed to facilitate reorganizations where necessary, and the December reports of operating revenues, showing some gains over a year previously.

Delaware & Hudson advanced more than 2 points, then lost all but a fraction of its advance. New York Central, in which D. & H. is now a leading interest, was conspicuously firm, closing about a point higher. It was understood the D. & H. interests were preparing an immediate appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission to permit its representation on Central's board. Two lightly traded rails reached new highs for 1933, Louisville & Nashville and its subsidiary, Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, the latter rising more than 2 points in a thin market.

The steel stocks held about steady, in advance of United States Steel's dividend announcement. Steel common closed up ⅜ and the preferred up ½, but they were offered substantially lower in San Francisco, where trading was in progress, soon after the announcement.

Switching of speculative interest away from the utilities to the rails has been regarded with considerable interest. In the prewar days, rails were traditionally the dominant group, but in the past few years, the utilities surged ahead to become market leaders. However, with political attention now turned toward aid for the railroads, and more regulation for the power companies, speculative attention appears to have turned again to its earlier love.

Consolidated Gas and North American sagged major fractions, while Public Service of New Jersey lost 1½ points. American Telephone yielded only ⅜ of a point, net. The Studebaker preferred dividend omission evidently prompted more short covering than fresh selling, for that issue closed up ¾ of a point. The Goodyear stocks were heavy, the preferred losing 5 points. United States Gypsum and United Fruit lost about a point.

Stocks were unaffected by commodities, which held fairly steady. Sterling Exchange was also about unchanged. It was announced that the Bank of England had made another purchase of gold, amounted to some $13,500,000.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	195	165
Declines	174	204
Unchanged	149	131
Total issues	518	500

Stocks.

A fractional loss of three-tenths of a point was recorded as stocks fought stubbornly to hold ground. Dividend uncertainties curbed speculation and sales volume stood at 656,990 shares.

Bonds.

Rallies in rail leaders pushed the market higher. The average gain was one-tenth of a point. Sales climbed to $10,008,000.

Curb.

Broadening of market and heavier dealing resulted in slightly lower prices. Transfers totaled 140,000 shares. Selling was attributed to leaner 1932 earnings statements.

Wheat.

Export call for Canadian wheat sent prices one-quarter of a cent higher. The market closed firm. Corn was off; oats, one-eighth up. May wheat sold at 47⅝ cents.

Cotton.

Prices were generally lower on both foreign and domestic liquidation. May sold at 6.04. The market was down 7 to 9 points. Liverpool reported hedging and Bombay selling.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Steel prices unchanged.

CURB DRIFTS LOWER IN IRREGULAR SALES

Market Broadens as Dealing Increases in Volume to 140,000 Shares.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—In a slightly broadening market, stocks on the curb eased irregularly lower today. Transfers totaled 140,000 shares against 90,000 yesterday.

The utilities were under quiet pressure, but price changes of most leading stocks in this group were confined to fractions. Commonwealth Edison and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore dropped 1 to 2 points. American Gas and Electric Bond & Share lost major fractions. American Superpower, Niagara Hudson Power and United Light & Power A were a shade lower, while Cities Service was steady.

Selling was attributed partly to a combination of leaner 1932 earning statements and some disappointment over the inability of current power production to step up more rapidly. In most quarters it was said that liquidation was of a sporadic and scattered nature.

The investment trusts enjoyed a mild rally. Fractional gains were made by virtually all stocks in this group, including Atlas, Blue Ridge, Goldman Sachs and United Founders.

Ford issues were steady. The Canadian company, it was reported, would not be affected by the New British Board of Trade restrictions on Canadian exports. This body stipulated that Canadian products, in order to benefit from Empire trade preferences, must bear at least 50 per cent content in terms of Canadian materials and labor.

The oils were under mild pressure. Gulf lost a small fraction. Humble was down about a point.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Gold mining shares were erratic and suffered on profit-taking while business otherwise on the stock exchange was quiet. Oil's-edged securities and transatlantic shares were steady while Anglo-Persian oil issues were also better in hopes of satisfactory negotiations. The closing was quiet.

Paris—Prices on the bourse were generally firm with moderate gains, being favorably affected by the settlement of the cabinet crisis. The closing was firm.

Berlin—The boerse reacted favorably to the formation of the Hitler cabinet. Business was small, but prices advanced 5 to 6 centum. The market closed firm.

GOODS MARKETS.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Cotton cloths met larger inquiries today, but at prices mills generally were not accepting. Rayons were quieter. Spot-finished woolens were in good demand among cutters of both men's and women's coats. Burlap was inactive at steady prices.

SILK MARKET.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Raw silk futures closed weak; 440 bales: March, 1.11; May, 1.13; July, 1.13; open market quotations (60-day basis): Shanghai steam extra B, 1.60; Canton double extra A, 14-16s, 1.00; Japanese crack, double extra, 1.26.

America's Livestock Rides To Market on Rubber Tires

Chicago, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Half the butchered live stock in the United States rode to market on rubber tires last year.

Motor trucks transported more than 23,000,000 head from farm to market during 1932. This was 41 per cent of total receipts at 17 principal marketing centers in the Nation and measured a gain of 10 per cent over 1931, a compilation by the corn belt farm dailies said.

Receipts at the 17 markets by truck during the year totaled 23,385,456 head, the year before the total was 21,162,430. In 1925, less than 10 per cent was transported by truck, the total being 5,378,868 head.

These totals, however, comprised only a portion of the live stock handled by truck. At dozens of smaller markets and interior packing plants nearly all receipts were trucked in. No record of these is available nor of the number transported from farm to railroad sidings.

It was estimated 1,935,000 truck loads were required to deliver the 23,000,000 head to the markets. The average haul was 85 miles, but trips of approximately 500 miles were by no means rare.

In terms of tonnage, the weight of all this live stock reached 3,500,000 tons. Hogs represented nearly half with cattle not far behind. Sheep and calves made up about 12 per cent of the total.

It would take aproximately 370,000 freight cars to carry all these animals. This would be approximately 5,000 trains of 75 cars each.

Mexico Wins Fight In Bond Dispute

Ownership of $7,500,000 Fund Decided in Latins' Favor.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The Mexican government today won dismissal of a Supreme Court action brought by Thomas W. Lamont, as chairman of the international committee of bankers on Mexico, concerning the ownership of $7,500,000 interest on defaulted Mexican bonds.

The suit was brought by the Lamont committee to obtain a ruling on how it should distribute the money among thousands of bondholders. The Mexican government contended that the money, which it had turned over to the committee since 1922 for distribution among the bondholders, was Mexican property and that the New York courts had no jurisdiction over it.

An independent committee of Mexican bondholders, headed by Louis S. Ottenheimer, had opposed Mexico's application for dismissal of the suit.

U. S. Steel Stocks Fall On San Francisco Mart

San Francisco, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Stocks of United States Steel dropped sharply here today on announcement of the cut in the preferred quarterly dividend from $1.75 to 50 cents.

The preferred closed in New York at 61½. Five hundred shares were offered here at 1 p. m. (Pacific time) at 59½ with no sale. The common, which closed in New York at 28¼, was offered here at 27¾, with 27⅛ bid and no sale.

Visible Grain Supply.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat decreased 1,751,000; corn increased 569,000; oats increased 112,000; rye increased 18,000; barley increased 25,000.

Bankers Offering New Railway Issue

$12,000,000 in Bonds Starts First Heavy Road Financing.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The first public railroad financing for several months was announced today by J. P. Morgan & Co., involving an offering tomorrow of $12,000,000 Cincinnati Union Terminal first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due in 1957, at par.

Participating with the Morgan firm in the offering are Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the First National Bank and the National City Co. This is the third offering under the mortgage, and the proceeds will be used to repay the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for advances made and for additional expenditures necessary to the completion of the terminal on or before April 1 next. The offering is subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The bonds are guaranteed as to principal and interest by the following railroads: Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific, The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis (Big Four); Louisville & Nashville, Norfolk & Western and Pennsylvania.

RAILS RALLY PUSHES BOND PRICES HIGHER

One-Tenth Gain Is Recorded as Sales Mount to $10,008,000.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Rallies in a number of rail leaders gave the bond market an upward slant today despite an irregularly lower trend displayed by the majority of utilities and industrials.

The activity was more pronounced than yesterday, sales totaling $10,008,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced one-tenth of a point.

Renewed hopefulness in the transportation group was attributed chiefly to earnings reports of class 1 carriers for December showing improvement over the 1931 month. Gains ranging from 1 to 4 or more points were recorded by some issues of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, Illinois Central, Lehigh Valley, Louisville & Nashville, "Soo" Line, New York Central, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Pacific and Virginian Railway. Liens of Canadian roads were losers of 1 to around 4 points. Santa Fe general 4s and Union Pasific first 4s eased.

Of interest to rail followers also was the successful sale today of $12,000,000 of Cincinnati Union Terminal first 5s. These bonds, issued at par, were quoted 2¾ points up on a "when issued" basis. The same company's 5s of 2020, however, dropped 1½ points. Loans of Chicago & Northwestern, St. Paul, Delaware & Hudson, Iron Mountain, Missouri Pacific and several others were a trifle soft.

While New Jersey Power 4½s stepped up 2 points, and New York Trap Rock 6s gained 5¾, declines of a point or more were registered by some loans of Columbia Gas, Interborough Rapid Transit, Kresge Foundation, Western Union and others. The recent depressed moving picture company issues came back fractionally.

German Government bonds rallied smartly at one time, but were able to retain only small gains. Other Reich issues were irregular. Improvement was shown by loans of Argentina, France, Japan and Poland. Canadian Government maturities were off fractionally to 1½ points. Continued heaviness of the Canadians was presumed to reflect reports of a movement to depreciate currency values in order to bring the Dominion dollar more in line with the British pound sterling.

The United States Government list steadied after early irregularity, but the volume, in most instances, was limited.

Rubber Closes Quiet.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Crude rubber futures closed quiet. March, 2.91 bid; May, 2.96 bid; July, 3.03 bid; September, 3.11 bid.

Smoked ribbed spot closed 2.90 nominal.

Brokers Make Fat Fees In Bank Deposits Deals

Cleveland, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—A lucrative trade—for brokers—has developed in Ohio in the bartering of frozen mortgages and savings deposits in building, savings and loan associations.

The practice, called a "pernicious racket" in the annual report of the Citizens Savings Association, has grown until officials estimate between $50,000 and $75,000 change hands each week in greater Cleveland alone. Depositors in some cases have sold their accounts at discounts as high as 75 per cent in order to get ready cash.

The bartering of deposits arose from inability of the associations readily to pay on savings accounts due to failure of mortgage holders to pay the interest or the principal when due.

Brokers — unlicensed ones are said to be the most active—have turned a ready penny as a result. Commissions of $400 on a deal of $4,000 in mortgages and deposits is not uncommon.

COTTON PRICES CUT ON SELLING DRIVES

May Closes at 6.04 as General Market Drops 7 to 9 Points.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Cotton was generally lower today, under liquidation from both foreign and domestic sources.

Offerings were absorbed by trade buying and covering, but demand was chiefly on limits or scale-down orders and prices eased gradually with May declining to 6.04 and closing at that figure. The general market closed barely steady, 7 to 9 points lower.

The opening was 1 to 4 points lower in response to Liverpool cables. Houses with Far Eastern, Liverpool and Continental connections were sellers and the market displayed a sagging trend during most of the session.

Southern selling was very light during the early trading, but became more active toward the close when March declined to 5.92 and July to 6.17. Final quotations were the lowest of the day.

Some Bombay selling was reported here early, said to have been on straddle account following a decline in the Indian market. Liverpool cables said that hedging and Bombay selling in that market had offset trade calling with the market declining under long liquidation influence by the decline in Egyption cotton. Egyption cotton futures in Alexandria closed 6 to 16 points lower.

A slow spot demand was reported in the South, but the basis was said to be holding generally steady. Exports today, 48,982, making 5,002,021 so far this season. Port receipts, 55,022. U. S. port stocks, 4,811,387.

GOLD MOVEMENT.

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Bank of the Manhattan Co. today received $1,250,000 in gold from Holland.

The Guaranty Trust Co. of New York today announced receipt of $2,619,000 in gold from Holland on the steamship Europa.

The country's monetary gold stock showed a net decrease of $4,268,200 today as a result of the repurchase by the Bank of England of the gold acquired from the New York Federal Reserve Bank in connection with the British war debt payment on December 15 last.

The transaction, revealed by the Bank of England's daily gold statement, amounted to approximately $13,500,000, which was the same amount reported by the Reserve Bank last week as the balance of its gold held abroad.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN ON EXPORT OUTLOOK

Market Closes Firm and Up ¼ Cent; Other Grains Are Mixed.

Chicago, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Spurred by augmented export call for Canadian wheat, grain values displayed relative strength today.

Operating as a curb on Chicago wheat price advances, however, was the fact that enlargement of export business at Winnipeg was largely offset by weakness of Canadian currency. This discount on Canadian funds was the widest since last November.

Wheat in Chicago closed firm, unchanged to ¼ higher, compared with yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ off to ⅛ up; oats, unchanged to ⅛ lower, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to an equal gain.

Helping to give backbone to grain values was announcement that the world's available supply of wheat showed some decrease, making the total stock 443,422,000 bushels, compared with 472,107,000 a year ago. On the other hand, attention to unsettled political conditions in Europe served as a handicap to price advances, and so too at times did reports of some moisture relief in dry districts of domestic winter crop territory Southwest. Legislative uncertainties at Washington were an additional weight on the market.

Rallies in wheat prices were partly associated with talk that March 1 estimates of domestic farm reserve stocks of wheat would make a decidedly bullish exhibit. Notice was also taken of Washington official reports that to an unusual extent the immediate market outlook for wheat in the United States appeared to depend upon acreage sown to spring wheat. In the aggregate, today's wheat dealings in Chicago were light, but with considerable buying here against sales at Kansas City and also at Winnipeg.

Corn and oats took their cue mostly from wheat action. A few loads of United States corn were sold for export.

Provisions borrowed firmness from hog market upturns.

NEW YORK.

RAW SUGAR—Easier early today and sales reported at a decline of 2 points, or at 2.68 delivered. These, including some resale the previous day, totaled about 14,000 bags of Philippines and 14,000 bags of Puerto Rican in nearby positions at 2.68. Futures eased a point under increased liquidation and selling by houses with Cuban and European connections. The easier spot market and disappointing London cables, as well as uncertainty over the new Cuban crop, where grinding will start tomorrow, were probably factors in the early selling. Refined was unchanged at 3.90, with demand light and only for nearby requirements. One local refiner announced that it was offering a new sugar known as "A 99" for the manufacturing trade at 25 points under the basic price.

COFFEE—Spot steady: Rio No. 7, 8½; Santos No. 4, 9¼@9¾; Rio futures closed steady; sales, 5,000 bags: *March, 5.99; *May, 5.65; *July, 5.34; *September, 5.13; *December, 5.02; Santos futures steady; sales, 6,000 bags; *March, 8.39; *May, 7.90; July, 7.60; *September, 7.31; *December, 7.16.

BOSTON SYMPHONY ACCORDED OVATION

Demonstrates Great Musical Capacities Under Direction of Koussevitzky.

The Seventh Symphony in A Major, by Beethoven, was the beautiful medium yesterday through which the Boston Symphony Orchestra in concert at Constitution Hall demonstrated its great musical capacities under the dynamic baton of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, conductor.

Seldom has this noble symphony been as well played as it was yesterday by the Boston musicians. This orchestra, so adequately balanced in ensemble tone, so individual in its solo voices, shows the undeniable benefit of being under the direction of a single conductor season in and season out. Dr. Koussevitzky's reading of the score was truly inspired, and at the conclusion of its final movement the audience applauded so spontaneously and so vigorously that the conductor was compelled to bow his acknowledgments again and again.

The audience was enthralled by the romantic beauty of the symphony in its vivid moods, vivacious rhythms, exquisite thematic material, rich, velvety harmonies and dazzling modulations. This was apparent, at once, in the first movement, "the poco sostenuto" with its sudden flashes of fortissimo chords, succeeded by pianissimo passages and brilliant modulations to which the orchestra gave adequate attention.

The program was opened by an admirable presentation of that familiar classic, "Overture to Oberon," by Weber.

Other high points on the program were Sibelius' "Tapiola," tone poem, and two masterly played Wagnerian compositions, "Forest Murmurs," from "Siegfried," and the overture to "Tannhauser."

The concert was given under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene's concert bureau.

Two Alleged Hijackers Held in Shooting of Man

Robert O. Crouch, 26, and Louis J. Edwards, 21, both of Alexandria, Va., were held for grand jury action yesterday when arraigned in Police Court on charges of assault with dangerous weapons in connection with the shooting of Edward Monroe, of Alexandria, at Blue Plains, D. C., early Sunday. Their bonds were fixed at $5,000 each.

Monroe was shot in the forehead and is in a dangerous condition, it was testified. The shooting occurred following the alleged theft of several cases of whisky by Edwards and Crouch.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THERE is nothing too certain about it, but somewhere in the offing there may be a good laugh for you, from what I hear.

It seems that in snooping around for some likely way to ballyhoo the approaching engagement of Kate Smith on the Metropolitan screen in "Hello, Everybody," her new Paramount release, the Warner Brothers publicity department—and I blame this individually on Bill Ewing, who was in on its making and has hung onto a print all these years—dug up the first film masterpiece in which she ever appeared, a classic among short-reels known as "The Crandall Saturday Nighters in Action," and gave it a look privately, much to the amusement of all concerned!

Conceived, written and produced by a rank amateur, who also played a minor part in the "action," this model short-reeler was a product of the old silent days when lettered titles were customary and other obsolescent crudities were still in vogue.

And was it hot that July night of the filming of the studio scenes!

The picture was made out in the old WRC studios in the Riggs Bank-Tompkins Building at Fourteenth street and Park road, where the transmitter still is, and the temperature in the airtight and sound-proof studio, what with the sputtering Klieg lights and all—each one a young furnace on its own account—must have been at least 212 degrees Fahrenheit!

I vividly recall that the announcer sat directly in front of one of those Kliegs all the evening and got such a swell toasting that a few days later the back of his neck pealed, just as in a bad case of sunburn!

But the old film, notwithstanding all of its amateurishness and imperfections, does feature a good many names that are still "names," both locally and nationally, in radio. Among them are Kate Smith, Fred East and Bill Raymond, Dorothy Wilson Halbach, Norman Brokenshire, Dan Breeskin and a good many more whose identities have been lost in a memory that finds it difficult to go back to 1924—or whenever it was, exactly—with infallible accuracy.

At any rate, as I say, if this relic of a former incarnation should ever come to light in the form of a local "Screen Souvenir," you can attend that bill with the assured conviction that you are going to get a good laugh!

And that reminds me. It is Old Doctor Joseph P. Morgan, former general manager of the Crandall enterprises in and around Washington, who drops me a line enclosing an excerpt from a Paramount biography of Kate Smith, reading imaginatively as follows:

"To please her family she entered a nursing school after completing her high school course. For a year she spent most of her time singing for her patients. One night, when she was substituting for an absent entertainer at a vaudeville show, a Broadway musical comedy man heard her and induced her to come to New York."

"I certainly was glad to get this information," says Joe, "for inasmuch as you and Leonard Hall and the other boys and girls each told a different story, I felt quite sure there was something wrong somewhere. Now it's all clear!"

This is gorgeous irony, coming from Joe, because it was he who really "discovered" Kate one night when he tuned in on a Black & White Taxicab hour on the air and tipped us off that we ought to grab her for the "Saturday Nighters." Which we did.

But what a romancer that Paramount guy turned out to be!

Announcement is made by the Wilson-Greene Concert Bureau that the concert of Rosa Ponselle, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Co., scheduled for next Monday afternoon, February 6, at 4:30 o'clock in Constitution Hall, has been canceled, owing to the increased demands for Miss Ponselle's appearance in opera this season.

The attack of influenza which has deprived the Metropolitan of the services of Lily Pons, famous French coloratura, for several weeks, is said automatically to have increased the operatic demands upon Miss Ponselle's voice, necessitating the curtailment of her concert activities outside the metropolis.

Following a pleasant call from Miss Laura Benham, doing a little ladylike cymbal-whanging for Irene Beasley, headlining the stage portion of the bill opening Friday at the Earle, I find piled up on the desk a stack of such interesting facts as that Miss Beasley, one of radio's agreeable personalities and voices, familiarly known as "The long, tall girl from Dixie," was born in White Haven, Tenn; that her parents were non-professional singers; that she received her first piano instruction from her grandmother, an accomplished concert artiste; that she attended Sweet Briar College in Virginia and from there went to teach school in Mississippi.

The genesis of her public career is to be found at Sweet Briar, where, it is reported, she refused to go on upon the occasion of her ostensible concert debut account a severe attack of stage fright.

Afterwards, however, she was so indiscreet as to compose a song, "If I Could Just Stop Dreaming," which she published herself, thus got herself noticed in Chicago, was tempted into making records for Victor, finally took a whirl at the air, and—now look at her!

If you deem that "now look at her" a bit premature, since she does not open at the Earle until Friday, you ought to be told at once that Miss Beasley already is on view in a short-reel subject starring Little Jack Little, another of the Earle's perennial favorites, being shown as the chief auxiliary feature of the current bill at the Rialto, where "Nagana" is the major attraction.

In addition to Mr. Little and Miss Beasley, this latest of the abbreviated camera subjects featuring radio personalities also presents Pearl Osgood, who followed Kate Smith in George White's "Flying High," starring Bert Lahr, and James Hall, screen and stage star, whose only local personal appearence also was at the Earle.

Comes then a note from Ray Henderson, Miss Katharine Cornell's admirable stentor, remarking that many Washingtonians will be making the trek to Baltimore the week of February 13, to see Miss Cornell in the first week of her new play, "Alien Corn," by Sidney Howard—and his first original work for the theater since 1929, by the way—and inquiring on what night this department might want seats.

Just by way of showing Mr. Henderson that this column knows how to take a joke, it is going to tell him!

And, after I've seen the play, I'm going to tell you—but with "The Green Pastures" opening here at the National simultaneously, it will not be Monday.

And believe it or not, they tell me the program board over the entrance to the Earle bears this disturbing legend: HARD TO HANDLE—HELEN KANE.

Odd that that's never leaked out before!

Many in U. S. Believed Man's Pot of Gold Hoax

Salisbury, Md., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Scores of letters from all parts of the United States today testified to the credence their writers placed in the story that Vance Butler, gasoline filling station operator, had uncovered a pot of old money more than a week ago.

But Butler, after an hour's questioning by a newspaperman, who had been asked to check the story, admitted last night his yarn was a hoax and that he did not possess the old gold and silver coins and paper money on which he gave a value of $30,000.

Ludington-Eastern Air Merger Reported Near

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Dow, Jones & Co. said today that it understood negotiations had been completed for acquisition of Ludington Air Lines by Eastern Air Transport, a subsidiary of North American Aviation, Inc.

The purchase price was reported to be approximately $250,000. Ludington operates between New York and Washington.

ILLUSION:
Like a fly this remarkable woman walks—head down—in defiance of gravity—backward and forward across a board hung from the ceiling!

This old illusion is dependent for success on a simple scientific principle. Attached to each of the performer's shoes is a rubber "sucker" or disc which creates a vacuum and adheres to the board—supporting the "human fly's" weight.

KEPT FRESH IN THE WELDED HUMIDOR PACK

Copyright, 1933, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

We all like magicians' tricks. But tricks in cigarette advertising are quite another matter.

Here's one you may have wondered about. The illusion that only one cigarette is "pure."

EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes are made under the most sanitary conditions. All use a good cigarette paper. All are made with practically identical modern machinery. All are pure.

But the quality of the tobacco is another story.

The pleasure you find in a cigarette is determined by the quality of the tobaccos used. Mildness and fine flavor come from the costlier tobaccos.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

It's the tobacco that counts—plus a matchless blending of leaf with leaf to bring out the delicate flavor of choice tobaccos.

That's why Camels have given more people more pleasure than any other cigarette.

Camels are always fresh, always cool, always in prime condition . . . in the airtight, welded Humidor Pack.

2,200 SEE GALLAGHER BEAT KENNEDY BY DECISION

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

DESPITE the fact that there were times when he was so tired he didn't know where the next punch was coming from, Marty Gallagher, the slightly befogged heavyweight Pride of Foggy Bottom, beat Les Kennedy at Portner's Arena last night as prosperity stuck a timid foot around the corner in the form of 2,000 admissions, mostly paid.

Gallagher won the fight by actually fighting, in fits and starts, to the great surprise of the fans who had turned out despite an overdose of Gallagher in past bouts. To see Gallagher out there actually forcing a fight was a new order of events and Les Kennedy himself seemed genuinely surprised by the Foggy Bottom boy's belligerency.

The new Gallagher was quite much the same old Gallagher except for the increased willingness to mix it. It was Kennedy who let the wise money down badly. The Kennedy who outboxed the boxer, Bob Godwin, and who figured to show Gallagher all the answers, didn't box, or couldn't last night in the face of the spasmodic fury of Gallagher's rushes.

Marty Fights Best When Stung.

Marty was the same old Gallagher, wrestling his way through most of the bout, and refraining from actually fighting until Kennedy riled the Irish in him. But once he was stung, Gallagher fought, clumsily, perhaps, but nevertheless vigorously and it was these fits of fighting that earned him the decision. Had Kennedy been content to win without inflicting undue damage, it is doubtful that Gallagher would have found the will to fight.

The familiar chorus of boos greeted Gallagher in his persistent attempt at the infighting, and sounded in loud crescendoes when Marty, with his 15-pound advantage in the weights, wrestled Kennedy around the ring and into the ropes by pure brute strength, but Kennedy himself was not averse to the same tactics and the dishonors were evenly divided.

Marty scored best with his right, which he hooked to Kennedy's head and sunk into Kennedy's body, but Marty's left is still a case for the clinic. How so much apparent bone, muscle and gristle in Marty's left arm can be so utterly devoid of punch makes it a subject for the specialists. The correct answer probably is that Marty never bothered about learning how to hit with his left, and never will.

Plumbing Industry Forgotten.

The plumbing industry that was beckoning Gallagher a few months ago will probably be forced to suffer his absence for some time longer, now that Marty has won a fight. Marty was a bright young apprentice when he surmised one day that his fortune lay in the prize ring, but dreams of fortune have evaporated and Marty is now simply trying to get along in the fight game.

But it must be said of Gallagher that Marty, himself, has never made any pretentions of his fighting ability. Rather, he has been the victim of Foggy Bottom admirers, who mistook Marty's bulk for power and prowess, forgetting that size is one of the least requisites of the prize ring.

CARDS PLAY MARINES.

A dance will follow the basket ball game between the Washington Cardinals and Quantico Marines to be played tonight at 8 o'clock at the Laurel Armory.

Tech Extends Central Five But Loses

Mt. Pleasant Team Takes Thriller by 23 to 20 Score.

Eastern Forced Overtime by Western, but Wins, 27-26.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

CHEERED on by a frenzied crowd of 2,000 fans whose hoarse shouts and wild gesticulations all but shattered the windows in Tech's stout gymnasium, a gallant Central quintet proved its mettle by coming from behind in the last 30 seconds of play to overcome a stubborn Tech team and gain a 23-20 victory yesterday. The result virtually assures the Mount Pleasant courtmen of at least a tie for the interhigh school championship.

Later in the afternoon, the few fans who remained were treated to another 40-minute thriller when Eastern, the only team left to challenge Central's claim to the crown, beat off Western's determined forces in an extra period game, winning by a score of 27-26.

Jack Moulton, Central's slim, black-haired center, who graduated last night, finished his high-school career in a blaze of glory, winning the game with a pot shot from the side court that swished through, sending Central ahead, 21-20, while the school's supporters nearly wrecked the premises in their exultation.

Burke's Goal Seals Tech's Fate.

Bill Burke sealed Tech's fate with a snowbird in the last 15 seconds of play after taking a pass from Moulton. Substitute players on the Central bench and Coach Bert Coggins leaped from their seats, waving sweaters, towels and other bits of paraphernalia as a blast from the timekeeper's weapon signaled the end of the fray a moment later.

Close guarding by both teams featured play in the earlier stages. Tech's zone defense was airtight and Central was unable to penetrate it in the first quarter, which ended with Tech leading, 2-0. Swede Olverson dribbled in for a snowbird to score the lone basket.

Tech boasted an 8-7 margin at the intermission, but the lead was wrested from it in the third period when Moulton's shot put Central on the long end of a 13-11 count as the game entered the final period. Olverson's consistent work kept the Maroon and Gray in the thick of the fight.

First one and then the other had the lead as the teams battled down the home stretch. Daly's foul shot gave Tech the lead, but Moulton chucked another field goal for Central. One minute of play remained when Thomas took a pass from Wheeler and eased a snowbird over the rim for what appeared to be the game-winning shot. The score was 20-19 in Tech's favor.

Tech Attempts to Freeze Ball.

At first Tech attempted to freeze the ball, but Daly let fly with a long shot from near the center line and Central recovered, passed the leather down the floor to Moulton, who hesitated one brief second before sending it through to turn the tide of victory in Central's direction.

Those who came to see Western routed by Eastern were pleasantly surprised when the Georgetown aggregation all but dumped the apple cart. Western held its opponent scoreless from the field during the first nine minutes of play and led at the quarter by a score of 5-4.

With Harry Bassin showing the way, Eastern rallied and gained a 15-9 advantage at the half. It looked like the beginning of the end. But in the third quarter, Tom Davis, Eastern center, was evicted from the fray and Jimmy Forney began tapping the ball

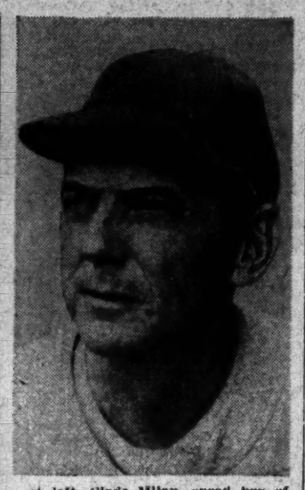
88 Stolen Bases by Milan Featured Nats' 1914 Team, Fans in Contest Can Note



At left, Clyde Milan, speed boy of the Washington Club, is pictured in his prime in 1914, when he stole 88 bases to beat Ty Cobb for the honors. At right is Milan when he managed Birmingham to the Southern Association pennant in 1931.

Speedy Centerfielder Eclipsed Ty Cobb on Baselines.

(Herewith is the fourth of a series of articles in conjunction with The Post's baseball contest.)

MANAGER CLARK GRIFFITH'S great little ball team, which he gathered around him in 1912 when he came here from Cincinnati and resuscicated Washington's diamond hopes, began to split up in 1914, when the disturbances overseas put a general crimp in baseball, and in the year that Connie Mack broke up his $100,000 infield.

The team spirit began to lag a bit, and once again only Walter Johnson could be really depended upon in the box. Even Johnson slipped from the high pinnacle of 1913, when he had won 36 and lost 7 games, his greatest year, and in 1914 he turned in a record of 28 wins and 13 losses. But the old smokeball had lost none of its bounce and terrifying speed and in 1914, 228 batters vacantly fanned the air. Charlie Ruffing led the American League last year, by the way, with 190.

Milan Overshadows Ty Cobb.

Outside of Johnson, who led the league in games won in 1914, if anybody stood out for Washington it was Clyde Milan, who momentarily put Ty Cobb in eclipse by stealing the enormous total of 88 bases. It was Milan's peak year. He was a streak of white on the bags, a daring, brilliant base runner with a flash of speed and a gleam of dazzling spikes.

Nervy, fair to the last inch and in the thick of the fight all the time, Milan was respected from one end of the league to the other. He stole his 88 bases in the teeth of some of the greatest pegging the American League has ever seen. He pilfered sacks in the face of Bill Carrigan, of Boston, Steve O'Neill, of Cleveland; Oscar Stanage, of Detroit; Ray Schalk, of the White Sox, and Wally Schang, of Philadelphia, all of them in their prime and all of them heckled by their managers to stop the phantom Milan.

Technique Different From Cobb.

He was one of the ablest sliders of all time, with a technique different from Cobb's but not inferior. He was gifted with some sixth sense that sent a charge of electricity through his strong young body at the split moment when he knew that the pitcher, despite his menacing stares, was going to let the ball go batward. He stole home at least a dozen times, and upon more than one occasion stole from first to third without ever a thought of stopping at second.

Milan rated right up with Speaker, of the Indians, and Cobb, of Detroit, in fielding. He perhaps did not have the ability to come in and rob batters of Texas Leaguers as did Speaker, but he could go back and grab 'em better. He was all over Cobb as a short hit fielder. He was one of the most graceful fielders to boot. He was uncertain on an occasional ground ball and his hitting was a shade under .300, to mention his two ranking deficits.

1914 Club Boasted Many All-Star Candidates.

The 1914 team indeed was not without its aspirants for any all-star team District fans are now at work on in The Post's current baseball contest.

Chick Gandil, on first, was still one of the best initial sackers and was still in the .300 class. Joe Judge was yet to come, not due for a year. Howard Ehmke, a raw rookie, had come to the team near the end of the season, and quickly departed, and Bob Meusel, slated to become one of the

Bill Dickey Hurt In Auto Collision

Yankee Catcher Cut and Bruised as Machines Crash Head-On.

Harrison, Ark., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Bill Dickey, catcher of the New York Yankees, and Guy Freeling, secretary to former Gov. Harvey Parnell of Arkansas, were injured near here today in a head-on collision of their automobile with that of a farmer.

Dickey was severely cut and bruised, but was not considered in a serious condition.

Freeling suffered a broken finger, severe bruises and cuts. Fred Jones, driver of the other car, escaped with slight injuries.

Dickey and Freeling were en route here in Dickey's car to join other friends for a hunting trip.

Both Dickey and Jones asserted the other was on the wrong side of the road. Both cars swerved to avoid the collision but they met almost head-on in the center of the road. witnesses told officers, who made no arrests.

The hunt was postponed.

American U. Enters New Conference

Chesapeake Group Is Formed by Smaller Colleges.

Lynchburg, Hampden-Sydney, Randolph Macon Join.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY became a member of a tight little unit of Middle Atlantic colleges yesterday at the formation meeting of the Chesapeake Collegiate Conference, composed of, besides the local school, Hampden Sidney, Lynchburg and Randolph Macon.

St. John's of Annapolis, one of the original agitators for a union of small colleges in this section, had a representative at the meeting, as did Swarthmore, but neither were empowered to join. The representatives, President D. H. Gordon, F. K. Brown, Amos Hutchins and M. T. Riggs, of St. John's, and S. C. Palmer, of Swarthmore, promised the meeting that they would immediately take up the question of joining upon returning to their colleges.

Holton, of American U., Secretary-Treasurer.

Dr. David C. Wilson, of Hampden-Sydney, was elected president of the new conference. Other officers elected were R. E. Blackwell, of Randolph-Macon, vice president, and W. B. Holton, of American University, secretary-treasurer.

Reporters were barred from the meeting, at which were present twenty representatives, and it was believed that the eligibility rules of certain of the nearby schools were exposed so that all might see. The meeting went on record, finally, as demanded of its athletes that they be registered for at least twelve hours work per week and pass at least nine hours during the first year and all twelve during the succeeding years. It was decided not to have a rule barring freshmen from competition, but the meeting passed a resolution forbidding transfer students to play for a year. College play will be limited to four years.

Chief purposes of the union were ease of scheduling foes in football, baseball, tennis, basket ball, golf and swimming, creation of rivalries and the incentive that winning the conference title will give to the athletes concerned.

Dike, Football Star, Weds G. W. Coed

Colonial Lineman Marries Edwina Seal; Couple Leave College.

The romance of two young George Washington University students was culminated yesterday when Miss Edwina Marjorie Seal, 19-year-old coed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Riggs Seal, of 3363 Eighteenth street northwest, became the bride of Troas Harold (Tom) Dike, well-known Colonial football player.

The couple was married by the Rev. Henry K. Paame at the Presbyterian manse in Rockville at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Dike was a pledge to Chi Omega, leading sorority, while Mr. Dike was a member of Delta Tau Delta.

The couple will make their home in Livingston, Tex., home of the bridegroom's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Francis Dike. Both have withdrawn from school.

Dike, '24, was rated one of the most promising linemen eligible for football duty next season with the Colonials. Injuries received in the Alabama game last October kept him out of most of 1932's campaign. He was versatile in the line, having been used at center, guard and tackle during his short career with the team.

Landon Prep Five Beats St. Alban's

Landon Prep overcame a 9-7 lead at the end of the first quarter and broke away from a 11-11 tie at half time to defeat St. Alban's yesterday afternoon at Epiphany Church, 28 to 22.

Slow in getting started, the Landon Prep dribblers swung into full stride with the start of the second half and were leading, 23-15, with 10 minutes to go.

Joe Goodman, a pretty good welterweight from Richmond, was voicing Gallagher's praises after the decision last night at Portner's when he barely had time to duck a roundhouse right from a young lady who was a strong Kennedy sympathizer and vented her anger at the decision in the form of a pass at Goodman . . . as if there wasn't already enough passes in the house . . . the Eastern Collegiate Baseball League's dates provide several engagements for Cornell's team . . . apparently, Cornell, which dropped baseball, has a schedule but not a team.

Schoolboy Courtmen in Action

G. U. IS HOST TO TEMPLE TONIGHT

Hoyas' First League Clash at Home Listed at Tech.

VICTORS by a 44-32 count over the great St. John's of Brooklyn squad, Temple University's basket ball team wades into Tech High gymnasium tonight to meet Georgetown at 8:30 o'clock in an Intercollegiate League game—the first to be played in Washington.

Temple has won six out of eight games to date, having trounced Johns Hopkins, Lebanon Valley, Colgate, West Virginia and Georgetown. It fell before Pitt and Carnegie Tech in early season. The latter game was an overtime affair.

Red Rosan, sterling guard, is the kingpin of the visiting team. Rosan stands second in the league race for individual honors. He is surrounded by a veteran combination in Brown and Goldberger, forwards; Gudd, center, and Beron, guard.

Hargaden, Carolan G. U. Sharpshooters.

Once again Georgetown will place its fate in the hands of Hargaden and Crowley, forwards; Connors, center, and Carolan and Murphy, guards. The team has stressed basket marksmanship all week and tuned up on passing. Hargaden and Carolan are again the shooting threats.

A preliminary game will match up, at 7:30 o'clock, the Hilltop frosh and St. John's High.

Tomorrow night sees an arid spot on the local program, with Gallaudet meeting one Philadelphia College at Philadelphia.

Admission to tonight's game has been reduced to 55 cents, including tax. Among other things Georgetown will be seeking its first win in league competition, having lost two games in two league appearances. Pitt defeated the Hoyas in the first game of the season, 32-18, and Temple, tonight's opponent, turned the trick, 31-19.

Welker Cochran Tops In 3-Cushion Event

Chicago, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., stopped the title march of young Jay Bozeman, of Vallejo, Calif., in the world's three-cushion billiard tournament tonight by defeating him in a great match, 50 to 49, in 54 innings. The result gave Welker Cochran, of San Francisco, the undisputed tournament lead.

Cochran, former king of the 18.2 balkline world, took a step closer to the championship today by routing Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago, 1932 title holder, with one of the best demonstrations of marksmanship during the tournament.

Tiff Denton, Kansas City veteran, finished his drive today by clinching at least a tie for fifth-place money by defeating Clarence Jackson, Detroit, 50 to 26, in 37 innings.

FORMER NAT DIES.

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Albert ("Beany") Jacobson, who threw southpaw slants in the American League 29 years ago, died today after a lingering illness.

Jacobson started his professional baseball career with Milwaukee in 1901 and pitched for Washington in 1904 and the St. Louis Browns in 1906 and 1907.

MARYLAND U. BEATEN BY VIRGINIA

Hudson and Harrison Lead Cavaliers to 26-19 Victory.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 31. Virginia's quint, tied with Maryland for fourth place in the Southern Conference, won from the Old Liners tonight, 26 to 19, to advance a peg in the standing.

Tight guarding featured the first half. After ten minutes of play, the count stood 3 to 2, in favor of the Cavaliers. Two shots from the charity mark by Vincent gave the Terrapins a momentary lead. The teams then battled on even terms, and the half ended with Maryland leading, 9 to 8.

Virginia started the second half with a rush and after five minutes of play enjoyed a 5-point lead. Weber, substituting for Walker, then stepped into action with two quick goals, bringing the count at half time: Virginia, 16; Maryland, 15.

The Cavaliers had things their own way in the last ten minutes. Sturm and Harrison caged a goal apiece and then captain Young shot one from midfloor.

Golf Tourney Netted Kenwood Club $3.53

A profit of $3.53 was realized from the 1932 National Capital Open golf championship held last November at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club, it was stated last night at a meeting of the executive committee at Kenwood.

The tournament, won by Horton Smith, offered a purse of $2,500. In the 1931 Kenwood classic $600 was lost, it was announced.

The resignation of C. P. Grady, business manager of the Kenwood Club, was announced last night. Grady had held the post for the past five years.

A nominating committee was appointed and other subcommittees named at the meeting.

Capital Heavy Forces Bout In Winning

Makes Strong Finish After Gaining Early Lead at Portner's.

Taylor Gets Decision Over Essinger in Fast Semifinal.

FORCING the fight all the way and landing the hardest blows, Marty Gallagher, Washington's big 205-pounder, rose to new heights last night at Portner's Arena, in Alexandria, and before a near-capacity crowd of 2,200 spectators plastered Les Kennedy, rugged Butte, Mont., heavyweight, for a unanimous decision in their eight-round feature match.

Stepping into the ring rated as the underdog, with the odds 2 to 1 in Kennedy's favor, the well-known Pride of Foggy Bottom, handed the fistic dope a severe jolting with a smashing, tearing attack that forced his adversary on the defense from the opening to the final gong.

Gallagher Surprises by Showing.

Beaten by Natie Brown, Reds Barry and Bob Tow in his last three fights here, and decisioned by Babe Hunt in his last scrap four months ago in Atlanta, the barrel-chested, bull-necked Gallagher surprised his most ardent backers, chasing Kennedy from post to post in the first and second rounds, pumping him with enough strong rights and lefts to the body in the fourth to bring fans to their feet cheering madly, and winding up strong in the eighth.

Gallagher's showing was his best in recent years. When his big hulk was introduced, a volley of boos greeted the announcement, but when Gallagher proved that he could do all the leading in the first round, the jeers quickly turned to cheers, and the verdict was greeted warmly at the finish.

Gallagher was the best in five of the eight rounds. He drew blood from Kennedy's left eye in the opener, and in the next round a crashing left to the Montanan's jaw stunned him considerably. Kennedy shifted his attack in the third, fighting much as he did when he vanquished Bob Godwin. He did more boxing, shooting a left to Gallagher's body and two whipping lefts to the jaw. The customers might have gone home early had not Kennedy ducked under one of Gallagher's rights in this round.

D. C. Fighter Out in Front in Fourth.

The fourth saw the Foggy Bottom Irishman out in front. Kennedy annoyed him at the start with two lefts, but Gallagher came tearing back like a wild man, pumping blows and eliciting a tremendous ovation from the crowd.

Kennedy appeared to have the edge in the next two rounds, unlimbering a couple of nifty right crosses and two left jabs in the fifth, and thumping Gallagher with his left in the sixth. In his eagerness to force the fighting, Gallagher twice almost pushed Kennedy over the ropes.

Referee Short warned Gallagher against hitting Kennedy with his back turned after a break in the seventh, and the big Irishman, apparently peeved, sailed into his foe, pounding him three times to the solar plexus. Gallagher's right eye was bleeding in the eighth.

Late in the evening, Herman Weiner, Baltimore heavyweight, slated

TWO STABLES, TWO RIDERS DOMINATE HIALEAH PARK CARD

Feature Race Won by Idle Stefan

B. B. and Greentree Establishments. Get Doubles.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Jan. 31 (A. P.).—The remarkable winning streak of Trainer Hirsch Jacobs and the B. B. Stable went on unabated here this afternoon.

After that stable's Dorsays had accounted for the opening event on the card, the gray 3-year-old Idle Stefan came along and won the Clearwater Purse, feature event in which a number of Florida derby eligibles performed. The winner, not a nominee for the closing day fixture, scored by a length and a half and paid $14.90 for $2. He ran the 6 furlongs in 1:12 flat under Silvio Coucci's strong handling.

The Anall Stable's Silk Flag outlasted J. E. Widener's The Pelican, by a nose for the place. C. V. Whitney's Rapscallion, making his first local start and a heavy choice, because of his class and good workouts, was a fast-closing fourth after being outrun for a half-mile.

Idle Stefan Wins in Drive.

Rapscallion delayed the start with his bad behavior, but he broke in good order. White Thorn was not so fortunate, leaving several lengths behind the field. The Pelican and Silk Flag drew away from the others but their battle for the lead and the very fast pace told at the end and Idle Stefan, always well up, overtook them in the drive to the wire and drew away.

Jockey Coucci got back into his best form today, the Bronx lad piloting the Greentree Stable's Curacao to a rather surprising victory in the Okeechobee purse for his third triumph of the afternoon. The winner also gave Mrs. Payne Whitney's establishment a double. Curacao was driving hard to beat Don Leon by three parts of a length. Robinson Crusoe was a well beaten third.

Don Leon had the best of the start, breaking very fast from the outside and rushing into a daylight lead over Curacao. Coucci did not ask the ultimate winner for his best until the head of the stretch. Curacao passed the Western Flash inside the final furlong but was kept under pressure to the end, completing the 7 furlongs in 1:23 3-5, the fastest time of the meeting for the distance.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAL AL: MIAMI, JANUARY 31.

Well friend, it's a good thing it's an old Chinese Custom—or at any rate, it's a good thing there's a horse by that name or Bill Benning would have been forced to admit a shutout for the first time since the meeting got under way. However, now that I have that out of my system I shall try to concentrate (or words to that effect) on bigger and better things. Mike has been pretty quiet since his 10-1 shot special bit the dust and I'm letting him stick around with the proviso that he doesn't try to pick horses. Coucci gave the boys a riding lesson today, bringing home three winners in four tries. BILL.

FIRST RACE—PERNICKETY failed me the last time, but I'm stringing along. Showed enough in a previous outing to indicate that the winning end of a purse is not beyond reason, and I do want to be in on the kill. BRAN MUFFIN was in the pay last out and may take care of the place ahead of COMES JUNE.

SECOND RACE—BIG DIPPER has shown good sprinting ability since the babies started whooping it up and may have a future. SHILLY SHALLY seems capable of giving the top one the most trouble. GREEK MAIDEN, a Widener product, for the show.

THIRD RACE—SEA FOX gets the Bennings call in this. A year seems to have added the necessary punch to this fellow. I hear tales of fast works by FLYER. AMERICANA was not sound last fall, but may be rounding into something bordering racing shape.

FOURTH RACE—SHAKER LADY shook them all down the last time and seems worthy of a place at the top of the list here. MOON SHY and FERVID to battle it out for what's left.

FIFTH RACE—MIKE HALL may be running himself into shape and needs only a few flashes of his one-time form to get the principal dough. I'm giving him a chance to make good. BARCELONA PETE and BROAD MEADOWS to chase MIKE home.

SIXTH RACE—Can't pass up CAMP PRINCE. Looks like he will steal the purse. A trifle too classy for this kind. MERIDIAN QUEEN and MADELON for the rest.

SEVENTH RACE—GRIFFIN is in excellent form, and if he draws a capable rider, he may upset the onions in this. WISHING STAR, the probable choice, is the one to beat. COME ON for the show.

Catholic U. Five Swamps Marines

Augusterfer and Gearty Show Way in Easy 42-20 Victory.

Quantico, Va., Jan. 31.—The Quantico Marines could do nothing with Gene Augusterfer and Babe Gearty here today, and the two flashy court merchants led Catholic University to a walkaway victory, 42-20.

Never headed, the Cards were out in front by 27-13 at the half and produced a virtually air-tight defense to hold the Leathernecks to 3 measly points in the entire second half.

Coach Forrest Cotton, once the game was in the bag, utilized the entire C. U. squad to round out the battle. Among the reserves, Capt. Spinelli's floorwork stood out.

88 STOLEN BASES BY MILAN RECALLED

great New York Yankees in years to come, was listed on the roster, but he too did not last. Jack Bentley, later a New York Giant pitcher, was on the squad as a rookie pitcher.

Eddie Ainsmith was still regarded as the only man on the team capable of catching Johnson—one of the few in the league for that matter.

This was the roster: Ainsmith, Acosta, Ayres, Boehling, Bentley, Barton, Brown, Barron, Cashion, Engel, Ehmke, Foster, Gandil, Gedeon, Gallia, Hedgepeth, Holland, Henry, Harper, Johnson, Jennings, Long, Mumford, Massie, Milan, Moeller, Meusel, Morgan, McBride, Mitchell, Pick, Shanks, Smith, Stephens, Alva Williams, H. Williams and Wilson.

Of course, the later records of Ehmke, Meusel and Bentley can hardly be taken into consideration in a contest limited to picking the best Nats for each position over a 20-year period. This is a contest confined to men who labored for Washington, and reached the bloom of their big league career here.

Long time residence of contest competitors is not necessary. Each day The Post plans to run some key game or incident of a by-gone season which will send the searchlight of investigation back through the dark ages of the Nats. In the near future we will print the line-up of the entire 20 teams which have represented the city in the American League in the last generation. A rank newcomer to the city, if he studied both the stories and the records of these old timers can perhaps get an inkling to what thoughts are circulating in the head of the Old Fox, as he sits out there at his ball park office and picks his own all-star team, that the contestentrants are asked to match.

D. & H. Five Takes Community Lead

Gives Potomac Boatmen First Defeat of Year in Section B.

Rallying in the second half, after trailing, 19-12, at the intermission, Delaware & Hudson courtmen defeated Potomac Boat Club, 42-29, to assume undisputed possession of the lead in section B, Community Center League. A large crowd packed the Eastern High School gym to witness the two teams, neither of which previously had tasted of defeat, battle. Garber, Gubisch and Beach led the winning attack.

G. U. TO OPEN ON DIAMOND APRIL 21

Baseball, Golf and Tennis Dates Are Announced.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY'S schedule makers yesterday outlined the spring campaign of Hoya baseball, tennis and golf teams. Beginning April 21, when the Hilltop diamond team meets Temple at Philadelphia, the coming spring will see the university's colors carried into 23 events in the three sports named.

Because of the cancellation of a number of baseball games, the diamond schedule has been whittled to an even dozen games, one of the smallest schedules the school has had in many years. Of the twelve games, only five will be played here, those being meetings with West Virginia, Washington and Lee, North Carolina University, Mount St. Mary's and the second game with Temple.

BASEBALL.

April 21, Temple University, Philadelphia; 22, New York University, New York City; 25, Temple University, Washington; 28, West Virginia University, Washington; May 3, Mount St. Mary's, Emmitsburg; 6, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis; 8, Washington and Lee College, Washington; 11, Providence College, Providence; 13, Boston College, Boston; 13, Holy Cross, Worcester; 15, North Carolina University, Washington; 17, Mount St. Mary's, Washington.

TENNIS.

May 11, Pittsburgh University, Washington; 12, New York University, Washington; 18, Washington and Jefferson, Washington; 20, United States Naval Academy, Annapolis.

GOLF.

April 28, morning, Holy Cross College, at Princeton, N. J.; April 29, morning, Dartmouth College, at Princeton, N. J.; afternoon, Harvard University, at Princeton, N. J. May 5, afternoon, Yale University, at New Haven. May 6, morning, Williams College, at New Haven; afternoon, Brown University, at New Haven. May 10, afternoon, Princeton University, at Washington.

Hitting the Headpin

CHARLEY PHILLIPS, the first man to roll a score above 450 in a local bowling league, hung up an all-time mark for the National Capital League at Lucky Strike last night, battering the maples for games of 134, 142, 165, a 441 set. The mark nullifies Hokie Smith's 437 effort of a month ago.

Phillips, it will be recalled, held the city mark of 458 up until last year when Tornado Joe Pricci set the Recreation alleys afire with his 497 set. Phillips rolled the first 450 set in a league back in 1928, while a member of the King David Team in the Masonic League.

Kings Palace took two from King Pin, losing the second by a single stick. Mandley's 141 and Joe Harrison's 376 were second high.

Tony Suess continued his destructive tactics in The Washington Post League, busting the bottles for a 134 game and 367 set at Lucky Strike. Rubys led the teams with their 550 game and 1,559 set. Les Davis, of the Pearls, showed improvement and turned in a 124 game and 338 set for the afternoon's pinspilling.

Bess Hoffman rolled a 341 set and Lorraine Gulli a 137 game to win the individual awards in the Washington Ladies League at Columbia. Columbians had a big night, socking the sticks for a 556 game and 1,571 set.

Fred Watson and his Phoenix team mates cleaned up in the Odd Fellows loop at Convention Hall. Fred rolled 130 for high game and followed up with a 323 set. Phoenix had a 526 game and 1,526 set.

Ben Hare's 375 and Carl Stoner's 145 were high in the Masonic loop at Convention Hall. New Jerusalem had a 1,659 set and Singleton a 604 game.

Catherine Marques rolled high game, 118, in the Lutheran Ladies loop at Arcadia. Selma Cult had a 312 set. Trinity's 487 game and Zion's 1,395 set were high.

In the Men's Lutheran League at Arcadia Gus Laue had a high game of 147, while Hugh Waldrop took the set prize with 377. Trinity had a 605 game and 1,646 set.

Lampkin's Drugs rolled 1,701 and Brightwood Barber Shop, 611, to bag the team honors in the North of Washington League at Silver Spring. Clarence Fling had a 375 set and M. E. Oliver a 144 game.

Russets' 561 and 1,560 took the team prizes in the Postoffice Department loop at Columbia. Al Van Horn had a 353 set and Mr. Ream a 151 game.

Mary Estin's 345 and Mary Pitts' 131 were high in the Internal Revenue Ladies Loop at Columbia. Stenographic had a 526 game and 1,461 set.

DARGAN LEADS SUN LEW.

Andy Dargan maintained his lead over Sun Lew in their billiards match at the Boys Club, winning the second block by a score of 56 to 35. The score now is 101 to 91 in Dargan's favor. Sun Lew's best run last night amounted to eight balls, with his opponent boasting a run of one less. The two will continue the match tonight at 8 o'clock at the Boys' Club.

Fast One

Engel Tells How Speed of Johnson Saved Job by Fanning Strand.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Walter Johnson's smoke ball once saved Joe Engel's job when the Chattanooga baseball club president was a Washington scout.

Owner Griffith, of the Nationals, had sent Engel to Salt Lake City to look over Paul Strand, an outfielder, who was hitting around .440. Strand formerly was a Boston Braves pitcher who turned to the outfield when his throwing arm was hurt.

"I saw he was a big, awkward fellow, not very fast and not much of a fielder," Joe said, as he recalled the incident of ten years ago. "Besides, he was hitting in that rarified atmosphere where the ball travels farther. So I wired Griff 'he'll do us no good' and started home."

Griffith Still Sweet on Strand.

Back in Washington Griffith still believed Strand was a major league prospect and sent Joe back for another look. Joe still wasn't impressed and when he heard the sale price for Strand had been set at $65,000, he again discouraged the purchase and set out for Washington.

Griffith retained his interest in the big slugger and Joe made two more trips to the West for more inspections. While sitting in the park watching a game on the last visit Joe heard that the Philadelphia A's had bought Strand.

Engel wasn't very successful in persuading Griffith that Strand couldn't make the grade. The next spring, the A's opened the season against Washington and Strand was in the lineup.

"I knew Griff would 'pay me off' if Strand starred in those early games, so I got Walter Johnson aside and begged him to use all his stuff on Strand, to 'keep 'em high and inside,' Joe said.

Walter took a little longer than usual with his wind-up when Strand was at bat. The ball went flying up to the plate so fast you couldn't see it. Just a crack, like the pop of a whip, when it struck the catcher's mitt.

"Strand went that day without making even a foul, and my battle was half won," said Joe. "So I got to the pitchers who were to work the other games of the series and gave them the same song and dance. It worked and Strand went four games against us without even a scratch hit. So my job with Griff was safe."

The Western slugger didn't last long in the majors. He played a few years ago with Atlanta.

LUSNICS VS. EAGLES.

Lustine-Nicholson tossers, of Hyattsville will invade the George Washington Gym tonight in quest of a victory over the Aero Eagles. The game will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock. A preliminary game, Fort Myer vs. Richardson's White Sox, will start at 7:30 o'clock.

The Lusnics boast a string of ten consecutive victories while the Eagles have won the majority of their games this season.

ISLAND LEGISLATURE ENDS EXTRA SESSION

Filipinos Act Against Two Members Who Favored Delayed Freedom.

Manila, (Wednesday), Feb. 1 (A.P.).—The special fifteen-day session of the Philippine Legislative ended today after action against two members who favored accepting insular independence in about 12 years, as proferred by Congress.

They had opposed Manuel Quezon, president of the Senate, who aligned strong legislative following for rejection of delayed independence and insistence upon immediate freedom.

Quezon's position was further strengthened by displacement of Sergio Osmena as president pro tem of the Senate by Jose Clarin, of Behol Province, and the reported preparation of Leonardo Festin to succeed Manuel Roxas as speaker of the House. Osmena and Roxas, as members of the independence mission to Washington, favored legislative acceptance of the bill for which they labored.

Quezon hit at members of Congress who since the independence enactment have urged Filipinos to accept it. Among them were said to be Senator Hawes of Missouri and Senator Borah of Idaho.

"It is hardly fair," said Quezon, "for senators and representatives in Congress to be making statements that may influence the momentous decision the Filipino people will be called on to make.

"Senators and representatives have had one full year to say all they had to say regarding this law. * * * It is to be presumed it is the purpose of Congress to give us perfect freedom of action, so whatever we may do the responsibility will be ours.

"If members of the Senate and House want us to accept the law, irrespective of whether from our own viewpoint it should be accepted or rejected, they have one sure and proper way of doing it thus: enact a law and enforce it regardless of the opinion of the Filipino people."

Women Jury Bills Hearing Next Week

Marylanders Are Invited to Make Views Known February 8.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 31.—Hearings on the bills to permit Maryland women to serve on juries have been tentatively set for February 8, at 2:30 p. m., according to James J. Lindsay, jr., chairman of the House ways and means committee. Persons interested in the bill are invited to appear before the committee.

Two of the four lobbyists registered with the secretary of state are working on behalf of the jury bill, a study of the register showed today. They are Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, representing the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, and Marie W. Presstman, who represents the Maryland branch of the National Woman's Party.

Two bills, one of them sponsored by Lavins Engle, delegate from Montgomery County, have been introduced in the House this session. One of them provides that all women shall be liable to jury duty, but may be excused if they request it. The other will establish registers for women willing to serve, and from which their names shall be selected.

War Service Quiz Of Workers Opens

Federal Employe Inquiry Is Part of Congress Veterans' Probe.

(Associated Press.)

At the request of the Veterans' Administration, each Federal employe is being asked whether he gets war service compensation. This is for the information of the joint congressional committee studying veterans' legislation.

The questionnaire asks whether the employe ever served in the Army, Navy, Coast Guard or Marine Corps and, if so, what financial benefits are being obtained.

Replies will be turned over to the Veterans Administration, which will assemble the data for the congressional joint committee.

Rod and Gun Club Feeds Wild Fowl Around Fort

Lieut. Col. Ralph T. Ward, president of the Fort Humphreys Rod and Gun Club, has announced that the club will seed various places of the reservation with food for birds and upland game. During and after each snow storm, he said, the club will spread 25 bushels of cracked corn for the wild game.

Other officers of the club for the coming year are Lieut. Col. Harley J. Hallett and Maj. Emery H. Gist, vice presidents; Technical Sergt. R. J. Lamar and Technical Sergt. Charles M. Gawthorpe, secretary and treasurer.

BODY PLANT WORKS 800 DESPITE STRIKE

Ford Affiliate Still Picketed by Orderly Lines After Week's Shutdown.

Detroit, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Although orderly picket lines still marched determinedly, the wheels began turning today in the plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co., idle for the past week because of a strike of automobile body workers.

The extent of production, however, remained a matter of controversy between Briggs officials and members of the striking employes.

M. L. Briggs, assistant general manager of the Highland Park plant, said 800 men and women were at work, turning out bodies for the Ford Motor Co., which suspended operation in plants throughout the country when their supply of bodies was cut off.

Leaders of the strike, however, contested that figure, declaring only a few had returned to their benches. Previous to the walkout the company employed more than 2,000 men at the Highland Park plant.

Ford officials said they were awaiting further advice from the Briggs Co. before making an announcement regarding the reopening of their factories.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Gross sales of the General Fireproofing Co. for 1932 were $2,600,963, compared with $4,548,240 in 1931.

Revenue freight carloadings of the Rock Island Railway for the week ended January 28 totaled 17,590, compared with 18,356 in the previous week, and 22,615 in the same week last year.

Increases in the steel movement since the holidays has been purely of a seasonal character, says the American Metal Market. Some districts show no gain, but Chicago is up more than 2 points to 18 per cent of capacity and Youngstown and Cleveland are doing better, the review states.

Bradstreet's reports 605 business defaults during the past week, compared with 618 in the previous week, and 776 in the like 1931 period.

Although actual machinery business in January was small, sentiment improved and inquiries were larger, the American Machinist reports. The better class of contract and tool shops are said to be obtaining some fair-sized orders.

A New York Stock Exchange membership sold today for $100,000, off $8,000 from the price paid for a seat yesterday.

Sassara Extradition Granted.

Paris, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—The government today granted extradition to the United States of Guiseppe Cassara, arrested in Tunis recently on a homicide charge in New York.

AIR ASSAULT OPENS HAWAII WAR GAME

Pearl Harbor Naval Base Is Goal as "Enemy" Heads Toward America.

Honolulu, Jan. 31 (A.P.).—Winging across the rough Molokai Channel, between 50 and 100 attack planes from the carriers Lexington and Saratoga swept down from the clouds at dawn today and simulated a bombing assault on the Pearl Harbor naval base, the first blow struck in the Army-Navy winter maneuvers.

Presence of the "black" enemy fleet in the vicinity of Molokai Island was reported by "blue" defenders about midnight, and the dawn attack was anticipated. Reports indicated the attackers, who left San Diego more than a week ago, had widely scattered to the north, south and east of this island of Oahu.

Meanwhile, with "black" destroyers protecting aircraft carriers, several cruisers appeared south of Oahu and warmed up planes for an air attack from that direction. Defending Army and Navy bombers took off early this morning for the enemy concentration off Molokai.

Before they departed, 90 aircraft were reported to have landed on the deck of one carrier. The other carrier, nearer Molokai, still had 40 planes in the air to ward off the "blue" counter attack.

I AM FORCED by circumstances to sell my 1930 Oakland roadster. This car in very good shape; will outdistance most any car on the road today. Can arrange to finance if necessary. Jack Alexander, Georgia 5977 after 6 p. m.

I WILL SELL, at a drastic loss to me, my 1932 Pontiac V-8 two-door sedan, which I paid cash for 3 months ago. Have run less than 1,800 miles. Reason for selling, must have some cash. Will consider cheaper car in trade, and can arrange terms. Act quickly. Chas. Scott, Met. 0734.

JUST the thing for summer coming; 1929 Pontiac sport phaeton; perfect condition; will sacrifice for $175. Calvin Le Compte, District 9197 after 6 p. m.

NASH—1931 Twin Ign. 8-cyl. Coupe; only driven 10,200 miles; owner always kept it garaged; a car seldom seen in a used-car dept. Williams & Baker, Inc., Nash Dealers, 1507 14th st. nw.

NASH SPORT COUPE, 1929—Rumble seat, fine shape, recently repainted; new appearance; will sacrifice for $150. Really worth a great deal more. Must be seen to appreciate a bargain like this. Easy terms if nec'y. 2752 Woodley pl. nw. Col. 1245.

NASH—1929 Stand. 8 Sedan; mileage only 32,000; finish like new; priced low at $275. Williams & Baker, Inc., Nash Dealers, 1507 14th st. nw.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

FEBRUARY is the only month in the year in which there may be, in some years, no full moon. The lunar month, the period for one complete revolution of the moon, is 29 days 12 hours and 44 minutes long; hence no other month except February could pass without a complete revolution of the moon.

According to the U. S. Naval Observatory a "moonless month" occurs about once in 19 years for common years and once in 56 for a leap-year. When this happens it is usual that January or March, sometimes both, will have two full moons. In 1866, by central and eastern standard times there were two full moons in both January and March and none in February.

February was not always the shortened month it now is, and when it was first added to the calendar it was the last month of the year. It was shortened one day by Julius Caesar and Caesar Augustus so that the months honoring them—July and August—might each have 31 days.

During the last 28 seconds of the Stonington-Westerly schoolboy football game at Westerly, R. I., in the Armistice Day game 1931, Stonington scored two touchdowns and Westerly one. Each team made quick touchdowns after time out with 28 seconds to play—then with four seconds to play Westerly kicked off, a Stonington player receiving on his own 20-yard line to run 80 yards for a touchdown. He caught the ball before the final gun sounded and, as the play was in progress, it was a valid score.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

STUDY OF A GROUND-HOG.

YOUR correspondent had considerable trouble getting the Ground-Hog to live up to his best traditions this year. He didn't want to come out at all.

"Come out!" urged the Candlemas reception committee.

"What for?" asked the Ground-Hog.

"It's in your contract," urged the spokesman.

"The signature's a fake," insisted the G-H.

"But, what's your objection to coming out? You always have."

"Anybody who would come out of a hole to look around at the country this year is nutty," declared the G-H.

* * * * *

"AW come on out," begged the committee spokesman, peering into the hole and showing an administration promise that there would be no suffering from cold this winter.

"Go away," barked the Ground-Hog.

"Think of your public," beseeched the spokesman.

"Scram!" insisted the Ground-Hog.

"Do you realize what it would mean to America if you let Candlemas Day pass without emerging in accordance with the best native custom and tradition?" demanded the spokesman, offering it a lollipop.

"No. What would it mean?" asked the G-H.

* * * * *

"DISASTER," replied the spokesman dramatically. "In the present mood of the American public your refusal to obey the time-honored custom would be the last blow to its morale. Mr. Roosevelt could stop mentioning the Forgotten Man, business could refuse to turn the corner, Roger Babson could withhold his monthly market prediction, Congress could refuse to come out of the ether and industry could decline to come out of the fog without causing more than a minor rumble, but for the Ground Hog to refuse to come out of its hole would . . ."

"Would what?" demanded the G-H.

"I hesitate to picture the devastating effects on the newspaper photographers, city editors, cub reporters and rotogravure specialists alone," assured the spokesman.

"Oh, all right," said the G-H, "but before I come out I want to ask three questions."

"Shoot!"

* * * * *

"IS Huey Long around? I don't mind my shadow, but I'd hate to see Huey's."

"No."

"Is Borah where I can hear him?"

"No."

"Are there any technocrats around the vicinity?"

"Not one."

"Okay," surrendered the Ground-hog reluctantly, coming out cautiously, taking a momentary glance around and scampering back at once. It was very clear that he was taking no chances.

"France has no intention of taking the initiative in reopening war debt discussions with America." — News item. We ought to feel mighty lucky that she will even speak to us even if we take the initiative.

MERELY A SUGGESTION.

Henry Ford is reported writing a play. It will be called, no doubt, "Design for Flivving."

Deputies Will Aid Income Tax-Payers

Revenue Bureau Stresses Speed in Order to Avert Congestion.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue announced yesterday that deputy collectors will be on duty to advise income tax payers and to take payments in suite 1002 of the Internal Revenue Building.

The more than 20,000 District inhabitants who will have to file returns this year because of the reduced exemptions were urged to give the matter prompt attention so congestion will be avoided and they will not be subject for the penalty for late filing.

Whether a tax is payable or not, all single persons with a net income of $1,000 or over, and married persons with a combined net income of $2,500 or over, or anyone with a gross income of $5,000 or more, must file a return.

Hamilton Becomes Art Gallery's Head

Charles C. Glover Named President Emeritus of Corcoran.

George E. Hamilton, first vice president and acting president of the Corcoran Gallery of Art, was elected president at the annual meeting of the board of trustees yesterday. The retiring president, Charles C. Glover, was named president emeritus.

Corcoran Thom, formerly second vice president, was named first vice president, and Charles C. Glover, jr., was elected second vice president. C. Powell Minnigerode was renamed secretary and rirector of the gallery, and Robert V. Fleming reelected treasurer.

Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, vice president of the National Geographic Society, was elected a trustee to replace the late Gari Melchers.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

In schoolrooms all over the land we often see placarded:

"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Application of the Golden Rule by motorists to their traffic difficulties would bring about a panacea for the ills they are sure the "other fellow" causes.

	1932	1933
Deaths	9	5
Injuries	322	279

"Be Careful"

AGENCY HEADS SEE APPEAL TO R. F. C. FOR D.C. AID FUND

Need for Relief Increasing, Associated Charities Is Told at Meeting.

It will be necessary to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation adequately to carry the relief burden in this city during 1933, the executive heads of Washington's private welfare agencies stated at the annual meeting of the Associated Charities at the Y. W. C. A. last night.

The Rev. Laurence J. Shehan, assistant director of the Catholic Charities, said all private agencies are confronted with a serious crisis because of a scarcity in funds. The Catholic agencies, he asserted, would not be able to give the same amount of relief as last year. The need for aid, he said, is increasing daily.

Also advocating Federal aid was Francis J. Miller, director of welfare and relief of the American Legion. He said the city must have public funds or many people will starve.

Futility of Mere Relief.

Arthur Rosichan, executive director of the Jewish Social Service Agency, pointed out the futility of mere relief without the other services that are given by the family agencies. He asserted that the agencies enable the client to get back to a self-supporting, self-respecting basis. He predicted that the private relief agency would in time be entirely supplanted by public relief funds.

Maj. James Asher, commander of the District department of the Salvation Army, spoke of the problem of transients. He pointed out the increased number of homeless wanderers.

The drastic cuts in relief funds necessitated through the shortage of the Community Chest was stressed as an increasing problem by Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of the Associated Charities. He pointed out that the people have a right to ask Congress to enable the city to borrow funds for relief. "It is our money," he said, "and we have a right to use it as we see fit."

Dr. Johnson Speaks.

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, told the group that almost one-fourth of the Negro population here is depending on charity. This he attributed to the low wage scale paid the Negro before the depression.

Coleman Jennings was reelected president for another year. Other officers elected last night are Corcoran Thom, vice president; Harry G. Meem, treasurer; Herbert A. Poole, assistant treasurer.

Members of the board reelected for a term of three years are Maj. H. O. Atwood, Edward F. Colladay, Clarence Phelps Dodge, Coleman Jennings, C. C. Morgan, Mrs. E. K. Morris, John J. O'Connor, Miss Lucy D. Slowe, Miss Florence P. Spofford, Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, Mrs. Sydney F. Taliaferro and Evan H. Tucker.

Board Does Not Plan Drastic Relief Changes

No revolutionary changes in the plan of distributing unemployment relief are to be made under the $625,000 appropriation made available yesterday following the signing of the District deficiency bill by President Hoover.

The Board of Public Welfare will consider proposals to liberalize the adminstration of relief funds so as to include unmarried men and to lessen the required length of residents in Washington. The small amount of money and the great demand, however, will prevent any considerable extensions.

About the first expenditure of the new relief appropriation will be made this week to repay about $25,000 borrowed from private sources to meet last Saturday's pay roll and to pay about $40,000 in back grocery accounts.

Woman Is Held for Jury In Stolen-Property Case

Charged with receiving stolen property, Winnine Carrington, colored, yesterday was ordered held for the grand jury under $1,500 bond when she was arraigned in Police Court.

Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh told Judge Isaac R. Hitt that additional charges might be placed against the woman as the police investigation into the finding of approximately $5,000 worth of allegedly stolen property had not been completed.

NIGHTLY AUTO SHOW FEATURE

GRADUATION IS HELD AT SIX JUNIOR HIGHS

"Trial" at Gordon Results in Exoneration of Charges Against System.

Commencement exercises at white junior high schools were concluded yesterday and last night with programs at Deal, Gordon, Jefferson, Paul, Powell and Stuart schools.

The graduation exercises at Deal were the first held at this school. Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, vice president of the Board of Education, whose son was a member of the graduating class, presented the diplomas and made a brief address.

The address of welcome was given by Margaret Stout, and the valedictory by Richard Stephens. The class was presented by Miss Bertie Backus, principal of the school. The invocation was given by the Rev. J. Phelps Hand. Musical selections completed the program.

Junior High Acquitted.

A play entitled "The Trial of the Junior High School," in which this link between elementary grades and senior high school was not only exonerated of any charges but also eulogized, featured the exercises at the Gordon Junior High School. The play was written and presented by members of the senior class.

Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, addressed the class on the opportunities of this age and counseled the graduates to set their hearts and minds toward the ideal of good citizenship. Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, presided, and Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent, presented the diplomas. The Rev. Albert H. Lucas, headmaster of St. Alban's School, offered the invocation. A clock was given to the school by the graduating class.

Jefferson Program.

Mrs. Doyle presided at the exercises at the Jefferson held in the afternoon. Members of the class presented the program. The graduates of Paul Junior High heard an address by Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education, who also presented the diplomas.

Jere J. Crane, assistant superintendent of schools, presented the diplomas at the Powell exercises. The class was presented by Lester P. Walter, the principal. Graduates of the Stuart received their certificates from Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of schools. Earl Shiflet, the class president, gave an address of welcome and Sally Williams, the valedictory. The Rev. Alfred E. Barrows, pastor of the Eastern Presbyterian Church, offered the invocation and benediction. Names of the graduates of these schools appeared in The Post last Sunday.

THRONGS APPROVE NEW AUTO MODELS

Annual Show Draws Large Crowds as Weather Stays Fair.

Yesterday's springlike weather turned the National Capital's fancy toward new automobiles with the result that the attendance at the thirteenth annual Automobile Show zoomed to a new high mark for the exhibition which opened last Saturday. From noon until the closing hour at 10:30 last night there was an endless procession of interested showgoers thronging the two floors of the Washington Auditorium, where the latest models are on display.

Not merely interest, but actual sales registered an increase for the day, although final reports from exhibitors regarding the latter will not be checked until today.

That Washingtonians have placed their stamp of approval on the styling of the newest creations of the industry is the unanimous report of exhibitors in the show. Never, they declare, has there been such complete approval of body lines which have departed so positively from the standard of the past.

Keen interest also is manifested in the mechanical exhibits which are especially numerous in this year's display. This is attributed by exhibitors to the fact that many showgoers have been so long out of the automotive market that they have lost track of the spectacular mechanical developments which the industry has advanced during the last two years.

A depression aspect of the public interest in the new cars is reported by dealers and salesmen who find that one of the most prominent questions asked by visitors to every booth is, "What gasoline mileage do you get this year?" Other phases of operating economy also are the objects of universal curiosity among those attending the automobile show.

The exhibit will pass the half way mark today and members of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, sponsors of the event, are confident that a continuance of pleasant weather will see last year's attendance record eclipsed.

Purse-Snatcher Gets $300 Loot.

Mrs. Ida Lanty, of 1907 G street northwest, reported to police that her purse, containing cash and jewelry amounting to about $300 and valuable papers, was snatched from her arm by a colored man last night.

Miss Fry Will Recite At Neighborhood House

Miss Margaret Fry, of New York, who was recently appointed director of the music school at Neighborhood House, 470 N street southwest, will give her first recital at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the settlement. She will tell the story of Hansel and Gretel.

Miss Fry succeeded Miss Edna Bachman as head of the settlement house. Miss Bachman returned to her home in Rochester, N. Y., because of the death of her mother. She had served as director for fifteen years.

Salesman Reports Theft of Dresses.

Joe Weinstein, a salesman from New York, yesterday reported the loss of fifteen sample dresses worth $55. He told police the dresses were stolen from the display room of a downtown department store.

EASTERN GRADUATES TOLD OF THREATS TO NATION'S GREATNESS

Dr. Smith Holds Personal Action Antidote for Destructive Trends.

Declaring that the greatness of the United States is threatened by injustice, insubordination, indecency and irreligion, the Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., doctor of sociology at Catholic University, told the 89 four-year graduates of Eastern High School at their commencement exercises last night that the greatest needs of education today are good citizenship and mass improvement.

Other needs that must be produced by education to offset the evils he cited include personal action and noble service, Father Smith declared.

The Dominican educator counseled the young graduates to show their appreciation of their education by gratitude to their parents, teachers and community through the development of the ideals he set forth.

Means of Gratitude.

This can be done, he explained, through living an honorable life and setting an example of worshipful obedience. He observed that the graduates are probably just beginning to learn these things, and that the future should be a continuation of their education along these lines of better character, fine patriotism and higher morale.

The exercises were opened with an invocation by the Rev. E. Hez Swem. The salutatory was given by William Spellbring, of the senior class, and the valedictory of Mary Margaret Battinieri, also of the senior class.

The diplomas were presented by Dr. Wallace M. Yater, president of the Medical School of Georgetown University. Musical selections by the Eastern High School Orchestra rounded out the program.

LOFTY IDEALS URGED IN CENTRAL ADDRESS

Dr. George B. Wood Talks at Graduation Exercises to 190 Students.

The will to be something, through individual persistency and "a passion for lofty happiness," was the goal set for the graduating class of 190 young men and women of Central High School by Dr. George B. Wood, dean of American University, in an address at the commencement exercises last night.

Dean Wood told the graduates they should regard the future as a magnet toward which they were being pulled to higher accomplishment, rather than an uncertain goal into which they were being pushed.

"The real distinction a person attains," he pointed out, "depends on his power of self direction." As an illustration of this objective, he quoted Henley's poem, "Invictus."

The diplomas were presented by Dr. Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, a former principal at Central. The Rev. James H. Miers gave the invocation, and Dr. Harvey A. Smith, principal of the school, announced the honor graduates. Musical selections were played by the school orchestra.

Danyse Hutchison received a scholarship to the Strayer College of Accountancy, and Reba Nachman to Southeastern University of the Y. M. C. A.

ESSARY CITES CRISIS SCARS ON SCHOLARS

Graduates of Western High Hear Newspaperman at Commencement.

Deploring the present economic depression during which he stated "not 10 per cent of the college graduates were able to earn enough to buy razor blades," J. Fred Essary, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, told members of the graduating class of Western High School at their commencement exercises yesterday that he had faith in the emergence of this Nation from financial stress.

Painting a vivid picture of industry in the throes of some force which he said could not be explained, but which was starving a Nation which was surrounded by plenty, Mr. Essary heralded better times when every school graduate and person could "claim their right to a normal life."

The journalist stated that in all material respects the world today is the same as during the boom years of 1928 and 1929. Since that time, he pointed out, there were no wars or plague to reduce the value of economic goods.

Dr. Elmer S. Newton, principal of the school, announced the graduates and awarded the diplomas. Norman J. Nelson and Miss F. Edna Thonssen, assistant principals, assisted him.

The following received diplomas:

102 Are Given Diplomas At McKinley's Graduation

Baccalaureate Address Omitted in Accordance With Custom at Technical High School; Whitwell Presides at Commencement Exercises.

Continuing the custom of not having a baccalaureate address, McKinley High School bade farewell last night to a class of 102 young men and women at commencement exercises.

George M. Whitwell, Board of Education member, presided, and Frank C. Daniel, principal of the school, presented the diplomas. Allen Marans gave the salutatory, and Verna Volz, the valedictory. Miss Jesse Coope, assistant principal, presented the young women graduates, and William C. Myers, assistant principal, the young men.

Vocal selections were given by Louise Keneipp and organ selections by Miss Lillie P. Bailey. The Rev. John J. Rives, pastor of the Emery Methodist Church South, gave the invocation.

The program was concluded with the playing of The Washington Post March by the Tech Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Dore Walton.
